

My Accidental Husband is a Billionaire

486 Chapter 485

Austin paused slightly upon hearing this. "What's his name? He can't be Lewis Horton, can he?"

Keira raised her eyebrows.

The Horton family was about to hold a banquet and formally make a public appearance in Clance, and Lewis would definitely show up by then. It was time to reveal his identity!

Keira was about to nod when Austin curled his lips and said, "Miss Olsen, to be honest, I don't care what his name is. I'm just kindly advising you. It's up to you whether you listen or not. However, I've always looked down upon arranged marriages. Since both parties have agreed, you'd better show Lewis some respect and not show off your boyfriend too ostentatiously!"

Keira didn't know what to say.

She twitched her mouth corner.

Austin left for the door. "Alright, I won't take up your time. I'm busy preparing things for my sister. I used to buy things for her, too; I just never realized she's so thin that neither clothes nor jewelry sizes are the right match."

At this point, Keira delivered a metaphorical stab to his heart. "Has Nara forgiven you?"

That question drove away the light in Austin's eyes. "Not yet... but my sister and I are family, and blood is thicker than water. She'll eventually come home."

Keira nodded, then asked, "By the way, have you stamped our contract? My people should have gone to your office."

She was pretty anxious about this.

She had already completed cooperation with the five major families. Why hadn't the behind-the-scenes person from the South family sent her a message yet? It must be because the contract with the Gill family hadn't been completed.

No sooner had she said this than Austin said, "The money has been transferred to you, so what are you rushing the contract for? Our company's legal department is reviewing the contract, and once it's reviewed, we will sign it."

Keira said, "I don't mind when you transfer the money, but the contract is urgent. How long will their review take?"

Austin was perplexed.

He couldn't help but look Keira up and down. "Are you so afraid this contract will fall through? The money is transferred, but that's not enough. Is your company a new enterprise and is eager to use the Gill family's medical resources to make a name and seize market share?"

Before Keira could speak, Lewis mildly interjected. "Do you know the name of her company? Why must she use your family's medical resources to gain popularity?"

Austin curled his lips. "How would I know? I've never even heard of her company's name! Besides, if her pharmaceutical company had any reputation, they wouldn't be so eager to cooperate with us, right? The big pharmaceutical enterprises are all on an equal footing with us. The only enterprise in Crera we would actively seek to cooperate with is the Nora Research Institute!"

Keira and Lewis exchanged a glance, and both of them laughed.

Austin said, "What are you laughing at? It looks so strange... Never mind, I'll call right now and hurry them up, ensuring they sign the contract today!"

Having said this, Austin picked up his phone and called his company's legal department.

As the call went through, the voice of the legal department's director came from the other end. "Mr. Gill, do you have any instructions?"

Austin said, "Have you reviewed the contract I sent over today?"

The director immediately said, "I apologize, Mr. Gill. We've been busy today with the contract with the Nora Research Institute, thinking about how to guarantee our benefits while giving them the best profit distribution, so we haven't looked at your contract yet."

The Gill Group was about to negotiate cooperation with the Nora Research Institute, so the entire company was preparing for it.

Austin expressed his understanding. "The cooperation on my end is urgent. I looked over the contract yesterday, and it's rather simple, just about ten pages or so. Can you expedite the review on your end? This is what you'll do. Review it now."

Inside the Gill Group.

The legal department's director almost rolled his eyes upon hearing this!

The entire company was busy working on the Nora Research Institute. How could they have time to help him review a minor contract?

But Austin was his boss, and he dared not neglect.

Suppressing his frustration, the director pulled out the contract that Austin had sent over from the pile of contracts delivered today.

He opened the contract and glanced instinctively at the Party B on it.

But he saw the name of their own company.

The director was stunned. "Mr. Gill, our company typically signs contracts with pharmaceutical companies as Party A. Is there a mistake here?"

"If it's Party B, so be it. Don't worry about that!"

"...Alright then." The director sighed and looked at Party A on the contract.

On further inspection, he suddenly froze!

Recently, the company has been interacting with the Nora Research Institute... Although Nora's fame overshadowed the institute's real name, and few people knew it, how could the director not be aware?

They had already drafted over a dozen agreements with the Nora Research Institute!

The director rubbed his eyes, wondering if he had seen it wrong.

