How Death Became My Rebirth by Evelyn Florence (Cassandra) Chapter 9

Chapter 9

"Please watch your mouth, Miss. I'm here just to pick up Ms. Cas sandra Yates after school. Is there a problem? I'm nothing but a driver." Hugo looked unhappy.

'It seems like any random nobody dares to provoke Ms. Cas sandra Yates nowadays," Hugo mused.

"Mister, just let my sister go. She is only 18 years old. You are not suitable for her. Don't ruin her!" Yulissa stood in front of Hugo and pleaded as if she was the one who was being humiliated.

Hugo was speechless and wondered if Yulissa even understood Clusian, her mother tongue.

"What? The girl looks sprightly. I didn't expect her to be a mistress."

"That man is about the age of her father."

"Young people nowadays are really wild."

"Look at the girl's sister. She's really considerate and cares about the girl."

"That's right. Look at that girl. She looks impatient and even seems to hate her sister. There's so much drama in a rich family!"

"Hey! What's wrong with you guys? Isn't the younger sister the one talking all the time? Did she give the girl a chance to talk?"

"The younger sister has covered all bases. What else does the girl have left to say?"

"Is it the younger sister's fault? The girl has gone astray. What's wrong with her sister offering a few pieces of advice? The girl doesn't know how to be grateful, but as a bystander, wouldn't you understand the situation?"

The onlookers were happy to fan the flames.

"Hugo, let's go. Let's not waste our time on this kind of person." Cas sandra ignored Yulissa and Raymond without even raising her eyelids.

"Cas sandra! Don't push your luck. You're coming home with me!" Raymond had the worst temper and liked to use his status to pressure people, which disgusted Cas sandra.

The Yates family owed her a life, and she was determined to get it back.

“It’s sad that you’re already suffering from hearing loss at such a young age. You can’t understand what people are saying, Mr. Raymond Yates,” said Casandra sarcastically.

Having said that, she walked to the car.

Hugo picked her up in a Bentley Grand Prix, one of only 10 cars in the world.

Hugo had no choice. It was the most unostentatious car he could find in the garage.

Each of Casandra’s cars was worth millions of dollars, and even her motorcycle was valued at around 2 million dollars after modifications were made.

Raymond wanted to rush up and say something, but the driver had already started to drive, leaving him with nothing but exhaust fumes.

Yulissa was furious, but she still pretended to care about Casandra.

“Ray, did Casandra make some friends we don’t know? That car... It doesn’t look cheap. Is she... Ray, can you go and find her? It’s dangerous out there, and she’s a girl!” Yulissa grabbed Raymond’s hand and said pleadingly.

“Lisa, ignore her. I’ll take you home first. Just leave this to me, okay?” Raymond’s tone suddenly changed, turning very patient and gentle.

“You mean it?”

“Yes, I’ll take care of it.” Raymond pinched Yulissa’s cheek and said softly, “You must be tired of studying all day. How about I take you to the racing club tonight?”

“Are you competing tonight? I want to go and cheer for you!”

Raymond was a racer and boxer. The team was established by the Zelinski family, and he was the leader.

Yulissa often watched Raymond practice and compete, and almost everyone of the team knew her.

They regarded Yulissa as Lady Luck because whenever she was around, Raymond would always win.

In the car, Hugo exclaimed, “Ms. Yates, the Yates family has gone too far! How dare they spread rumors!” The more Hugo thought about it, the angrier he became.

He didn’t really care about his image at all, as he was aged. The young lady of the Yates family was very skilled at telling tall tales.

'How dare Yulissa scandalize Casandra? I think the Yates family deserves to be taught a lesson. Well, I'll put them on the blacklist of Whitecrane Hall once we get home. In the future, all the medicines in Whitecrane Hall will not be sold to the Yates family! They don't deserve any of it!' thought Hugo decisively.

Whitecrane Hall combined traditional and modern medicine with its primary focus on traditional medicine. Hugo was the person in charge. However, anyone familiar with Whitecrane Hall knew that Faye, the miracle doctor, was the true owner who worked behind the scenes.

Once someone was blacklisted by Whitecrane Hall, no matter how difficult the diseases or dire the situation of his family, they could not receive treatment from the miracle doctor, even if they were willing to spend all their money.

"They're nearing their ends and won't be able to thrive for long. Let them say what they want." Casandra could not be bothered by this.

She no longer cared about anything but the hatred she had.

She was going to break the pride of the Yates family bit by bit and pay them back for all the grievances she had suffered at their hands.

"Yes." Hugo knew that Casandra was plotting something big.

"By the way, Ms. Yates, the one who placed the order on the dark web is the current head of the Zelinski family, Kenneth Zelinski. Jeremiah has conducted an investigation and found that Kenneth is trying to save one of his friends."

He mentioned the matter to Casandra at noon and investigated it as soon as he went back.

The Zelinski family didn't conceal their information on the dark web.

Faye abided by one rule. She was not going to save a heinous circumstance.. person under any

So, she always checked out the patients' backgrounds before rescuing them. To her, it weren't about wealth or poverty, but about right and wrong. And she was the one to decide who was in the wrong.

Casandra fell silent.

It was him.

She wondered who would make him go through all the effort and trouble, even asking for help on the dark web.

“I will take the case. The treatment is scheduled at three in the afternoon on Saturday.”

As for why a case taken on Monday could only be conducted on Saturday, that was because the miracle doctor still had classes to attend.

“About the consultation fee...”

Chapter 9

The consultation fee offered by the Zelinski family was 1.2 billion dollars and Hugo didn't know whether Casandra was satisfied or not.

“I'll take whatever amount the Zelinski family is paying.”

This was a token of appreciation for him collecting her body in her previous life.

She also recalled the bodyguard of the Yates family who dug a hole and laid her to rest, protecting her from being eaten by the wolves in her previous life.

Casandra was thinking of poaching him from the Yates family later when she had the chance.

‘Good people deserve good rewards and not to suffer in the Yates family, thought Casandra.

“Okay, I'll reply to the Zelinski family later.”

Hugo still felt that something was off. When Casandra mentioned she was going to take a break previously, she stated that she was not going to accept any requests.

Today was no different. When she heard that someone had asked for the miracle doctor to treat a patient, Casandra wanted to say no at first.

However, she hesitated when she heard that it was from the Zelinski family.

Has she decided to make a comeback in the medical field? If that's the case, it would be great, thought Hugo.

“I need to go out tonight. Hugo, go to rest,” said Casandra.

“Do you have something to attend to, Ms. Yates?”

“Well, there's a game tonight.”

Casandra was bothered by it.

Although Jeremiah was usually gentle and elegant, he was extremely obsessed with racing, but he didn't join any teams and liked to race by himself.

Jeremiah had been begging her for a long time to attend tonight's race.

Finally, she relented and decided to go and have a look.

If anything, she could consider it as a leisure activity.

Casandra remembered that at this time in her previous life, Raymond and Yulissa came home with a trophy for car racing at night. She even praised it enviously, but Raymond just snorted in disdain at her compliment.

She also remembered that Jeremiah's hand had been broken in a car accident at that time because of the race.

She didn't offer him any treatment at that time as she had quit, and he had lost contact with her. Hence, even though his hand was cured, the complication caused him to have no chance of racing for the remainder of his life.

In this life, she could not let it happen again.

Hugo wondered, 'What kind of game happens at night? Is it racing?'

"Ms. Yates, are you going racing?" Hugo asked uncertainly.

'I have to deal with Jeremiah after he comes back. How dare he take Ms. Yates out racing? What if she gets hurt?' Hugo mused.
