

A WARRIOR UNDEFEATABLE/

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3726-Thump! Thump! Thump!

Suddenly, the few cultivators who had just rushed in were all shockingly hurled out. One by one, these individuals collapsed onto the ground, wailing in agony.

“D*mn! What kind of test is this? It’s utterly insane...” “Didn’t they say my life wouldn’t be in danger? I nearly died in there!” “My leg is broken. How was I supposed to continue cultivating?” “A bunch of liars! Lunarius Palace is filled with a bunch of liars!” The cultivators who were flung out were all screaming in pain and cursing at Lunarius Palace. At that moment, the numerous cultivators who were eager to get into action were all left dumbfounded.

Many people began to feel nervous. They had only mustered the courage to participate after hearing Yuliya’s assurance that there was no threat to their lives.

If they were to escape death only to be gravely injured, unable to continue their cultivation, it would be a fate worse than death itself.

“Hmph! What a bunch of cowards!” Upon realizing that no one dared to step forward, Keiran let out a cold huff. With an air of confidence and nonchalance, he strode into the trial tower.

Seeing that, some of the other cultivators gritted their teeth and followed suit, while others decided to bow out.

Jared was meticulously calculating the time, anticipating the moment when Keiran was about to pass the test. That was when he would make his move.

Yuliya saw that Jared was hesitant to proceed, and immediately, her face twisted into a smirk. “If you’re too scared to go in, just turn back. I’ve told you before that even though you luckily made it through the illusion array, you won’t be able to pass this trial tower!” Jared gazed at Yuliya, yet he remained silent. After a brief pause, he stepped into the trial tower.

As soon as he stepped into the trial tower, Jared discovered a drastic shift in his surroundings. Astonishingly, he found himself in the midst of a boundless forest.

The air was filled with the roars of various wild beasts all around.

“Is this even a test?” A smirk played at the corner of Jared’s mouth. He hadn’t expected the test at Lunarius Palace to be so easy.

It was possible that every person who entered the trial tower experienced a different setting, and each of these settings held its own unique dangers.

Jared ventured forth into the seemingly endless forest.

Occasionally, savage beasts would charge out, only to be effortlessly slain by Jared, wielding his Dragonslayer Sword.

Although Jared was only a Third Level Tribulator, he was fearless, even when faced with a Seventh Level Tribulator.

Jared effortlessly made his way, slaying fierce beasts along his journey, until he finally arrived before the gemstone that radiated a green glow.

At that moment, all Jared had to do was touch the gemstone, infusing it with his own aura, and he would be transported out of the trial tower, thereby successfully passing the test.

Just as Jared was preparing to approach the gem by emanating his aura from his body, his expression suddenly tightened.

“Who’s there? Come out now...” Jared made a surprising discovery. Someone was actually hiding not too far away.

Jared was somewhat taken aback. He couldn’t comprehend why the other party chose to hide, let alone spy on him surreptitiously.

It was clear that these individuals had also entered this scene from the trial tower and were walking alongside Keiran.

After all, it was only Keiran who had the strongest capability there.

Upon seeing Keiran appear, Jared immediately furrowed his brows. “Were you waiting for me all this time?” He hadn’t expected that Keiran, surprisingly, hadn’t left the trial tower. Instead, he was waiting for Jared.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3727-Surprisingly, Keiran wasn’t the least bit intimidated by Jared. “Jared, don’t forget that this is Lunarius Palace. Do you dare to make a move here? Aren't you afraid of Lunarius Palace?" That place was Lunarius Palace, where his aunt stood as an elder. Keiran held considerable influence within Lunarius Palace, so naturally, he had no reason to fear Jared.

As long as Jared dared to make a move, he would immediately leave the trial tower. By then, he could have the people of Lunarius Palace surround Jared.

At that moment, a cultivator was standing behind Keiran. His eyes lit up with excitement when he heard Jared's name. Eagerly, he asked, "Jared? Could this be the very person whom Demon Seal Alliance has offered rewards to eradicate?" Pointing at Jared, Keiran said, "Yes. It's him. Whoever among you can kill him will receive a century's worth of tribute from Demon Seal Alliance." The eyes of those cultivators lit up instantly when they heard that. It was as if they had just seen a beautiful woman.

