

A WARRIOR UNDEFEATABLE/

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3921-The Perks Of Being Wealthy At that moment, a young man who looked to be in his twenties, wearing a blue robe and a jade crown, walked over.

“Master, why are you back so late? The sect master has sent several messages inviting you to the council hall for a meeting,” the young man said anxiously upon seeing Dario.

“Mr. Garrido has only been in charge for a few days, and there’s already a daily meeting? Can’t we have any personal space?” Dario replied, clearly annoyed.

“Master, keep your voice down and stop complaining. While you were away, Elder Mr. Moreau was punished by Mr. Garrido. The meeting is probably about that,” the young man whispered, glancing around cautiously.

“What? Orson was punished? Why?” Dario exclaimed in shock.

“I have no idea. It’s a secret, and I only overheard some disciples from the council meeting talking about it,” the young man replied.

“I’d better go check on this. How did Orson get into trouble?” Dario said.

He was about to head to the council meeting. Suddenly, he remembered Jared and pointed at him, saying, “Judd, this is Axel Chadwick, here to join the Violet Flame Sect. Take him for the assessment, and once he passes, let him work under me.” Judd Davies looked Jared over and then nodded. “I understand, Master. You should hurry. If you’re late and Mr. Garrido punishes you, it will be troublesome.” “He wouldn’t dare. I’m not as easy to bully as Orson,” Dario said defiantly, but he quickly ran toward the council meeting.

As Dario ran off, Judd smiled and patted Jared’s shoulder. “Buddy, you must have given my master quite a bit to bring you directly to the inner court disciple assessment.” Jared, understanding the hint, promptly took out several purple spirit coins and handed them to Judd. “Judd, once I join the Violet Flame Sect, we’ll be fellow disciples. I hope you can look out for me.” Judd’s eyes widened in surprise at the coins, then he beamed. “No problem at all. Everything’s negotiable. I’ll cover for you.” To Jared, a handful of purple spirit coins was nothing, but for ordinary sect disciples, it was a fortune.

No wonder Judd was so excited.

“Axel, I’ll take you to the assessment,” Judd said enthusiastically.

Jared had yet to pass the assessment yet, but Judd was already acting as though he had passed.

“Axel, don’t worry. The inner court disciple assessment isn’t too strict. As you’re a Fourth Level Tribulator, you’ll pass easily. What does your family do? Why did you come to the Violet Flame Sect? The sect has a lot of rules, but it’s peaceful here. Being in the heart of the desert, we rarely get disturbed, and the climate is perfect for cultivating fire techniques.” Judd kept asking Jared questions animatedly, but Jared only responded with brief answers, not engaging too deeply in the conversation.

“Judd, can I ask if it’s possible to skip the assessment altogether?” Jared inquired.

“Skip the assessment?” Judd was taken aback and then panicked. “Axel, did I say something wrong to scare you off? Don’t worry, it’s really simple.

With your strength, you’ll pass for sure. Please, don’t back out.”

Additionally, since Jared was personally brought by Dario, if he left, Dario would certainly be displeased with Judd.

Judd feared he had frightened Jared, not realizing it was just a question.

For Judd, having a wealthy junior like Jared as a fellow sect member meant potential benefits.” Judd, you misunderstood. I was wondering if I could pay some spirit coins of resources to bypass the assessment,” Jared quickly explained.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3922-The Theory “Oh, I see” Judd wiped the cold sweat from his forehead, looking somewhat troubled. “Axel, there’s no precedent for this, but I’ll ask about it once we get there.” “Okay. Thank you, Judd,” Jared replied.

“Don’t mention it. We’re going to be the closest of allies from now on.” Judd patted Jared on the shoulder.

Jared wanted to avoid the assessment and use money to gain entry to keep his strength and aura concealed.

If he could bribe his way into the Violet Flame Sect, it would be ideal.

Judd led Jared to a tall building.

There was already a long queue of people outside, all waiting for the assessment to join the Violet Flame Sect.