He confirmed that Party A was indeed Watson Biopharmaceutical Co., Ltd.

That was the Nora Research Institute!

The director became excited, "Mr. Gill, this contract, this Party A..."

He was so excited that he didn't finish his sentence.

Inside the boutique.

Austin listened and couldn't help but ask, "What? Any problem with the Party A?"

After saying this, he looked at Keira. "Your company is legitimate, right? You do have a business license, don't you?"

Otherwise, why would his legal department's director be so excited?

The legal department drafts countless contracts each year. They'd seen unreliable companies and always included the risks in the contract...

What kind of oversight in Keira's company could shock him so much?

Keira was perplexed.

She smiled wryly, "Of course, it's reliable. Our company has been established for three years!"

"I see. You were established at the same time as the Nora Research Institute, huh? Well, you'll have to work hard. Look at how powerful the Nora Research Institute is now."

Austin laughed again, "But there's nothing you can do. The Nora Research Institute is powerful because Nora is there with all her patents. I heard that the Nora Research Institute just successfully developed a breakthrough drug for Alzheimer's disease! Impressive, right? So, in the future, don't focus too much on cooperating with us. Even if we help you break into Clance's market, you won't get far in the pharmaceutical industry without strong technology!"

Keira remained silent.

She crossed her arms and watched Austin with a smile that wasn't quite a smile.

Austin was about to say more when he heard the director's voice from the phone. "No, no, Mr. Gill, the Party A company on this contract is the full name of the Nora Research Institute!!"

Austin's smile suddenly froze on his face.

487 Chapter 486

Austin looked at Keira in disbelief and asked the person on the phone, "What did you say?"

"Mr. Gill, we've been working to the bone just to collaborate with the Nora Research Institute, and since you've already partnered with them, why didn't you say something earlier? The amount on the contract is only a fifty million quota per month. Could you possibly ask the client if we could have more each month? We're open to negotiations on the price. I think the unit price on their current contract is a bit low... Mr. Gill, whom did you find at the Nora Research Institute to land this order at such a favorable price?!"

The words from the director made Austin feel like he was dreaming.

He paused, then said, "Wait. What Nora Research Institute? I have no idea what you're talking about... Do you mean the company that signed the contract with us is the Nora Research Institute? Could there be some mistake?"

The director laughed immediately. "How could that be? It's written on our contract; we've been continuously liaising about it lately. There's no way there's a mistake with the full name of the Nora Research Institute! They've even stamped their electronic seal on the contract, so there can't be a mistake. Mr. Gill, you've earned your stripes for the company! Oh, did you hear what I just said? Can we increase the quota?"

Austin didn't know what to say.

He looked blankly at Keira and asked, "Can we increase the quota?"

Keira stroked her chin. "You should discuss that with my management team. They should already be in contact with you. However, I have one condition: we must sign the contract today."

"Right, I see."

Austin dumbly passed the message to the director, then hung up and stared blankly at Keira again. "Why do you say the Nora Research Institute is your company? Are you... "

He suddenly thought of the critical moment in his sister's surgery when "Keera" entered the operating room to help. At that time, the hospital director said only Nora could save his sister...

So...

"Keera" was Nora?!

Austin felt there was something very wrong with this idea! After all, how could someone as impressive as Nora be so young?!

Keira raised an eyebrow at him, then linked arms with Lewis. "Let's go."

Lewis gave an indulgent smile and glanced at Austin. "Yeah, let's."

Austin stared at them from behind, and after a long while, he still felt like he hadn't come to his senses.

That couldn't be possible...

He felt as if he was dreaming!

He quickly took out his phone and called Lady Gill. "Mom, do you know? Keera is..."

Halfway through, Austin quickly lowered his voice and looked around stealthily, "She is Nora!"

"What?!"

Lady Gill exclaimed in surprise.

Hearing her astonishment, Austin suddenly felt a little less silly. Maybe he didn't look as foolish as he just did?

...

Keira had no idea Austin had run to Lady Gill for comfort; she and Lewis left Cartier and went upstairs, planning to buy some clothes for Amy.

Keira liked several children's garments and bought them all.

As they walked around, she suddenly pointed to the men's section. "That suit over there looks pretty good on you."

Upon hearing this, Lewis grew excited.

Here we go again...

