I am a quadrillionaire chapter 2822-o offer him an explanation.”

“A reason? Master Jagger, I know you have a solution, right? Please help Village Pescado! Otherwise, thousands of us will have to wait for death!” Cy begged.

Jagger pretended to be helpless on the surface, but he was smirking in his heart.

“I have a solution, but I don’t know if you will accept it!”

“Master Jagger, just tell me. As long as you tell us, no matter what it is, we will accept it. I hope you will give Village Pescado a way to survive,” Cy replied quickly.

“Okay! Since you said so, I won’t keep you in suspense anymore. I want Peach to follow me from now on so that I will have a relationship with Village Pescado.

When my father investigates, I can use this as a reason. I believe he can’t find fault with this. What do you think?”

After Jagger finished, he picked up the teacup and took a sip, expressionlessly waiting for the other party’s reply.

The room was silent.

Everyone understood what Jagger was asking for.

Cy, who was originally excited, became silent.

There was a fierce struggle in his heart.

He wondered, ‘Should we sacrifice our small family for the sake of everyone, or should we sacrifice everyone for the sake of our small family?’ It was a difficult decision indeed.

Maverick was chuckling bitterly to himself.

He thought, ‘Master Jagger always has his ways.

'He doesn't need to use force to have someone handing everything to him on a silver platter.' Woodrow's mind was blank.

He wanted to make Peach his granddaughter-in-law, but why is Jagger sticking his nose in this?

Yet, he could not say anything about this. What was going on?

Peach's heart felt tight, and tears rolled from her eyes.

'What should I do?' She wondered. 'What the hell should I do? Should I marry Master Jagger? If I don't, how would the villagers in Village Pescado survive?' On one side were the villagers she had known her whole life, and on the other side was her happiness.

Peach had no idea what to do.

At that moment, the room was silent.

No one spoke.

However, Jagger was not in a hurry, so he just sat there and waited.

Occasionally, his eyes would land on Peach, and then he would feel a fervent heat in his heart.

Soon, he could have this stunning beauty.

Even though he had been with countless women, Peach's innocence attracted him.

After he got her, he would dress her nicely and train her for a few years. In the end, she would definitely not be inferior to Jade.

Jagger was not worried that Cy would say no.

What was the life of a girl compared to the lives of thousands of villagers?

Even if Cy refused, Jagger had another plan.

Except for Jade. Jagger would certainly get any girl he fancied

I am a quadrillionaire chapter 2823-An hour later, Cy and his team went home.

The villagers who followed along noticed something was wrong with the village chief and Peach. Both looked as if they were in a bad mood, so they did not dare to ask.

They traveled back in silence.

Eventually, Cy did not decide but left the choice to Peach since he was not only the village chief of Village Pescado but also Peach's grandfather.

Influenced by tremendous pressure that would affect the lives and deaths of thousands of villagers in Village Pescado, the little girl could only go against her wishes and agree to Master Jagger.

However, she had a condition. She would only fulfill her promise after all the villagers in Village Pescado had been given work in Village Pott.

From then on, she would follow Master Jagger and be his maid.

In response, Jagger patted his chest and promised that as soon as the villagers of Village Pescado arrived at Village Pott, they could start working and exchange their labor to feed the rest of the villagers.

As the younger chief, it would be so easy for him to arrange such a thing.

After watching Cy and Peach leave, Jagger went home contentedly.

Now, all he had to do was wait for the villagers of Village Pescado to move over, and then he could get his hands on this beauty.

Woodrow and Maverick were left with bitter looks on their faces.

With Jagger around, they would not dare speak, let alone put forward their opinions.

Jagger never asked if Woodrow and Maverick agreed.

In his opinion, he was the only person in Village Pott worthy of a girl like Peach.

Who was Maverick?

He was just a lackey whom he could get rid of any time he wanted.

Besides, could any random person go after the woman Jagger was after?

This matter had come to an end, and both sides finally got the results they wanted.

The only person who felt sorrowful was Peach.

She sacrificed herself to find a way for thousands of villagers in Village Pescado to survive.

When the villagers of Village Pescado moved to Village Pott, she would completely lose her freedom and become a maid to Jagger.