Some were outer court disciples seeking promotion to inner court disciples.

Judd led Jared through the crowd and into the building.

Inside, Jared saw a girl in a green silk dress, holding a long sword and looking furious. "No one is taking the assessment today unless we clear this up first!" she shouted.

She blocked the door, preventing anyone from entering.

"Carla, what's going on?" Judd asked, puzzled.

Seeing Judd, the young lady looked relieved. "Judd, you came here just in time.

Thiago isn't letting us take the assessment. He insists that all outer disciples who pass must join his faction. We're not allowed to participate unless we switch from Gael's faction to Harlan's faction." "What? Is that true?" Judd frowned.

Confused, Jared whispered, "Judd, what's happening? Does this mean my assessment is off?" "Don't worry, Axel. Thiago doesn't get to decide who takes the assessment.

Even though he's favored by the current sect master, he doesn't rule the entire Violet Flame Sect," Judd said angrily.

"Judd, who is this?" Carla asked, glancing at Jared.

"Oh, this is Axel Chadwick, brought by my master for the inner circle assessment," Judd introduced quickly. "Brother, this is Carla Navarro, Mr.

Moreau's disciple." "Nice to meet you, Carla!" Jared greeted politely, then asked, "Carla, you're already an inner court disciple. Why are you here for the assessment? And who exactly is Thiago?" Judd chuckled. "Axel, even inner disciples need to climb the ranks. Carla is here for the assessment to become an inner court deacon. To be honest, I'm an inner court deacon right now. See this jade crown on my head? It's the mark of a steward," Judd said proudly.

"Thiago is the favored disciple of an elder, Mr. Harlan Garrido," Carla explained.

"Keep it down! Mr. Garrido is the sect master now. Of course, his disciple is powerful," Judd quickly reminded her.

Jared understood the situation. The transition between the old and new sect masters led to internal strife within the Violet Flame Sect.

Elders like Dario and Orson were loyal to the old sect master, Gael, and the assessments were designed to force their disciples to switch allegiances to the new sect master, Harlan.

This kind of power struggle was not uncommon in sects.

There was bound to be strife where there were forces.

Jared had seen similar conflicts in the Emerald Cauldron Sect.

“Judd, as a deacon of the Violet Flame Sect, you must address this.

Let’s confront Thiago,” Carla said, pulling Judd toward the hall.

Seeing this, Jared had no choice but to follow them.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3923-Abusing Power For Personal Gain “Thiago, what’s the meaning of this? Why won’t you let Carla take the assessment? And why must the assessed disciples join your faction?” Judd stormed into the hall, confronting a young man in white.

Thiago smirked, looking at the furious Judd. “Judd, I didn’t stop Carla from taking the assessment, and I didn’t force other disciples to join our faction. It’s their own choice. Can I control that?” “You’re lying! Just now, you stopped me from taking the assessment and said that as long as I joined your faction, you’d make it easy for me to pass the deacon assessment. You said that!” Carla exposed Thiago’s lie.

But Thiago remained calm, smiling faintly. “Carla, you must have misunderstood. As the chief examiner for this assessment, how could I say such a thing? I would never cheat or show favoritism.” “You... you shameless...” Carla was rendered speechless by Thiago’s shameless behavior. “Thiago, since you say there was no obstruction, let Carla take the assessment. And for the other inner court disciples taking the assessment, you’re not allowed to obstruct them or demand they join a team,” Judd said, suppressing his anger.

“You can take the assessment, but each person must pay five pieces of purple spirit coins,” Thiago stated.

Upon hearing this, everyone was stunned. Then Judd frowned and said, “Thiago, are you trying to make yourself money by abusing your position as the chief examiner? I’ve never heard of an assessment requiring spirit coins. This is favoritism.” “I’ve never heard of an assessment requiring spirit coins before. You’re clearly showing favoritism,” Carla exclaimed.

Other disciples undergoing the assessment also joined in the clamor.

After all, for these disciples, five purple spirit coins were indeed a huge sum of money!

