The phone rang once and was then hung up.

It still said, "The number you dialed is unavailable."

Austin couldn't help but frown.

Where on earth was his sister?

All he could do was send another message to his sister. "Sister, where are you? Mom and I have arrived. Which floor are you on? We are coming to you!"

He was frantic with worry.

H Unfortunately, there was still no response from the other side.

Lady Gill frowned and asked, "What's wrong?"

Austin let out a sigh. "There have been no replies to m messages, and she's not picking up the phone either."

Lady Gill took a deep breath. "Then have someone take control of this entire building and check every one of a similar age."

Austin immediately nodded. "Okay."

Then, he went to give that task to his subordinates.

Lady Gill said, "I'll wait at the entrance. While you're here, go check on Jackson."

Austin nodded.

Lady Gill went downstairs.

Austin headed toward Jackson's ward. Halfway there, he turned back to look at Nara, his gaze dark and ominous as he said, "I suddenly realize something. Jackson must have arranged for you to be an intern on this floor, right? Well then, come over here and take good care of Jackson! Otherwise..."

Nara immediately clenched her fists, looking like she was about to cry.

Keira stopped her, saying, "Nara, you don't need to demean yourself."

Nara tightened her jaw and waved her hands.

She had to be a doctor. After all, she had studied medicine for many years just to become a skilled professional.

When she and her brother were accepted to their family was too poor to afford the tuition, so her brother gave up his chance for her.

Her brother once said that although she couldn't speak, she would definitely become a good doctor and might even be able to develop medicine to cure herself. That way, she would be able to speak and call him "brother".

For her brother's dream, Nara worked part-time and studied hard throughout the years, always ranking first in her class.

Now, she couldn't allow a moment of impulse to ruin her future.

She went straight into Jackson's ward with a fruit tray.

Upon seeing this, Keira frowned.

She hadn't forgotten the purpose of her hospital visit, so she didn't follow Nara in, but instead, she looked at Austin. "Shall we talk?"

Austin asked, "What is there to talk about?"

He looked at Keira with disdain. "There is nothing to be said between you and me!"

Keira sighed. "My brother didn't falsify that medical had tests done at three hospitals, all showing azoospermia."

Austin sneered. "And then what?"

Keira's expression grew grave as she continued. "Then yesterday, all the doctors who tested him went abroad, for the same reason as your hospital's doctor, to attend an international medical conference."

Austin was taken aback.

Keira went on. "So there must be something going on. Austin, do you want to remain in the dark? Can you get in touch with your doctor? Why don't we get this cleared up?"

Austin stared at Keira for a while before suddenly sneering. "Do you think I'm going to believe you? Keira, there is nothing we can cooperate on."

Keira frowned. "What I'm saying is true..."

"Even if it is true, what of it? I've told you this matter has nothing to do with my family, so I won't help you. The Gill family and the Olsens are sworn enemies! The two families' relations have been severed because of you!"

After saying this, Austin sneered and turned to walk toward Jackson's ward.

Keira followed behind him. "Actually, the misunderstanding between us is minor, and by now, you should understand the YX understand that Mary's child is Ellis's. She never lived a promiscuous life before. Don't you think you were wrong to slander her like that?"

Austin halted.

Keira detected a hint of change in him and pressed on persistently. " know you're not purely evil; you just wanted to boast! You are different from Jackson..."

Austin and Jackson were indeed different.

Austin had a tough side, which was why he didn't tell the truth when Ellis beat him up in the past.

Still, he usually maintained integrity in his action and dealings.

He didn't force himself on Mary although having boasted about it.

Jackson, however, forcefully made moves on a girl like Nara, who was barely twenty years old...

Austin found it despicable, and his pride wouldn't allow

451 Chapter 450

He could be reasoned with...

Austin sneered. "There's nothing different between him and me. You don't need to try and drive a wedge between us."

"I just want to cooperate with your company for once. Our families have always had a good relationship. Why can't we continue to do that?"

"And besides..."

Keira hadn't finished speaking when she heard an angry roar from m Jackson coming from the ward.

"How can you be so clumsy? You can't even handle some fruit!"

452 Chapter 451

Keira slightly halted as she frowned and peered into the room.

She caught sight of Nara, whose hands were covered in blood, which was also smeared on the apple peel she was holding. Nara's fingers trembled as she stared at the cut on her hand.

