

Married At First Sight

Married At First Sight Chapter 3387-“Uncle Jimenez, I also listen to my wife.” Darrell understood the deep meaning in Old Mr. Jimenez’s eyes and immediately expressed his attitude. He was also a man who doted on his wife.

Old Mr. Jimenez smiled with satisfaction and said, “It can be seen that you dote on Miss Audrey very much.”

Audrey felt warm in her heart.

Old Mr. Jimenez was like a member of mother of Audrey’s family.

If her parents were still alive, given Old Mr. Jimenez’s status and the love he showed her and her sister, he would indeed be considered her family.

Both the mother and the father said that Old Mr. Jimenez was the most loyal, and there was no need to worry about him betraying them.

Old Mr. Jimenez often helped Audrey’s mother with things, and sometimes the two of them were alone together to discuss countermeasures. Her father was not worried about this and did not feel resentful.

In Audrey’s impression, her mother was in poor health and often had to stay in bed to rest. Her father was a gentle man. He always cared about her mother’s health. Whenever her mother feels a little unwell, her father gets very nervous.

Audrey didn’t understand love when she was young. Later, she recalled how her parents got along and felt that there was real affection between them.

Unlike Clarissa and Holden, who have no real feelings for each other even after being husband and wife for decades,

Clarissa treated Holden as a tool. After using him, she could throw him away if she wanted to. If she didn’t want to throw him away, she would just keep him like a cat or dog. It didn’t cost her any money anyway.

She controlled Holden’s wallet too tightly.

Little do people know that the tighter the control, the more likely accidents are to happen.

Of course, it was also because Clarissa was too strict that she was able to use Holden to destroy her marriage of her with Holden and mess up the situation in the Farrell family mansion.

Audrey said, “Mr. Stone has always been very kind to me. When my parents-in-law were alive, they were also very kind to me and treated me like their own daughter. Without their genuine love and trust, I would not have achieved such brilliant results when I was young.”

At first, her mother-in-law had a lot of prejudice against her.

Before, Darrell fell in love with her and had no idea of marrying her.

As the president’s wife, her mother-in-law had met her and knew her abilities. At that time, she was very kind to her and seemed to admire her very much.

When Darrell fell in love with her and insisted on marrying her, her mother-in-law changed her attitude.

Audrey never resented her mother-in-law, either in the past or later.

She was now a mother-in-law. From her perspective, she could understand her mother-in-law’s strong reaction at the time and her inability to accept that her beloved son would marry an orphan with no background.

Not to mention that the business is wealthy; even in ordinary families, there are many mothers-in-law who don’t want their daughter-in-law to be an orphan. No matter how capable she is, in the eyes of her mother-in-law, she is just an employee, a worker, a millionaire—far away from being a wealthy family.

So when she married into a business family, she was disliked by her mother-in-law in various ways, but she could accept and understand her mother-in-law’s behavior.

As long as her mother-in-law didn’t cross her bottom line, she wouldn’t take her mother-in-law’s various troubles seriously.

However, her father-in-law and Darrell treated her with all their might.

If it weren’t for the unconditional support from her father-in-law and Darrell, she wouldn’t have been able to accompany Darrell in the business world and become a strong woman in the business world.

She had such abilities and needed a place to display them.

Stone Group was the place where she could display her abilities.

Later, the Stone Group encountered a crisis. She turned the tide and helped the Stone Group overcome the crisis, thus preserving the Stone family's ancestral business.

Because she gave birth to two sons and a daughter, her mother-in-law finally accepted her.

Ever since her mother-in-law accepted her, she has truly thrived in the business world.

Married At First Sight Chapter 3388-Her mother-in-law especially loved Elisa, and Elisa's personality was quite similar to her grandmother's.

"Miss Audrey, you are too modest. You have completely inherited the abilities of the head of the family. You can shine wherever you are."

There was pride in Old Mr. Jimenez's words—the kind of pride that is the best that can be felt in her children.

Audrey and Darrell helped Old Mr. Jimenez out of the room. Audrey smiled and said, "I don't know the status of the Farrell family's successor. Unless I start my own business, I need a mentor to recognize a good horse. As a worker, there are too many things that cannot be decided by me."

She later had her own company.

After Clive took over, she handed over her company to him. She retired and stayed at home to accompany her old husband and spend her old age in peace.

She also worried about her children's marriage from time to time.

She didn't have to worry too much about Clive, and she didn't have to worry about Elisa now.

The youngest son, Leland, was the only one who gave Audrey the most headaches. When it came to the matter of marriage, Leland was really adamant, and no matter how much she persuaded him, he wouldn't listen. When she wanted to arrange a blind date for him, he just wouldn't go. When she asked the girl to look for him, he either found an excuse to slip away or dressed up as a homeless man and told the girl that he was an unkempt man.

The blind dates that Audrey arranged for Leland were all rich girls from Wiltspoon.

Which rich young lady would be interested in the unkempt appearance of Leland, the second young master Stone?

It had since been left unresolved.

The main reason was that Leland rarely appeared in the upper-class circle. He did not need to take over the family business because Clive was too capable. He only needed to do what he liked, and he was often away from home.

Sometimes he didn't go home for a year or half a year.

Not many people understand Leland. They thought he was the kind of person who didn't care about his appearance. When they compared him with Clive, they were greatly disappointed.

Gradually, the ladies in Wiltspoon were no longer willing to introduce girlfriends to Leland.

Some people were worried that Elisa was difficult to get along with.

After all, Elisa didn't have a very good reputation in the upper-class society of Wiltspoon City. It has only improved now, but her previous image of being arrogant and rude has been deeply rooted in people's minds.

"I heard a child laughing."

Old Mr. Jimenez heard Sonny's laughter and couldn't help but speak.

He actually liked children very much.

When the previous matriarch was still alive, after he had finished his work, he liked to play with the two little girls. Miss Audrey could be said to have grown up sitting on his shoulders until she was eight years old. Miss Harlow also liked to stick to him.

Because he loved the two young ladies as if they were his own daughters.

The children's hearts were pure, and they could feel his genuine love for them, so they naturally clung to him.

The previous matriarch was murdered, and he was hunted down. After being rescued by the old doctor and his friends, he lived with them for decades and watched their apprentices grow up. Those guys were very naughty when they were young, but fortunately, they were also sensible.

Nowadays, those naughty kids have become influential figures in their respective industries.

"It's Liberty's son, Sonny, a three-year-old child who can't calm down. He looks a lot like Liberty. Seeing him is like seeing Liberty when she was a child."

Old Mr. Jimenez said happily, "That's good; that's good; Harlow left behind descendants, which is a little consolation; she..."

His smile disappeared in an instant, and he said sadly: "If I had found you two sisters earlier, Miss Harlow would not have been in trouble, and she would still be fine."

Audrey was also heartbroken after losing her only sister, Harlow. But she still had to comfort Uncle Jimenez, for fear that he was too old, his emotions were volatile, and that he might have problems again.

"Liberty and Serenity are very good sisters. They have sought justice for the injustice that Harlow suffered in the past."