"Haha! I've struck gold. With a century's worth of offerings from Demon Seal Alliance, who needs a d*mn trip to the polar region?" "Wow! What a stroke of luck!" "Don't any of you snatch to kill him!" Those few cultivators thought they had struck gold and eagerly rushed toward Jared.

Gazing at the approaching cultivators, Jared maintained a serene expression. In his eyes, those fellows were already as good as dead!

The moment they harbored intentions to kill him, they were already dead.

Keiran simply watched everything unfold with a cold, scornful laugh, gradually moving closer to the gemstone.

He knew those people stood no chance against Jared.

He did that on purpose, with the sole intention of provoking Jared into killing those people.

When the time came for him to emerge from the trial tower, he would be able to pin the blame on Jared. Lunarius Palace wouldn't just stand by and do nothing.

Jared had long since discerned Keiran's intentions. However, he couldn't possibly let Keiran leave alive. If his identity were to be exposed, it would spell trouble.

With a flick of his wrist, Jared suddenly held a bow and arrow in his hand.

Needless to say, he was holding Divine Bow.

Incredibly, Jared had actually taken out Divine Bow.

The aim was to keep everyone there. Once those people died, no one would be aware of his identity, let alone the fact that he possessed Divine Bow.

Several cultivators were taken aback when they suddenly saw Jared suddenly whip out Divine Bow.

But while they were caught off guard, Jared had already seized the bowstring, gradually pulling it to its full extent.

The marked aura continuously consolidated, eventually forming several arrows.

Whoosh!

The moment Jared let go, the arrows instantly flew toward those cultivators.

Before the cultivators had any chance to react, their bodies were pierced by arrows.

The moment the arrows pierced through, several cultivators astonishingly began to fade. Eventually, they vanished into thin air, leaving not even a trace of their bodies behind.

Watching the horrifying scene unfold, Keiran, who had just been scoffing moments ago, was completely dumbfounded.

He had no idea that Jared had such a formidable weapon.

Surprisingly, Keiran didn't recognize Divine Bow.

Keiran swiftly turned around, heading straight for the gemstone. He was determined to leave that trial tower as soon as possible.

Meanwhile, Jared drew his bow once again, as an arrow radiating a chilling aura materialized.

Jared gently released his grip, and the arrow flew toward Keiran like a shooting star.

In the blink of an eye, the arrow had pierced through the void, arriving in front of Keiran.

Feeling the relentless approach of death, Keiran was filled with regret. He regretted provoking Jared. I should have just left the trial tower!

In the end, it was a wall of fire, and shields appeared before Keiran.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3728-Thud! Thud! Thud!

The arrow whizzed through several shields in a row, finally shattering the firewall in an instant.

Keiran's heart pounded with terror. Left with no choice, he bit down hard on his tongue, spitting out a mouthful of blood essence.

In an instant, his blood essence froze, and then, just as the arrow was about to strike, a violent explosion occurred.

The aura of terror surged like a flood, wildly spreading in all directions. Indeed, it was this aura that brought the arrow's flight to a halt.

However, the aura emanating from Keiran was visibly diminishing at a rapid pace.

In a desperate bid to survive, Keiran utilized all his blood essence within himself.

Although he managed to stay alive, he had no chance of advancing further. His strength was likely to decline.

With a menacing glare, Keiran shot Jared a look, then swiftly moved forward to seize the gemstone that shimmered with a green glow.

As a surge of aura flowed into the gemstone, Keiran's form started to fade.

Ultimately, he was transported away.

Seeing that, Jared quickly stowed away his Divine Bow and hurriedly pursued.

He didn't anticipate that even with Divine Bow in his hands, Keiran managed to escape. He was determined to kill Keiran.

The moment Jared touched the gemstone, his body was instantly transported away.

Yuliya, accompanied by numerous female cultivators from Lunarius Palace, was waiting for those who would pass the test.

People were occasionally teleported out of the trial tower, but to Yuliya's surprise, Keiran never appeared.

After all, that guy was the most capable. Logically speaking, passing the test was supposed to be a breeze for him.

However, quite a few people had already passed the test, but there was still no sign of Keiran.

Yuliya couldn't help but feel a bit anxious. After all, Keiran was Selma Mueller's nephew, and Selma was an elder. If anything were to go wrong in the trial tower, Yuliya knew she would suffer the consequences.