Keira's pupils contracted, and she immediately rushed in. "Nara, are you alright?"

Nara looked at Keira with tearful eyes before fixating on her trembling hand.

On her wrist was a gash from which blood was whooshing out, rendering her hand strengthless!

Keira immediately asked, "What happened?"

Nara gestured with her hand, trying to speak, but unfortunately, no one in the room understood her sign language. She wanted to write, but the right hand she used to write was cut, and she couldn't muster any strength.

Her eyes were rimmed red.

She was supposed to become a doctor; if she no longer had strength in her hand, how would she hold a scalpel?!

Her entire medical career had been destroyed!

With resentment, she turned her tearful gaze toward Jackson.

Keira immediately asked, "Did he do this?"

Nara nodded at once.

Keira then scanned the surrounding environment.

Jackson lay in bed, unable to get down, but beside Nara and on the floor were a pillow and a fruit knife.

Taking the situation in the room into account...

Keira immediately said, "Did he ask you to peel the apple and then, while you were peeling it, he hit you with a pillow, causing you to cut your wrist?"

Nara nodded tearfully.

Jackson sneered. "So what if I did that? She couldn't serve me properly! I wanted to eat an apple and asked her to peel one, and she couldn't even manage that!"

Nara cried as she looked at him.

She could do it.

But Jackson always found fault in her actions.

If the apple peel were too thick, he would scold her, accusing her of wasting food;

if it were too thin, he would still scold her, threatening to complain about her.

She had to focus on peeling, but when the knife slipped toward her wrist, a pillow suddenly struck her, causing the blade to slice her wrist.

Now, it seemed the tendon in her wrist was cut, and she couldn't exert any strength.

In a state of utter despair, Nara wept miserably. Unable to speak, she felt a suffocating sensation in her chest. All she could do was glare at Jackson and try to open her mouth desperately. She wanted to speak, but she couldn't make a sound.

Keira said, "Nara, don't be anxious. I know you've been wronged..."

But Nara shook her head as she cried.

Jackson laughed mockingly. "What wrong has she suffered? The person who was wronged here is me!"

She couldn't do her job properly. She's a doctor, right? She's supposed to hold a scalpel in the future, and she can't even peel an apple for me? If she's incompetent with a simple apple, she might as well consider a career change; we can't have her shaking and damaging the patient's body in an operating room!"

After that, Jackson turned to his assistant. "Go tell the dean and her teacher that she cut her hand while peeling an apple for me. A careless person shouldn't be given a permanent position, lest she harm others..."

The assistant nodded, "Alright..."

As the assistant was about to leave, Nara grabbed his hand.

She shook her head in pain, her mouth opening and closing in desperation...

She wept soundlessly with tears rolling down her face.

Jackson rebuked sharply, "What are you standing there for? Hurry up and go!"

The assistant heartlessly pushed Nara away and headed toward the door.

Watching the assistant leave, Nara grabbed his arm again and, in the extreme emotional stress, unconsciously shouted two words,

"...No... don't..."

Although speaking was difficult, with a hoarse voice and even weird pronunciation, she still managed to utter those two words.

After hearing her voice, Keira was taken aback for a moment.

Nara also froze, her tearful gaze following the assistant.

Jackson curled his lips. "Wow, look at that-the mute can talk! So why have you been playing mute? To gain sympathy? heard that because you are a disabled person, the school waived a year of tuition for you... You wouldn't be scamming for tuition fees, would you?"

Shaken and frightened, Nara hurriedly waved her hands, her mouth opening and closing, "..... didn't..."

Though speaking was strenuous, she indeed made a sound.

Keira immediately exclaimed with surprise. "Nara, you spoke! Can you talk?"

Nara nodded while crying, then shook her head.

Jackson sneered again. "What does it matter if she can talk or not? I'll make sure she drops out! Oh, and by the outhon e way heard she wants to work at the Nora Research Institute. Without experience working in a hospital, there's no way she can get in!"

Upon hearing this, Keira was momentarily stunned.

She looked at Nara. "Do you want to go to Nora Research Institute?"

Nara nodded, then shook her head again.

She did want to go but didn't have the ability yet.

Keira said, "I'll help you."

"You'll help her?" laughed Jackson as if he'd hear joke. "How can you help m her? Don't you know the family controls the medical system? With one word from us, the Nora Research Institute will never accep her! Austin, am I right?"

