

My Accidental Husband is a Billionaire

476 Chapter 475

Keira rushed in, shouting those words while being intercepted by the security guards and bodyguards.

She was fighting them and, afraid she was running out of time, she shouted out loud.

She then fiercely kicked someone away, opening a path for herself, and then barged in.

But she saw Lady Gill and Austin both looking at her in astonishment. Lady Gill frowned and asked, "What did you say?"

Keira quickly said, "I said, Nara is your biological daughter, the daughter you've been looking for!" novelbin

As soon as these words came out, Austin retorted in astonishment, "How is that possible?! Keera, you must be lying to us!"

Keira hurriedly said, "I'm not lying to you! Didn't you put out an advertisement looking for that jade pendant? That jade pendant belongs to Nara. It was taken from her by Jackson!"

At these words, Austin faltered, staggering a little, "What did you say?!"

Lady Gill too widened her eyes in disbelief. "That can't be!"

Jackson also shouted fiercely, "Keera! Don't be ridiculous! Even if it's to save someone, you don't need to tell such a lie!"

Keira took a deep breath, "If you don't believe me, you can do a DNA test..."

She was too impatient to waste words with them. She glanced around the rooftop but didn't see Nara. She couldn't help but ask, "Where is Nara?"

Lady Gill and Austin both looked at her without answering.

Instead, the bodyguards around them looked toward the edge of the rooftop.

Keira noticed their emotions, feeling a sudden sinking in her heart.

No, it couldn't be...

Just as she thought of this, a cry of alarm suddenly came from below. "Gosh, someone has jumped off the building!"

"Quick, take her to the emergency room!"

"..."

Keira was dazed, and she immediately ran to the edge of the rooftop, only to see the girl in a white T-shirt and jeans lying on the ground like a broken doll.

She was lying in a pool of blood, but because she fell at a good angle, one could tell that she first hit a tree, which broke her fall, before she landed on the ground...

So, she was still breathing.

Doctors and nurses below were gathering around her, then they lifted her onto a stretcher and rushed into the operating room!

Matias was slower than Keira by a beat, having only climbed one floor when he saw through the window of the stairwell that his sister fell.

He stood there in horror, then ran downstairs frantically, arriving at Nara's side.

Now, limping behind the doctors and nurses, he followed them. "Please, doctors, I beg you, you have to save my sister! She, she's only twenty years old!!"

The sobbing cries of Matias carried far and wide.

Keira's chest tightened. She immediately straightened up and was about to run downstairs, but after only making a couple of steps, Lady Gill grabbed her arm.

Looking astounded, Lady Gill asked with a trembling voice, "What did you just say?!"

Keira pushed her away, her expression cold and disappointed. "I said, the girl you forced to jump off the building, is your biological daughter! Barbara!"

"That's impossible!"

Lady Gill turned pale in an instant.

"Right, that's impossible! My sister is a little princess. How could she be someone like her?!"

Austin also roared angrily, completely unable to accept the truth.

Keira looked at them coldly, the corners of her lips twisted with a hint of mockery and icy smile. "Someone like whom? Someone poor? But it's a 'pauper' like Matias is the person who saved her! Without Matias, your sister would have died long ago!"

Austin took a step back. "No, this can't be true. You must be lying! I don't believe it!"

"Believe it or not, that's up to you!" Keira said, as she anxiously ran toward the operating room!

She was worried about Nara's condition, afraid that she wouldn't make it through the rescue!

After Keira left the rooftop, Lady Gill's legs gave way, and she almost fell to the ground, saved only by the bodyguard who caught her.

She looked steadily in the direction Keira had left, then turned to look at Jackson, her lips pressing together before she suddenly asked, "Jackson, what's going on here?"

Austin also said, "Jackson, she's lying to us, isn't she?! Where did you really get that jade pendant from?"

Jackson immediately said, "Aunt, Austin, you must not believe her lies. Look, I bought that jade pendant at the antique market, and I've found your sister for you!"

After saying this, he presented a DNA match report to Austin. "Look, this is the DNA comparison report I ran for you. I confirmed the other party's identity before I said we found her..."

Austin took the DNA test report, glanced at it, and then breathed a sigh of relief before passing it to Lady Gill. "Mom, look, this is my sister! Nara isn't!"

Austin was overwhelmed with the news and sounded as if he was convincing himself as much as others. He emphasized those words several times.

Lady Gill coldly looked down at the DNA comparison report.

She then looked back at Jackson...

Jackson smiled sheepishly. "Aunt, don't believe Keera's lies. she just wants to make you feel guilty! Her goal is achieved! The girl I found is already on her way to the hospital! I've also done the DNA test for you. We can be reunited now!"

Lady Gill looked at the comparison report in her hands, which confirmed that the other party and Austin were indeed biological siblings.

Lady Gill clenched her jaw tightly, and after a while, she looked at Jackson again.

Then, she turned around and walked away briskly.

Austin couldn't help but follow her. "Mom, where are you going?"

Lady Gill answered, "To see the girl who just jumped!"

Austin said, "Mom, why are you going to see her? You don't really believe Keera's lies, do you?"

At this, Lady Gill halted.

"I'm going to find her, for a DNA test!"

The Novel will be updated first on this website. Come back and continue reading tomorrow, everyone!