Keira must be thinking of buying him clothes, and then once they'd paid, she'd say "Happy Birthday"...

He looked expectantly at Keira, "Really? Then we..."

He didn't finish the sentence, "Let's go in and have a look," when he saw Keira shake her head. "No, that tie is too pretentious for someone of your cool demeanor. Let's go somewhere else."

Lewis said, "I think it's quite suitable."

Keira looked at him and said, "Are you sure?"

Lewis was perplexed.

Suddenly unsure how to respond, he fell silent for a moment, only to be dragged away by Keira. "Don't force yourself into buying something you don't like. We're just window-shopping without a particular goal; that outfit doesn't match you; forget it..."

"..."

So, she had forgotten about his birthday!

He was mad!

Lewis took a deep breath, feeling an intense suffocation in his chest, and then continued to accompany Keira through the second and third floors of the mall...

When they reached the sixth floor, they were about to have dinner, but Keira still showed no intention of buying anything for him!

Lewis coughed. "I seem to be running out of clothes to wear. Maybe you can help me pick a few later?"

Since Keira had forgotten, he had to take matters into his own hands!

But just as he said this, Keira replied, "You already stocked my house with seven or eight of the same tracksuits. How can you have nothing to wear?"

Lewis was speechless.

"I'm tired. I don't want to shop anymore. Let's just go have dinner!"

Lewis followed Keira into the restaurant reluctantly.

Outside the restaurant.

Austin, who had been stealthily following them, crept out from around the corner and stroked his chin.

With her identity as Nora, "Keera" didn't need to enter into a marriage alliance.

But this gigolo was clearly after her money because he'd been so brazen about wanting a gift just now!

Moreover, Lewis's birthday party was tomorrow, and Nora hadn't prepared a birthday gift for her so-called "fiancé"?

Austin decided he needed to go and remind her!

488 Chapter 487

Even though the elite families had arranged marriages, they were very concerned about their images.

Since "Keira" and Lewis were publicly engaged, no matter how unrestrained they were in private, they must preserve each other's dignity.

Thinking of this, Austin entered the restaurant.

At this very moment, Keira was having a meal with a sulky Lewis, seemingly oblivious to his displeasure.

They were having Wagyu beef barbecue today.

Once the beef was served, Lewis remained silent and started grilling the meat for her.

Keira finally sensed something was off and asked cautiously, "Are you a bit upset?"

Lewis paused slightly as a flicker of excitement rose in his chest.

Since she asked, he might as well tell her the truth.

As this thought crossed his mind, he heard Keira say, "The Horton Group just moved to Clanco, and there must be many things to handle. Are you worn out? If so, don't overwork yourself being my driver. You should go home and attend to your business affairs."

Lewis was speechless.

How could this woman be so insensitive?!

Then why had he ever complained about being tired?!

Lewis felt his breathing quicken as if he was about to pass out from frustration because of this woman!

He turned his head away, ignoring her.

Just as Keira was about to ask him another question, Austin appeared again. "Well, Keira, do you know the Horton family is hosting a banquet tonight?"

Keira nodded. "I'm aware."

Austin coughed, and at 'the gigolo', and asked, "Do you know under what pretext the Horton family is hosting this banquet?"

Keira was taken aback. "What pretext?"

Austin didn't speak but glanced proudly at the gigolo*

once more.

He had initially thought that bringing up the Horton family at this moment would make 'the gigolo' unhappy. Unexpectedly, the man's gaze turned intense suddenly, his eyes filled with eagerness.

How could Lewis not be eager?!

He had always wanted to know why the Horton family was holding this banquet. Because of their abrupt breakup, this information could be learned through someone else, couldn't it? And now, that someone else was right in front of him!

His lips curled into a smile.

Austin was perplexed.

How could this 'gigolo' have such thick skin, knowing that Keira was married into the Horton family?! Even when he brought up the Horton family, that man still sat there smiling!

If the 'gigolo' hadn't walloped him before, Austin would have at least mocked him a few times.

But now, he didn't dare.

He could only mention some news about the Horton family to disgust him...

So, Austin turned his attention back to Keira. "It's under the pretext of..."

Before he could finish his sentence, Keira's phone rang.

Keira lowered her head and glanced at the screen, only to find it was Lady Gill. She immediately answered the call. "Hello, Lady Gill."