Upon hearing this, Austin laughed lightly. "That's right! Keera, I won't let her succeed! I'm getting the hospital to revoke her internship!"

As soon as he finished speaking his phone rang unexpectedly. It was Lady Gill, and he answered immediately. "Mom, have the bodyguards arrived? Check every phone number, and we'll find our sister!"

453 Chapter 452

Hearing Austin, Lady Gill furrowed her brows. "The bodyguards have arrived and taken control of the entire floor. Where are you?"

Glancing at Jackson's ward, Austin said, "I'm here with Jackson."

Lady Gill immediately sounded displeased. "I only asked you to say hello. Why are you still lingering there? Get out here immediately!"

Austin scratched his head. "I was just waiting for my sister to reply to a text message, and I've encountered a bit of trouble here."

Lady Gill immediately growled, "What trouble? You're so..."

She hung up.

Austin stared blankly at his phone, and as he was in a daze, the sound of high heels approached from outside the door. Then, Lady Gill entered the ward with an authoritative air.

"What trouble have you encountered?"

Lady Gill looked directly at Jackson.

Jackson pointed at Nara. "I asked her to peel an apple for me, and she intentionally got blood all over her hands, making it look like I was bullying her! If a doctor can't even steady a fruit knife, how will she hold a scalpel in the future?!"

Upon hearing this, Lady Gill frowned and turned her gaze toward Nara.

Nara shook her head, her mouth opening and closing as if she wanted to say something but couldn't.

Keira stepped forward, shielding Nara behind her. "Lady Gill, anyone with eyes can see what's happening here. Surely you're not going to add insult to injury?"

Yet Lady Gill sneered. "What's going on? I don't know what you're talking about! Jackson is making perfect sense here. What do you have to say for yourselves?" Keira said, "It's clear that he..."

"He what? When he did whatever you're about to say, were you present, Miss Olsen?"

Lady Gill cut off Keira, then turned to Austin, "You tell me!"

Austin grinned. "Miss Olsen was grabbing me in the hallway, wanting to discuss a partnership, and then we heard a cry from the ward. Miss Olsen and I entered the ward, and that's when we saw this scene- Neither Miss Olsen nor I saw what happened!"

He walked over to Lady Gill and linked arms with her. "Mom, I think Jackson is making a lot of sense, and this Nara is incapable of saying anything. It must be her fault!"

-Nara looked at them in astonishment.

She was mute, so of course, she couldn't speak!

But now they were using this to attack her?

Keira's gaze also turned cold. "Nara can't speak. Do you go too far!"

"How can't she speak? I heard the mute speak just now..."

Austin looked at Nara with a smile. "Come on, repeat it, let my mother hear it. Mom, you didn't hear it, but when a mute speaks, the voice is unpleasant and grates the ears."

Tears welled up in Nara's eyes and rolled down.

She had just struggled to speak, yet the man was mocking her...

She pursed her lips, daring not to speak again.

Keira scolded Austin harshly, "Shut your mouth!"

"Miss Olsen! Don't you go too far!" Lady Gill defended her son immediately. "This is a hospital under Gill Group. We are on our turf. What we say and do is our freedom! Even if you are Sam's treasured darling, you can't control my son, right?"

Keira became furious, "You...."

The Gill family was being completely unreasonable!

Lady Gill scoffed, then pointed outside. "Miss Oln, we have other things to do. Please leave!"

Keira took a deep breath.

If the Gill family controlled Clance's medical system, then finding out why Ellis had azoospermia would still require their cooperation.

Moreover, her second task hadn't yet been accomplished. Among the five great families of Clance, only the Gill family was left with whom she could form a good relationship.

But with how the Gill family was behaving, it was clear that cooperation was impossible; staying here would only bring humiliation upon herself.

Had she reached a dead end?

Keira took a deep breath, grabbed Nara, and said firmly, "Let's go!"

As they were about to leave the ward, Jackson suddenly said, "Wait a moment!"

The two stopped in their tracks.

Jackson smiled. "Aunt, we should cancel Nara's internship qualification! Don't scare other patients. She's injuring herself all the time....."

Nara clenched her fists tightly, her whole body trembling.

Keira became her mouthpiece. "Jackson, don't you go too far Cancel her internship? Do you think that your family monopolizes the entire Clance?!"

