I am a quadrillionaire chapter 2831-bird was killed immediately and plummeted from the air.

The man sitting cross-legged on the big bird suddenly opened his eyes on hearing the squawk. Before he could figure out what was going on, his body began to plummet.

Without any time to think, he stood up quickly and jumped out.

Man and the bird parted ways.

David grabbed the bird before it hit the ground and ran off into the distance, disappearing in the blink of an eye.

The entire process happened very quickly.

The members of the Avian Troops were in a state of complete confusion.

After a while, they finally recovered and began to look for the big bird that had fallen.

However, no matter how hard they searched, they could not find it even if they dug in the ground.

The team scoured the place, and yet they found nothing.

After that, they gathered together in confusion.

They did not know how he should explain this after they went back.

The birds were called Blackwing. They were large and were very wild.

Therefore, it was not easy to raise an obedient Blackwing.

It must be artificially fed the moment it hatched and slowly domesticated.

Even so, the success rate was low.

Blackwings were more precious than humans.

The people sitting on them could die, but not Blackwings.

One must know that there were less than a hundred Blackwings in the entire Village Pott.

Although the Avian Troops formed by Blackwing were not large in number, they were a force that could even intimidate the nearby large cities.

However, they had lost one now.

The members of the Village Pott Avian Troops were stunned and at a loss.

“What should I do? 78 is missing!” One of them asked in a panic.

He was the man who just jumped away. 78 was the number of his Blackwing.

“What happened just now? Tell me,” the captain asked in a deep voice.

“I didn’t see clearly. I only heard 78 squawking in pain, and then I started to fall.

He must have been seriously injured. As for how he was injured, I don’t know,” the owner of 78 said.

“Some powerhouse is eyeing our Blackwings,” the captain said through gritted teeth.

“So what do we do now?”

“Let’s go back immediately! We’ll report the situation to the village chief truthfully and ask him to decide.”

The troop set off and flew in the direction of Village Pott.

A Blackwing was very strong, so it would have no problem transporting two people.

After David got far enough away, he found a stream and began to pluck, clean, and light a fire for the Blackwing. Finally, he roasted the cleaned bird on the fire.

Since the bird could bear the weight of a person and fly in the air, it was huge.

After cleaning the bird, it still weighed dozens of pounds.

With wings fully spread, it would span at least 3 meters.

After a while, the bird started sizzling with oil after getting roasted.

David pulled off a small piece of roasted meat and put it in his mouth.

At that moment, he only had one word in his mind.

Yummy!

I am a quadrillionaire chapter 2832-and eating the Blackwing they were so proud of.

After roasting, David broke off one wing and ate it. Then, he took off his coat and washed it in the stream. Once he was done, he wrapped up the remaining bird and rushed to Village Pescado.

He was not hungry anyway, so he would just taste it.

He should reserve the rest for Old Master Cy and Peach.

They probably had never eaten such delicious food!

Just thinking about it delighted David.

When David returned to Village Pescado, he could see a crowd outside Old Master Cy's house from a distance.

They were all villagers of Village Pescado.

Hence, he did not approach them and hid in a corner.

After listening to what they said, David understood.

These villagers came to Old Master Cy because they wanted Old Master Cy to lead them to Village Pott as soon as possible.

After all, Jagger had already sent people to urge him. If Jagger were infuriated, Village Pescado's way out would be blocked again.

No one wanted to go hungry, especially the sick and elderly who could not contribute to the labor force.

Faced with pressure from thousands of people, Cy had no choice.

In the end, he could only ask everyone to go back to prepare their luggage, and they would set off immediately.

After all the villagers left, David went back quietly.

Cy and Peach were sitting at the table dejectedly.

Now that things had reached this point, they could only accept their fate.

They initially expected that after David regained consciousness, he could help Village Pescado overcome the difficulties so they would not have to seek refuge in Village Pott.

Unexpectedly, he lost his memory.

So now, they had no choice but to move to Village Pott.

When David walked in, Cy and Peach thought he was a villager and did not look at him.

Cy asked, "Is there anything else? If there's nothing, go back and get ready! We will set off to Village Pott early tomorrow morning."

It was not until David placed the roasted bird on the table that the grandfather and granddaughter looked up.

When Peach saw David, she finally smiled and squealed happily, "David!"

David stroked Peach's head and said lovingly, "Peach, I brought you something good. Try some."

Only then were the two attracted by the aroma.

When David opened the package, the whole room was instantly filled with aroma.

Peach looked at the half-roasted bird and swallowed.

She had never smelled such delicious food in her life.

“What are you waiting for? Dig in! I’ve already eaten some and left some for you. Old Master Cy, you should also eat some. It’s tasty and is more nutritious than dried fish. Plus, it will replenish your body,” David urged.

Cy and Peach could no longer control themselves in front of such delicious food and began to wolf it down.

If someone else brought it for them, they might refuse it.

However, since it was from David, there was no need for that.

Although David had only just woken up, Peach had been going to the cellar several times every day for the past six months and had become very familiar with him.

David could not be happier when he saw Peach and Cy enjoying themselves.

Finally, he did something significant for the two