Lady Gill immediately said, "Miss Olsen, I heard from Austin that you're Neral Thank you so much for your cooperation with us!"

"No trouble at all," Keira replied indifferently.

Lady Gill coughed. "Miss Olsen, there was a misunderstanding regarding the previous matter. We thought the cooperation was in peril from you saying your daughter is a hoe, but now as we see you're a favor for this contract... The Gill family owes you Heeding your help, anything, just say the word, and we'll do it."

Hearing this promise, Keira somehow understood why the South family insisted that she cooperate with the five great families of Clanco.

She pressed her lips together. "You're too kind."

Lady Gill added, "Since I owe you such a big favor, I'll say a bit more. Since yesterday, there has been a deliberate spread of rumors about in Clanco, and everyone in the circle has heard..."

Keria was slightly taken aback. "What rumors?"

Lady Gill said, "Since yesterday, your reputation within the circle has changed. You used to be known as Uncle Olsen's newly found daughter, the most esteemed princess of Clanco, but now it's said that your private life is in disarray because you do not show respect to the Horton family and keep a gigolo around... It's also said that your association with the Horton family is quite awkward. I heard a University student as a boyfriend. I advise you to break up soon; such rumors are bad for you."

Keira raised her eyebrows. "Lady Gill, do you know who started these rumors?"

"I don't know. However, I can offer you a piece of information," Lady Gill responded.

"What is it?" Keira asked.

Lady Gill coughed again, "When we fell out with the Olsen family, someone anonymously sent Austin the results of Ellis's infertility test."

Keira was taken aback upon hearing this. Then she arched an eyebrow.

The results of Ellis's test were always kept confidential and weren't easily found by outsiders. Lady Gill subtly implied with her words that the mess was a mole within the Olsen family!

The implication was that of the seven sons in the

Olsen family, with Uncle Olsen having no sons of his own, all had a claim to the inheritance and could vie for it!

In other words, any of the other six brothers could commit acts against Ellis to fight for the inheritance! The content is on NovelDrama.Org Read the latest chapter there!

Such family feuds among the wealthy were quite common.

Keira also frowned, pondering which of her brothers could struggle for the inheritance.

As she thought this through, she ruled out the youngest one as he wasn't bright enough, and James, who was determined to marry into another family, so he seemed unlikely too... The content is on NovelDrama.Org Read the latest chapter there!

That ruled out two, leaving four possible suspects...

She cast her eyes down and said softly, "Lady Gill, thank you for the warning."

"Don't mention it," Lady Gill responded.

"You said that if I need help, I should just ask," Keira stated.

"Precisely," Lady Gill affirmed.

"See you at the Horton family's banquet."

Lady Gill hung up, and Keira turned her gaze toward Austin.

Austin looked bored since she was on the phone and was watching Lewis. After a glance, he coughed and asked, "Keira, this man of yours looks quite menacing. What's his name?" The content is on NovelDrama.Org Read the latest chapter there!

Upon hearing this, Keira raised an eyebrow.

She propped her chin up and turned to Austin. "Lewis Horton."

489 Chapter 488

Austin was taken aback.

He was confused. "As in the Horton Group's Lewis Horton?"

Keira nodded.

Austin took another glance at Lewis and smiled at him. "Lewis?"

Lewis didn't speak, which was as good as a confirmation.

Austin pulled a face and then said to Keira, "Are you kidding me? Do you honestly think Lewis has nothing better to do than to drive you around?"

Keira didn't know what to say.

Lewis, who apparently had nothing better to do, didn't know what to say either.

Just as Keira was about to explain, Austin stood up. "Alright, you don't have to tease me anymore. Don't ignore the warning my mom just gave you. There's a mole in the Olsen family, so be careful! And as for the Horton family's banquet, take it seriously and remember to bring a gift."

Leaving these words behind, he stood up and left.

Lewis was speechless.

"Can't you, like, clarify things before you go? What gift?!"

Keira, on the other hand, shook her head and smiled.

After they finished eating, Keira seemed to be growing impatient with shopping and said, "Do you find shopping boring? Let's just go home."

Lewis's steps faltered slightly, and he coughed and loosened his tie. "It's not boring, why would it be boring?"

Keira had wanted to find an excuse to leave and didn't expect such a reply.