"Tsk, tsk."

Jackson scoffed, "The medical system of private hospitals is ours.

she What, do you think she can get into a public hospital? Or perhaps she can get into Nora Research Institute? Her hand is now useless! I just see her as a joke!"

Useless hand?

Lady Gill's gaze finally landed on Nara.

Following her bleeding hand, Lady Gill's gaze slowly moved up, landing on Nara's face, and then she paused slightly.

Lady Gill stared at Nara's face, and for some reason, she felt a sense of affection.

Just as she was about to say something, Austin sneered. "How could she possibly get into the Nora Research Institute? Even if her hand weren't crippled, with her education and experience, she wouldn't be able to get in anyway!"

Everyone knew that the Nora Research Institute in Clance was currently the best institution.

Nara just glared at Austin.

Keira then said, "How could it be impossible for her to get in?"

"A person who has been dismissed by our hospital, how could the Nora Research Institute possibly want her? What kind of joke are you making? Oh, Miss Olsen probably doesn't understand what kind of existence the Nora Research Institute is!"

Jackson rambled on. "The Nora Research Institute is the dream of all the doctors who are into scientific research!"

454 Chapter 453

Keira looked at him as if she was looking at a joke.

Although Keira had "died", the existence of the Nora Research Institute was extraordinary, so after she arrived in Clance, she had secretly sent emails, letting the staff of the Nora Research Institute know that she was not dead.

Therefore, the Nora Research Institute in Clance and abroad were both conducting research as usual.

But she didn't owe these people an explanation.

Just as she was about to leave, gripping Nara's hand, Austin blocked her way again. "Who told you you can leave?"

Keira looked up with a cold gaze. "What, you want to fight again?"

Austin scoffed. "As a student, Nara frightened the guests in the VIP ward, doesn't she need to apologize?"

Keira took a deep breath, feeling the urge in her chest.

If this were not Clance, she would have punched him right away!

454 Chapter 453

It wa absolutely suffocating!

Keira said, "What exactly do you want to do?"

"Very simple."

Austin smiled. "Just let Nara kowtow to Jackson, admit her mistakes, and that will be the end of it. Otherwise, I will definitely have her expelled from school!"

After saying this, he turned to Jackson. "Moreover, Jackson turned into what he is now because of her! Letting her apologize to Jackson isn't too much, is it?"

Nara bit her lip hard.

Her eyes were swelling from crying.

She stared fiercely at Austin, feeling a surge of powerlessness.

Why?

Just because they had power and influence, they could do whatever they want?

But what had she and her brother done wrong?

It was Jackson who went to her house to beat her brother and tried to assault her, and it was Miss Olsen become her fault now?

She cried uncontrollably, her whole body trembling.

Her hand was shaking, feeling as if the blood in her body was gradually turning cold. The person in front of her seemed like a devil.

She sobbed.

Keira simply said, "That's impossible!"

Austin looked at her. "Miss Olsen, don't think too highly of yourself. I'm being considerate by letting her apologize. Otherwise, for someone as lowly as her, making her disappear from Clance without anyone noticing is just a matter of lifting a finger for me!"

Then he turned to Nara. "Don't be ungrateful! If you don't kneel, I can have your brother dead by tomorrow!"

Such words could be said so blatantly...

Keira was utterly astonished Nara's eyes reddened even more.

Keira furrowed her brows/ "Austin, have you no regard for the law?"

Austin laughed. "What silly thing are you talking about I am a law-abiding good citizen, but it always just so happens that some people hold a grudge against Nara brother! And if by chance he accidentally fell down the stairs or off a rooftop, what does it have to do with me?"

Keira was left speechless by him.

The meaning was crystal clear. He would hire a thug to kill someone, then push all the blame onto the thug!

Nara immediately waved her hand!

Her brother and she depended on each other, and they were very close. How could her brother pay for her mistake?

Austin continued, "Nara, Nange is from the Olsen family, and I cannot touch her, but if I touch you, do you think the Olsens would fight to the death with our family for the likes of you and your brother, such lowly people? Oh, right, speaking of which, you two are actually distant relatives of my family! Hahaha, so this is an internal matter for the Gill family, even less something the Olsens can interfere in! Neither emotionally nor logically can they do anything... so, will you kneel or not?"

"She won't kneel!"

Keira flatly refused, then held Nara's arm. "Let's go.