“Don’t make it sound so unpleasant. When have I ever bent the rules for personal gain? This is the newly established regulation of the Violet Flame Sect.

It’s not just you. Even our faction’s disciples taking the assessment have to pay.

But these coins don't go to the sect. They're for the assessment between the two factions. Whoever wins gets the coins," Thiago said with an icy snort.

"Are you kidding? As the chief examiner, you're obviously favoring your own faction's disciples. We're already at a disadvantage," Carla immediately rebuked loudly.

Judd also frowned. He knew Thiago was deliberately setting obstacles, making it impossible for their faction's disciples to participate in the assessment.

The other side had more assessed disciples, and the chief examiner was from their faction. This was unfair. They were both the referee and the participants.

Moreover, five pieces of purple gold spirit coins per person were not something everyone could afford.

"Thiago, if you continue to obstruct the disciple assessments like this, I'll report you," Judd said angrily.

"Go ahead, I'll be waiting. This is a rule set by my master, and it's even stipulated in the sect master's order. If you report me, won't you also be reporting my master?" Thiago responded confidently.

"You..." Judd was speechless.

After all, Thiago's master was the sect master.

Such words forced their faction's disciples to re-align.

If the assessed outer and inner court disciples were all from Harlan's faction, every time, the Violet Flame Sect would be monopolized.

But Judd had no choice. This was a rule set by the sect master's order!

Despite his anger, there was nothing he could do.

"Will you take the assessment or not?"

If not, then stop causing trouble. If not, then stop causing trouble!

here," Thiago said impatiently.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3924-You Really Are So Rich Jared had remained silent the whole time, realizing that his plan to bypass the assessment by paying his way through wasn't going to work.

Unless he joined Harlan's faction, he wouldn't even be able to meet the old sect master, let alone learn the demonic fire fusion technique from him.

"Judd, forget it..." Carla said helplessly.

She couldn't afford the five pieces of purple gold spirit coins needed to participate in the assessment.

"Don't be discouraged, Carla. I'll pay for your assessment," Judd said, taking out five pieces of purple gold spirit coins.

These were given to him by Jared.

Jared watched Judd, surprised by his generosity at this moment, despite appearing quite greedy earlier.

"Judd, you..." Carla was deeply touched by Judd's gesture.

"Go take the assessment. I believe you'll succeed," Judd said, looking at Carla with determination.

Jared could see that Judd's generosity stemmed from his affection for Carla.

It was often the case that men became generous toward the women they liked.

"Judd, what about the others?" Carla looked outside at the other disciples from their faction who also wanted to take the assessment.

Judd looked embarrassed. "I can't help the others. I don't have that much money." Upon hearing this, the rest looked dejected and dispirited.

"Disciples from our faction who want to take the assessment, come forward. I'll pay the spirit coins for you," Thiago called out, then began paying for his faction's disciples.

There were more than ten disciples, and Thiago placed nearly a hundred pieces of purple gold spirit coins on the table.

"Anyone else who wants to join our faction? I'll pay for you too," Thiago announced to the disciples waiting outside.

Many raised their heads and looked hopeful, but with Judd and Carla present, none dared to step forward immediately.

Thiago was patient, knowing they would eventually come over. He waited quietly.

Judd felt incredibly awkward. He didn't want his faction's disciples to join the new sect master's faction but was unable to pay the spirit coins for them.

The atmosphere grew tense until Jared finally spoke up.

"Judd, I'll cover the assessment fees for our faction's disciples. Let them come forward," Jared said, pouring a bag of purple gold spirit coins onto the table.

The sight of the overwhelming amount of purple gold spirit coins stunned everyone.

There were well over a hundred purple- gold spirit coins!

After a moment of shock, Judd grabbed Jared's shoulder excitedly. "Axel, thank you, thank you so much!" "Axel, you're incredibly wealthy!" Carla exclaimed. Overjoyed, she hugged Jared.