She coughed. "I think it's boring."

"..."

Lewis looked at her with an expression that was hard to describe. "How about we go buy a gift for the Horton family's banquet? Austin just reminded you to bring a gift."

Keira waved her hand. "That won't be necessary. The Olsen family will prepare it for me."

Lewis was speechless

He felt that getting a birthday gift was turning out to be really hard!

He trudged behind Keira, both hands carrying bags. It was a pity none of the things inside were for him.

Lewis followed Keira all the way to the underground parking lot.

Seeing that Keira was really about to leave, he decided to ask for the gift himself and to clarify things.

Lewis coughed. "Keira, actually, that Horton family's banquet is about..."

"Shh..."

Keira suddenly turned around, placing a finger on his lips.

Lewis was slightly startled.

Keira immediately pointed ahead.

Following her finger, Lewis saw a man and a woman embracing and kissing...

The man's hand had slipped into the woman's clothes...

The woman let out a shy moan, sounding as if her body had gone limp.

Keira craned her neck further, wanting to see, but Lewis covered her eyes.

Keira immediately glared at him.

Lewis chuckled softly. "That's not appropriate."

Keira rolled her eyes and continued. "Is it spring already? These two are getting frisky in a public place..."

Although this was a parking lot, there were many people coming and going.

They were in a corner, and a kiss might have been fine, but the pair was clearly doing more than that... definitely not a pretty sight.

As Keira and Lewis turned to leave, they heard the couple's conversation.

"Honey, does it feel good?"

The woman moaned softly, her voice sounding almost intoxicated. "It feels good. You're amazing."

"It can be more exciting, do you want it?"

"Sure..."

"But I'm not in the mood. I can't muster the energy."

"Fine, I know you've been eyeing that watch. I didn't have enough balance in my card just now, so I'll ask my boyfriend for money later and buy it for you..."

"Thank you, Honey!"

After the young man joyfully said this, things got more excited.

The woman's voice was obviously suppressed, but by the time Keira got into the car, she couldn't hold back anymore...

Keira pursed her lips and looked at Lewis. "Can you believe how nice she is to that man? She's actually tricking her boyfriend into spending money on him!"

Lewis smiled and said nothing.

Today, Keira had completed the cooperation with the Gill family, which meant she had managed to cooperate with all five great families of Clance. The South family should have sent her instructions for the next step by now.

But no message had come.

So she was anxious.

Otherwise, why would she criticize others like that?

Seeing Keira about to speak, Lewis suddenly moved closer to her.

Keira was startled by his movement. The next moment, he was looking at her seriously, then suddenly chuckled. "Honey, can you use your fiancé's money to buy me a gift?"

Keira didn't know what to say.

The man's handsome face was close at hand, and his breath sprayed on her cheek, making her heart flutter for a moment...

His feigned innocence only fueled Keira's desire to tease him...

She couldn't help but swallow hard and coughed.

Lewis had no idea that he was unintentionally flirting with her, and he was still thinking about his birthday present, so he continued. "Honey, can you buy me a gift?"

He spoke word by word, with utmost seduction. "After all, soon it will be my birth..."

Before he could finish saying "day", he was suddenly pushed away.

Keira's face flushed as she scolded him in a soft voice, "Just drive!"

Lewis was speechless.

He tugged at the corners of his mouth and could only start the car with great force!

It seemed he was destined to miss out on birthday presents this year!

All because of that South family!

And why hadn't the Gill family signed the contract sooner?! It had distracted Keira!

Lewis complained in his head while driving Keira back to the South residence.

As soon as she entered the doorway, Keira shared the things she had bought with everyone.

There were Amy's clothes, Amy's toys, and maternity clothes for Mary,, radiation protection suits... and so on.

Everyone received gifts except for the birthday boy himself!

Lewis felt heartbroken.

Watching her, who immediately started playing with Amy and Mary, he couldn't help but take a deep breath. "Keira, I still have work to do. I'm going upstairs."

It was supposed to be a statement made in anger, but Keira dismissed him without even looking back. "Sure, go ahead!"

Lewis thus went upstairs feeling gloomy and dejected.

As a result, that afternoon, both the Horton Group and Lewis's international powers felt a stormy rage from their boss.

"If you can't even handle this small matter, what's the use of keeping you? You must work overtime tonight and give me an answer!"