At the same time, Yuliya was observing Jared's silhouette. He's only a Third Level Tribulator. Passing the test is supposed to be quite challenging for him!

However, Jared was neither eliminated nor did he pass, which left Yuliya utterly baffled.

At that very moment, a shadow abruptly surged from the top of the trial tower before swiftly plummeting toward the ground.

"Help! Save me!" Keiran roared and charged straight toward Yuliya.

At the same time, Jared was right on his tail, relentlessly pursuing him with Dragonslayer Sword in his hand.

Yuliya was taken aback. When she gazed at the fallen Keiran, her face was filled with bewilderment.

Upon seeing Keiran, it was clear that he looked terribly ill, his energy seemingly depleted, as if he had suffered a severe injury.

Meanwhile, Jared was gripping Dragonslayer Sword, his gaze fixed harshly on Keiran.

Yuliya, along with the other cultivators, were taken aback. How could it be that a Seventh- Level Tribulator is left in such a sorry state, pursued relentlessly by a mere Third-Level Tribulator?

“Ms. Liemann, this guy killed people inside the trial tower, and he’s after me next. You need to stop him quickly...” Keiran asked Yuliya to stop Jared.

However, Keiran did not reveal Jared’s true identity to Yuliya because he had his own plans.

At this moment, Yuliya wore a bewildered expression as she questioned Jared, “W-What’s going on here? Why did you have to kill people?” Jared pointed at Yuliya, saying assertively, “I don’t want to hurt any of you, so please step aside. He must meet his end today!”

“How audacious! This is Lunarius Palace. How dare you-” Before Yuliya could even finish her sentence, an intimidating aura unexpectedly erupted from Jared.

Yuliya paused, staring at Jared in disbelief. “Is this an aura that a Third Level Tribulator can emit?” Yuliya was utterly bewildered.

All he needed was to find his aunt.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3729-Upon seeing Keiran fleeing, Jared immediately sprang into action, chasing after him.

“How dare you? The inner court isn’t a place you can just waltz into.” Furious, Yuliya stepped forward, effectively stopping Jared in his tracks. Jared’s brows furrowed as he pointed his Dragonslayer Sword toward Yuliya. “Step aside, or face death...” Jared radiated a murderous intent, his gaze chillingly terrifying.

It seemed like in just a fleeting moment, he could end Yuliya’s life.

Yuliya felt the terrifying murderous intent emanating from Jared, causing her to freeze in shock. Her body even started to tremble slightly.

Upon seeing Yuliya’s state, Jared chose not to say anything. Instead, he passed by her and pursued Keiran.

This time, Yuliya didn't give chase. She had this gut feeling that if she did, Jared would indeed kill her.

Upon seeing Jared catching up, Keiran was internally consumed by panic.

His strength was steadily declining at that time because he had completely exhausted his blood essence from within.

If Jared were to catch up with him, Jared could easily slay him with a single stroke of his sword.

"Who's there? Who dares to intrude into the inner court of Lunarius Palace?" Just as Keiran was about to reach the inner court of Lunarius Palace, suddenly, two inner court disciples from within the palace blocked his path.

"Make way! I'm Ms. Mueller's nephew. I have a token!" In haste, Keiran presented his token. "I came to look for my aunt..." Upon seeing the token, the two inner court disciples could only step aside, allowing Keiran to enter the inner court of Lunarius Palace.

As soon as he stepped through the inner court, Keiran began to shout, "Aunt Selma, help! Save me!" This left many female cultivators from Lunarius Palace looking at him with faces full of surprise.

At this moment, Jared had already reached the inner court of Lunarius Palace.

Two disciples stationed at the gate stopped him, sternly questioning, "Who are you? You are not allowed to barge into the inner court of the palace!" "Move away. I don't want to hurt you!" Jared said with a chillingly cold expression.

An inner court disciple glared furiously at Jared and roared, "How audacious! A mere Third Level Tribulator daring to spout such reckless words!" They were all Sixth Level Tribulators, yet Jared had the audacity to speak to them like that.

Jared didn't utter another word. Instead, he let his Dragonslayer Sword do the talking with a swift strike.

Roar!

The sword energy surged like a dragon, roaring incessantly as it charged straight toward the two unsuspecting disciples.

At this point, both of the inner court disciples were completely taken aback.