This left Jared feeling awkward. After all, there were certain boundaries between men and women that shouldn't be crossed!

Moreover, Judd was fond of Carla.

Carla's soft chest pressed against Jared's chest, making him speechless.

They had just met, yet she was so forward.

Seeing this, the disciples outside rushed in to thank Jared.

They were amazed to discover a wealthy benefactor among them.

He was unbelievably wealthy!

Thiago frowned, looking at Jared with suspicion. "Judd, who is this person? He seems unfamiliar. Is he not from the Violet Flame Sect?"

"This is a new disciple taken in by my master. He told me to bring him here specifically for the assessment."

Judd replied.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3925-Taking A Gamble "Oh, so he's one of Dario's recent recruits. No wonder he's so wealthy. Dario wouldn't pay attention to any disciple without money. But being rich won't help.

I'll enforce the rules impartially. If their strength isn't up to par, they won't pass the assessment. Money might make you all bow your heads, but it won't make me corrupt," Thiago said sarcastically.

It was evident that Thiago was mocking Dario and Judd as they could do anything for money.

Judd blushed because what Thiago said was true.

"Enough chatter. Let's register them for the assessment," Judd urged Thiago to stop.

"Judd, I can allow them to participate, but your junior can only take the outer court assessment. He must progress step by step. After observing for a few years, he can take the inner court disciple assessment. That's the rule, and we can't break it," Thiago stated.

Upon hearing this, Judd was enraged. "Thiago, will you ever stop? He is a disciple personally brought by my master. He doesn't need the outer court assessment. You're doing this on purpose." "Previously, it wasn't necessary, but the rules have changed now. We must go through an outer court assessment, and even then, several years of observation are required." "You..." Judd was furious. "I'll go to the council meeting and report you. I don't believe you can dominate the Violet Flame Sect." "Go ahead, hurry up. Let's see if you can accuse me," Thiago sneered.

Despite his words, Judd didn't move. He knew that even if he did go, it would be useless.

"Thiago, what do you want? What do we need to do to let my master's disciples take the inner court disciple assessment?" Judd finally asked in resignation.

Under the circumstances, Judd had no choice but to swallow his pride!

"Well, how about this? The assessment fee for disciples from your faction is increased to ten purple gold spirit coins. How about that?" Thiago suggested.

"You..." Judd trembled with anger.

"Don't rush. If your faction's disciples win, all these spirit coins will be returned to you. What are you afraid of? Do you think your faction's disciples are worthless and have no chance of winning?" Thiago mocked.

Judd was rendered speechless by Thiago's words. He did think so, considering their small number and weak strength. How could they possibly win against the other faction?

In other words, the money they put up would just be a gift to the other faction.

“Ten purple gold spirit coins aren’t much. Are you willing to bet more?” Jared said, taking out another bag of purple gold spirit coins, containing several hundred coins at least.

“These spirit coins are all I’m willing to bet. You only need to put up half, and if you win, you take them all. If you lose, you only lose half,” Jared said to Thiago.

Thiago was taken aback. He quickly assessed Jared, who was only a Fourth Level Tribulator. How dare he speak so arrogantly?

“Axel, you...” Judd only knew that Jared was wealthy but didn’t know his actual strength, so he wanted to stop him.

After all, Jared was only a Fourth Level Tribulator.

“Axel, don’t gamble with them. Even if you’re rich, you shouldn’t give it away for free” Carla hurriedly advised Jared.

“Don’t worry, this amount of money is nothing to me,” Jared said, pretending to be cool.

Thiago’s eyes lit up. He thought Jared was just pretending to be rich and had no real skills.

This was practically giving him money. How could he refuse?

“Axel, don’t gamble with them. Even if you’re rich, you shouldn’t give it away for free” Carla hurriedly advised Jared.

Seeing Thiago’s agreement, the many disciples were astonished.

This was a huge sum, considering that these purple gold spirit coins?

were, responses that could purchase.

many items. The content is on.

Now both sides were locked in a stalemate.