Don't worry, I will protect you and your brother!"

Just as she was about to lead Nara away, Nara suddenly broke free from her grasp.

Keira was taken aback.

Nara gestured to her, her eyes filled with determination, anger, and a stubbornness.

Although she couldn't speak, Keira still understood her intention...

She didn't want to implicate Keira anymore, nor did she want her brother to come to harm because of her; otherwise, she would feel guilty...

So...

She slowly turned her head toward Jackson and knelt without hesitation!

Keira's eyes widened in shock. "Nara!"

She wanted to say that one must not lack spine, intending to tell Nara to get up.

But she suddenly realized, this was Nara's life, not hers.

She didn't have the strength to protect Nara and her brother all the time... unless she kept them under her Wings, but was that really what they wanted?

For a moment, Keira's feelings were exceedingly complicated, as she stood there stunned.

After Nara knelt down, she looked toward Jackson.

Jackson felt an inexplicable rush of satisfaction.

This was the lost daughter of the first branch of the family...

The first branch had always been high and mighty, but now their daughter was kneeling before him...

Jackson sneered. "Kowtow!"

Austin echoed from the side. "Yes, kowtow..."

Nara shut her eyes tightly and her head struck the ground hard.

The sound made Keira's heart tremble.

Unable to restrain herself, she cried out again. "That's enough!"

454 Chapter 453

She stepped forward, lifting Nara up from the ground.

But before Nara could rise, Jackson shouted furiously, "Not enough, M want herto kowtow ten times to me!

Ten times!"

Austin immediately stepped forward, blocking Keira. "

A flicker of despair passed through Nara's eyes.

She was in extreme agony.

But thinking about her brother at home, her own future, and the power of the Gill family...

She didn't rise but knocked her forehead heavily against the floor again.

"Nara!"

Keira's eyes were red with emotion.

Jackson felt secretly thrilled inside.

Austin wore an expression of disdain. Lady Gill, however, frowned, her thoughts occupied with finding her daughter.

455 Chapter 454

The classmate was taken aback when she saw the situation in the ward.

Then she stopped in her tracks, staring in disbelief at the scene before her. Her gaze swept over Lady Gill, Austin, and the others before finally landing on Nara, who was kneeling on the ground. She asked with confusion, "Nara, what's going on?"

Nara shook her head, then reached out with her uninjured hand.

Hesitant, the classmate took out Nara's phone. She looked at Nara as if she had seen the plague, tossed the phone into Nara's hand, and ran off. Soon after, another classmate's voice came from outside. "What happened? You look so shaken..."

"Shhh, it seems like Nara has offended some big shot..."

Then, there was no more sound from outside, only the footsteps of those classmates sneaking away.

Nara gave a bitter smile.

She knew that after today, her classmates would surely avoid her like the plague.

She lowered her gaze.

Austin then said, "Nara, see? Everyone knows we are. important people. How could you be so blind as to provoke us? Do you think just because you're with Keera, you can do as you please in Clance? Let me tell you, the Gill family is not someone you can affront so easily!"

He left that remark hanging and continued. "You keep kowtowing. After ten times, I promise I won't cause trouble for Matias!"

Keira rebuked angrily, "Austin, that's enough! Are you treating Nara like this just because of me?"

"Yes, I am taking it out on her because of you, so what?"

Austin admitted outright. "You're an Olsen family member, so I can't touch you, but I can do whatever I want to her and her brother, those two lackeys! Nara, are you going to kowtow or not? You still owe us eight!"

Keira clenched her fists and stepped forward, grabbing stin by the collar. "Do vou think I wouldn't dare to hit you?"

"Miss Olsen, do you think I'm just a fixture here?"

Lady Gill shouted angrily, "If you dare to touch a hair. on my son, I'll immediately get back at the Olsen family. The Gill family would do everything to get it even!"

Keira tightened her fingers and let out a cold laugh. "Let's try it, then!"

But the next moment, her trouser leg was tugged.

Keira turned around and saw Nara looking up at her with a hint of pleading in her eyes.

Those eyes seemed to say, "Please don't get involved in my affairs..."

Keira paused slightly.

Back in Oceanion, she had worked part-time to pay for her tuition, and she understood the helplessness of minor characters and insignificant roles.

Nara and Matias were caught up in the two families' affairs...

To them, this was indeed an undeserved calamity.

