

Married At First Sight Chapter 3190

Married At First Sight Chapter 3190-Her parents help take care of the family business together, and they are both equally busy and tired. But when they come home, their mother always worries about them and disciplines them. Her father always feels that there are servants, drivers, and many tutors at home. There is absolutely no need for their parents to worry about it.

Therefore, the father really doesn't care about them. Only the mother has to worry about it, so they have a better relationship with their mother.

Elora said to Tinsley, "You can stop listening to other people's gossip. You can only know if you try it yourself."

Tinsley said, "For a family like ours, we don't have to worry about living poorly. We have confidence."

Elora said, "We ourselves are strong enough, and our parents' family is also strong enough. With these two points, as long as we choose a man with good character, we will not have a bad life."

Tinsley said, "That's right. When will you get a boyfriend? I want to have a brother-in-law."

Elora lightly scolded Tinsley: "No matter how old or young you are, do you think I have time to fall in love? The young talents here are suitable and married, but we don't like those who are not suitable, so we are anxious."

Tinsley said, "Sister, I believe in fate. Should fate bring us thousands of miles apart, we dare not acknowledge each other."

Elora said, "Go back and do your thing. Let's go back for dinner together at five o'clock."

Normally, the company gets off work at 5:30 p.m..

Elora was a workaholic. Many times, she was in the office after everyone got off work. When she left the company, it was usually around seven o'clock in the evening. Unless she had to socialize in the evening, she would leave the company early.

Getting off work half an hour early was Elora's biggest limit.

Considering that the chef at home needed to be re-examined, she had to go back to meet Tatum and get to know his character.

Try the food he cooked to see if it suits her taste.

Look how good Tatum was—so good that she wanted to go home and get off work right now.

Tinsley said, "Five o'clock is a bit late; 4:30 is almost there."

Elora said, "If you continue to bargain with me, you can get off work as usual. Just go back to eat and ask a few questions. Isn't half an hour early enough?"

There was no need for them to go back and help with cooking.

Was it necessary to go so far in advance?

Elora felt that after getting off work at 5 o'clock, it would be time for dinner when she got home.

There was no need to wait.

She had to eat first. After tasting the food prepared by Tatum, she found it to be to her liking. Then she met Tatum again, getting to know Tatum's character before deciding whether to ask Tatum to be her personal chef.

"enough."

Knowing that Elora had made the biggest concession, Tinsley stopped.

At this time, the secretary knocked on the door and came in.

The secretary held a piece of A4 paper in her hand. After she came in, she walked straight to Elora's desk. She nodded to Tinsley first, then handed the paper in her hand to Elora and said, "President, this is basic information."

Elora took Tatum's information, and the secretary silently exited.

Tinsley smiled. "Sister, you actually recognized Tatum's cooking skills, right? "You even asked people to investigate Tatum."

“If the snacks are good and the food is delicious, then admit it.” “Always touch his bottom.”