With Peach's status, she was not even qualified to marry Jagger.

As the younger chief, Jagger would have to marry someone who was well matched and capable of helping him.

He could not marry a woman of low status with such fanfare, no matter how beautiful this woman was.

If their statuses were not equal, Jagger would be the laughingstock.

Cy also felt bad.

The granddaughter he had always treasured would soon be serving another man.

Although this was what all women had to go through in life, Peach was obviously unwilling to accept it so quickly.

In other words, she did not want to accept this man.

However, Cy had thought this through.

If Village Pescado could not find a way to survive, it would also be very difficult for him to survive with a girl like Peach.

He was old and had lost the courage he once had.

On the other hand, Peach was so beautiful, and if she showed her face outside, she would definitely be a target for people with evil intentions.

Just like what was happening now.

I am a quadrillionaire chapter 2824-So, perhaps following Master Jagger was a good choice.

Although she would not get a status, at least she did not have to worry about survival or going hungry.

At the same time, it could also help the thousands of villagers in Village Pescado.

So, it could be considered a good place to end up.

A week later, the group returned to Village Pescado.

Peach said nothing in those seven days. She was in sharp contrast to when she first left. It was like they were two different people.

Cy knew that she had not thought this through, and she could not accept such a result.

However, what could they do?

They agreed to Master Jagger, and it was too late to change their minds.

Moreover, if they changed their minds, what would happen to the thousands of villagers in Village Pescado?

Those who could work could still survive, but the old and weak, the women and children, could only wait to die.

After returning to Village Pescado, Cy asked several of his trusted aides to inform the villagers that an emergency village meeting was to be held immediately.

There was not much food left in Village Pescado, so they had to rush to Village Pott as soon as possible and find a place nearby to stay.

Generally speaking, the journey from Village Pescado to Village Pott only took about seven days.

However, with thousands of villagers relocating on such a large scale, they would definitely need more time. Maybe even more than ten days.

So, time was very tight, and they could not delay this any longer.

Otherwise, if they ran out of food and they had not arrived at Village Pott, they would go hungry.

It would be fine for the youngsters to starve for a few days, but children and the elderly were much weaker, so they would surely not be able to bear it.

Peach did not go to the emergency meeting, but instead, she quietly went to the cellar alone.

As she looked at David, still unconscious on the bed, she burst into tears again.

Then, she laid on David and cried loudly.

In the past few days, she had just cried silently. She did not dare to cry out loud in case her grandfather heard her. Now, she was finally able to cry properly.

Peach wanted to release all the grievances in her heart.

After a while, David's chest was soaked with tears.

"Why won't you wake up? I will be gone if you don't wake up, and I don't know if I will have time to come back to see you in the future. Maybe this farewell means we will never see each other again for the rest of our lives. I want to talk to you and listen to your voice so badly. Too bad my wish will never come true.

"But it's fine because I will get married soon, and I won't know how to act if I get to know you too. Don't worry, I will always remember you. I was the happiest when I took care of you. Every day, I will wake up and go to sleep with your face in my mind. I think this is what it feels like to have a crush.

"I will bury this feeling deep in my heart, and when I get older, I will recall it slowly. I know we are not from the same world because Grandpa told me you're a big shot who can fly. I really wish you could take me flying when you wake up."

Peach laid on David's chest as she sobbed and talked to herself.

She probably also thought David would never wake up.

More than half a year has passed.

A normal person would have starved to death long ago if he had slept for such a long time without eating or drinking.

If David were not still breathing, Cy and Peach would have already buried him.

As Peach was still crying and venting everything in her heart, the man beneath her opened his eyes.

David was confused after he opened his eyes.

After all, he had a battle with Heavenly Overlord Lufian a few years ago. In the process, he detonated his clones more than ten times and caused his mind power to be severely damaged.

So, he had to go into a deep sleep to recover.

He was not completely awake. His subconscious mind figured that it would not be good to continue sleeping. If he encountered any danger, he would not have any power to fight back.

So, he woke up a part of his mind power to maintain his bodily functions.

That way, he could at least know what was happening in the outside world and could deal with any problem in time.
