

EasySync System: Amazing Wealth Chapter 2

EasySync System

Felix's sharp eyes lit up slightly. At first glance, he felt quite fond of this ring.

‘With that, Felix cleaned it with his shirt and then put it on.

A faint smile appeared on his dull handsome face when he saw how good the red color on the ring looked.

"Woi, poor thing, hurry!" A voice shouted from the top of the building, making Felix flinch and hurriedly resume his work.

‘When break time came, Felix walked over to a shady tree and wiped the sweat from his temples.

However, just as he was about to sit there, a man came rushing over. "Felix, your wife left!"

Felix immediately stood up straight and looked at the man who was his neighbor with some confusion. "What do you mean?"

"Your wife left. Carrying a big bag. Hurry up, you have to go home immediately.” With that, the man grabbed Felix and pushed him to leave immediately.

Felix couldn't hold back any longer and sprinted towards home. His heart was racing as he heard his wife leave with a big bag.

Felix's friends who were enjoying their lunch looked at each other and one of them spoke with concern. "If you think about it, Felix is a pity too. It seems like he's the only one whose life is so bad. Already having nothing, now his wife is leaving."

"If you feel sorry for him, do him a favor," chimed in the other man.

"Oh sorry, I suddenly didn't recognize someone named Felix." As he said that, the man stood up and walked away quietly, making his friends laugh.

Felix's neighbors who hadn't left yet could only stare at them and silently pity Felix.

How hard life must be to be Felix. Even at work, he was an outcast and a joke.

After a while of silence, the man finally left.

Arriving home, Felix rudely opened the door and walked quickly into the house.

"Arista!

Arista!"

"Arista, where are you?" Felix kept shouting for Arista. But she was nowhere to be found.

The first place Felix went to was his room. He went straight to the closet and opened it. All the clothes that were neatly arranged on the left side of the closet were now gone.

For a moment, Felix just stared at the space in front of him. Then, when he came to his senses, he closed the cupboard roughly turned around, and walked quickly out of the house.

Arista might have been still around. Because the distance between when he found out about this and when she left was not too far. He even went home right away.

Felix ran towards the main road without caring about anything else.

There was only one main road here and to get there, there was no public transportation. So he could most likely still catch up with Arista.

Thinking about this, Felix accelerated his pace even more. He didn't realize that he wasn't running on the side of the road.

At that moment, a freight car was speeding from the right side of the intersection. Just as it turned the corner, Felix realized its presence and quickly moved out of the way.

But even so, he was still nudged by the car body and thrown to the side.

"Argh!" Felix winced in pain as his body hit the ground hard.

He tried to open his eyes, but they were blurry. The smell of blood made him feel dizzy and nauseous.

At that moment, Felix was on his stomach and his ring-wearing hand was under his injured forehead. The blood slowly dripped onto the ruby-red stone.

The driver of the car rushed down and shouted frantically. "Help! Help! There's been an accident! Please call an ambulance!"

Instantly everyone came, one by one, and formed a crowd. But none of them tried to get closer to check on Felix. They just talked to each other while pointing.

"Isn't that Felix? Why is he here?" asked one of the women.

‘A woman across the crowd suddenly replied in a gossipy tone. "I saw Arista, Felix's wife, carrying a big bag. It looks like she ran away, and Felix wants to find her. Besides, who could stand living in poverty with a man like this? If I were in Arista's shoes, I wouldn't be able to stand it either."

People started nodding in agreement. Especially the women. Suddenly, a dismissive gaze fell on the unconscious Felix.

"Felix, Felix, you know you're married. But you don't want to take responsibility.

It's only natural that your wife ran away. You should be earning a lot of money, not slacking off with manual labor." A man looked sorry for Felix. He shook his head slowly and walked away.

The driver of the freight car looked incredulous as he witnessed this scene.

He stopped shouting for help and immediately took out his cell phone to call an ambulance.

It didn't take long for the ambulance to arrive.

Upon hearing the shrill sound of the ambulance siren, everyone slowly moved out of the way but didn't stop their mouths from gossiping.

"Sir, please save this man and give him the best treatment. I'll follow in my car," said the driver, pointing to his car which was parked carelessly.

The paramedics nodded and said, "We'll do our best."

After that, they quickly loaded Felix into an ambulance and took him to a nearby hospital.

Felix's thick eyebrows furrowed and a moment later his closed eyes moved slowly until they finally opened.

"Where is this?" Felix stared at the white roof of the room and then shifted his gaze around the room. Immediately, he realized that he was in a hospital. He breathed a sigh of relief. "T thought I wouldn't survive."

He hurried to get up and just then, there was a clanking sound, making Felix spontaneously clutch his head.

Ding!

[The system has found an owner!]

[Welcome to, Mr. Felix. Introducing, my name is EasySync System.]

[Here are your details.]

[Name: Felix Zionathan.]

[Age: 26 years old.]

[Physique: 50% after the introductory greeting.]

[Assets: -]

[Luck Point: 0%]

[Current mission: -]

[Note: point redemption starts at 5000 and to earn points, you must complete missions. Each mission has a different level and the points earned are also different, according to the level.

You can also choose a mission if the mission I gave you is not interesting enough. In addition, there is a penalty for failing a mission, which is a point deduction].

[5000 points is equivalent to $100,000,000]

Felix was left in a daze. What did that mean?

He continued to stare at the transparent screen in front of him and read the words repeatedly.

"Mission? Points? What's going on? Am I hallucinating?" Felix moved his hand, trying to push away the transparent screen. However, instead of succeeding, he found his hand passing through the screen.

[Hello, Sir, can I help you?]

A soft voice that resembled a whisper echoed in Felix's mind, making the man frown in | annoyance. "Who are you? Why do I only hear your voice but not your form?

Wait, can you |

explain? I don't understand." |

[Alright. Explanation begins!] |

[Sir, my name is the EasySync System. What you see right now is my form. My presence | here is to instruct you on the mission and everything. This mission is something that you have to do until you succeed and because of that, you will be rewarded with points that can | be exchanged into something. And if you fail, your points will be reduced by 2000]. |

"Can I use those points to buy a vehicle?" Felix asked enthusiastically. |

[That's right. Not only vehicles but even mansions and private jets can be acquired, Sir."] |

"Really?" Felix instantly forgot about the existence of his head wound. He straightened up | and stared at the transparent screen in front of him with his heart beating with happiness. |

"Then I accept it. I'll carry out the mission! I want to get rich and buy everything!"