But the Gill family wouldn't see it that way. If they didn't vent their anger today, they would continue to cause trouble for them in the future.

Matias and Nara didn't want to be the canaries protected by the Olsen family; they wanted to be free.

The only option was to extricate themselves from this situation.

Keira saw the meaning in the depths of Nara's eyes and clenched her fists tightly with a sense of powerless rage.

If only she or the Olsen family were more powerful, and they could make the Gill family listen to them and give an order that would make the Gill family not dare touch the siblings, perhaps today's troubles wouldn't exist.

Keira felt a pang of self-reproach and then slowly turned to Austin. "Can you promise that you'll no longer mess with them after this?"

Austin looked down. "My reputation in Clance isn't the best, but there's one thing I'm known for, and that is keeping my word! As long as today, she gives our family a chance to vent our anger, I won't trouble them again!"

Keira turned back to Nara.

She saw a hint of gratitude in Nara's eyes, and then Nara gently shook her head.

Keira understood her choice.

Nara wanted peace.

Keira tightened her jaw, feeling humiliated, and released Austin's collar. Then she slowly stepped back.

Nara nodded to her in appreciation.

Then she turned her gaze back to Jackson.

Jackson sneered coldly, his eyes sinister as he watched her, his sight again scanning over Austin and Lady Gill...

Then came the sound of Nara's forehead hitting the floor with a "bang" once more.

"The third one!"

Keira reminded them.

"Bang!"

The fourth one!"

Keira's voice was trembling.

"Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang..."

Nara didn't want to slowly accept the humiliation anymore. Her forehead forcefully knocked on the floor, making a muffled sound.

The floor where her forehead landed was already stained with blood.

Keira couldn't even count how many times Nara had kowtowed; she immediately steadied Nara, "Enough!"

"One more to go."

Jackson said aggressively.

Austin found it unbearable to watch, but hearing Jackson's words, he understood that his brother hadn't vented his anger yet, so he arrogantly said, "Yes, one more!"

Keira's eyes were red with anger, "Look at the state she's in!"

"But still, there's only nine!"

Jackson arrogantly declared, "If it's anything less than ten, today's matter won't be settled!"

Keira wanted to speak again, but Nara once again buried her head. "Bang!"

She knocked her head until she was dizzy and bleary-eyed, her forehead already swollen and bleeding. Everything in front of her seemed somewhat blurry.

"We're done!"

Keira shouted sternly and then helped Nara up.

Staggering, Nara was assisted to her feet by Keira, who then looked toward Austin.

Keira caught on to her intention and immediately said, "Is it enough now? Austin, you promise you won't harass her and her brother again!"

Austin met Nara's persistent gaze.

For some reason, Austin felt reminded of his sister.

He pursed his lips, about to nod, when he heard Jackson's sarcastic remark Today's incident might be settled, but that doesn't mean I've forgotten about the past!"

That remark caused Keira's pupils to shrink, her gaze ing toward him.

Jackson watched them with a sinister gleam, "For the matters of the past, I won't let it drop!"

With these words, a burst of hatred and irritation suddenly surged from Nara's eyes. Her voice was hoarse as she said, "You...

bastard!"

"Bastard? I am a bastard. What can you do about it?"

Hahaha!"

Keira immediately looked at Austin. "Didn't we just agree on that? Doesn't the word of the Gill family count for anything?"

Jackson, in his psychological perversion, shouted, "Austin was the one who gave you the promise, not me! Austin won't bother you anymore, but I never said I wouldn't!"

Austin furrowed his brow.

Nara stared at him intently...you...just...didn't you..."

She wanted to say, "That wasn't what you said earlier," but she couldn't finish her sentence.

Austin's brow creased with a rising irritation, and he waved it off. "I have things to do, (I'm busy looking for my sister. I don't have time to waste here with you!"

That statement shattered all of Nara's illusions.

She thought that the words of wealthy people counted for something, but she hadn't expected them to be so shameless!

Her head spun, and her steps faltered.

Just as she was about to say something, Keira steadied her by the waist. "Nara, I'll take you home."

Nara gave a bitter smile and followed Keira slowly toward the door.

Austin picked up his phone and tried his sister's number again...

Meanwhile, the phone that Nara had just picked up started vibrating madly in her hands, and she looked down. Seeing the caller ID, she abruptly turned her gaze toward Austin.