“C-Could this be the sword energy released by a Third Level Tribulator?” “It’s terrifying! Hide quickly...” The two inner court disciples swiftly dodged to either side.

In truth, Jared did not wish to hurt them. All he wanted was for them to clear the path.

While the two inner court disciples were dodging, Jared suddenly burst into the inner court.

The person in question was none other than Keiran’s aunt, Selma, an elder of Lunarius Palace.

Upon seeing his aunt, Keiran immediately descended from mid-air and, with a face full of grievance, knelt before Selma. “Aunt Selma, help me! Someone wants to kill me...”

“Aunt Selma, it’s Jared. He intends to take my life. In the trial tower, I had to exert all my blood essence just to survive. He’s caught up with me now!” Keiran exclaimed in alarm.

While speaking, he looked back, his body trembling with extreme fear.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3730-Upon hearing this, Keiran instantly understood. It turned out that his entrance into the trial tower was all due to Yuliya’s scheming. She tried to destroy me through excessive praise!

With that in mind, Keiran wished he could give Yuliya a good thrashing right then and there.

In a hushed tone, Keiran said, “Aunt Selma, Jared has arrived. I can sense his aura. This guy is the one Demon Seal Alliance has been hunting for. If we manage to kill him, we can claim the century-long offerings. I’ve only told you about this matter. You mustn’t share it with anyone else. If things go as planned, the century-long tribute of Demon Seal Alliance will belong to our family alone.” At this point in time, Keiran was surprisingly still contemplating the century-long offerings from Demon Seal Alliance.

However, he was then within the inner court of Lunarius Palace, with Selma’s protection. Keiran was confident that Jared simply could not harm him.

“What? This guy is the one that Demon Seal Alliance has been tirelessly pursuing? That’s fantastic!” Selma gave a cold laugh and said, “Hide behind me, and watch how I avenge you!” Keiran took refuge behind Selma, and soon after, Jared emerged, landing in front of Selma.

Selma gave Jared a thorough once-over and was taken aback to discover that Jared was merely a Third Level Tribulator.

“Brat, did you injure my nephew?” Selma questioned Jared.

Jared glanced at Keiran, who was hiding behind Selma, and nodded. “I don’t just intend to injure him. I plan on killing him...” Once Jared finished speaking, he didn’t hesitate to bring down his sword.

The terrifying aura of the sword energy surprisingly converged on Keiran from all directions.

“How audacious of you! To dare lay a hand on someone within the inner court of Lunarius Palace, right in front of me!” Selma hadn’t anticipated that Jared, a Third Level Tribulator, would be so audacious. Thus, with a swift wave of her hand, layers of frost mist instantly appeared around her, effectively blocking Jared’s sword energy.

Jared gazed at Selma, fully aware that he had to give it his all. He knew he had to find a way to kill Keiran.

Otherwise, Keiran would surely reveal his identity. Jared sheathed his Dragonslayer Sword, an ominous aura continuously radiating from him.

Suddenly, the world plunged into darkness, as if signaling the end of days. A blanket of ominous clouds unexpectedly engulfed the sky, casting a gloomy shadow over the entire Lunarius Palace.

Everyone stared in astonishment at the sudden transformation of the sky. Their shock was beyond words.

Amidst the ominous dark clouds, flashes of lightning and peals of thunder roared while Jared’s body gradually levitated. His form was enveloped in a halo of electricity, resonating with the stormy spectacle in the blackened sky.

Right then, a glimmer of light slowly emerged from Jared’s eyes.

The lightning nascence within him was continually radiating outward. Bolts of lightning flickered in and out of sight, and soon, all of them were converging toward Jared.

Jared slowly raised his hand and pressed it down toward Keiran.

Everyone watched as Jared's palm thrummed with electricity, all the surrounding lightning seemed to be drawn toward his hand.

Jared's palm seemed like a vortex, ceaselessly absorbing the surrounding lightning.

"What kind of technique is this? It's too terrifying!" "Is it possible for a Third Level Tribulator to pull off such a technique?" Everyone looked up at Jared.

"Thunder Palm!" With a sweep of his hand, Jared made his move.

In the palm of his hand, the lightning power roared down, instantly tearing through the void.

The potency of Thunder Palm, bolstered by the lightning nascence, was effectively doubled.