After Lewis finished a meeting and hung up the conference call, he received a message from Tom. "Boss, are you in a bad mood today?"

Lewis replied coldly with a question mark.

Tom said, "You've been speaking in rhetorical questions all day, taking it out on people."

Lewis sent another question mark.

Tom said, "If you're in a bad mood, it's one thing to vent at us, but don't take it out on Miss Olsen. She's already under enough pressure."

He hoped the young couple wouldn't get into trouble over some trivial matter.

Seeing this message, Lewis paused for a moment.

Then he gradually calmed down.

Tom was right... He certainly couldn't vent his frustration on Keira!

He took a deep breath and then headed to the bathroom for a shower.

After a busy afternoon, they had a dull dinner in the evening.

Afterward, Keira turned to Mary. "Mary, there is something I want to tell you..."

The two of them retreated to a separate room.

Lewis was speechless.

He felt like he was an adopted husband!

He went upstairs in low spirits and lay in the empty bedroom, quietly staring at the ceiling.

He didn't know how much time had passed and had almost fallen asleep when the bedroom door was finally pushed open, and Keira slipped in.

Lewis rolled over.

He was still feeling slightly frustrated.

Then he heard a sneaky sound behind him, followed by Keira's voice, "Are you asleep?"

Lewis didn't answer, indicating he was very angry.

Keira asked again, but Lewis still didn't reply.

He decided he wouldn't pay attention to Keira today!

After all, in two minutes, it would be tomorrow.

While he was thinking about this, the sound behind him stopped.

Lewis was perplexed.

Couldn't she try harder?

As he wrestled with these thoughts, suddenly a faint exclamation came from behind, "Ouch!"

Lewis immediately sat upright and turned to look!

At that moment, he was completely frozen in place.

490 Chapter 489

Yet behind him stood Keira, wearing a soft nightgown, with a small birthday cake in her hands and a smiling face.

The moment he turned his head, it was midnight, and a new day began.

Keira said, "Lewis, happy birthday."

Her smile was sweet and sincere, dazzling Lewis for a moment.

He stared at Keira in surprise, "You know?"

"Of course."

Keira slowly approached with the cake. "I have a very good memory. When we registered our marriage, I memorized your birthday."

Lewis was astonished. "Then today..."

He started, then suddenly realized something. "You did it on purpose?"

Holding back her laughter, Keira stepped forward again, placed the cake on the coffee table, and then, as if by magic, took out a small box from her pocket and handed it to him. "This is for you."

Lewis hesitated.

He slowly opened the box and found it was a watch.

It was handmade, not an electronic timepiece but an old-fashioned mechanical one, from a well-known brand, but a rather niche model.

Lewis liked it at first glance.

"You like it, don't you?"

After Keira asked and saw him nod, she laughed. "I knew you would like it."

Lewis chuckled again.

He immediately wore the watch on his wrist. Coupled with the watch and his black silk pajama set, Keira found him quite charming.

Lewis suddenly looked at her, "However, there's another gift that I like even more."

"Which is?"

As soon as Keira asked, she was engulfed by his embrace around her waist and then tumbled into his arms, feeling a ticklish sensation near her ear as his voice followed, "You..."

Keira was surprised.

She tried to push Lewis away but heard him ask, "When did you buy it?"

"Today. Why else would I take you shopping? It was so boring."

Keira had spent her entire life learning new things, and she actually didn't enjoy activities like shopping for clothes.

Lewis laughed again. "I was with you all day today. How did I not notice?"

Keira chuckled. "Of course, because I was facing away from you!~"

She had her eye on this specific watch for a while and had called the store to reserve it. Today, she just went to pick it up and slipped the watch into her shopping bag while he was turned around.

Lewis asked, "Have you been teasing me all day?"

"Yes, seeing you wanting a gift but acting proud was so fun!"

Keira held back her laughter.

She thought about the times he could hardly resist telling her the truth, but she intentionally found something to interrupt him.

Why should she care about people getting affectionate in the parking lot? Did he really think she liked to casually judge others? It was all just for a distraction!

Lewis pinched her waist.

Her waist had no excess fat and was smooth to the touch; one hand seemed almost enough to encircle it, making his large hand suddenly warm.

His eyes seemed to grow darker. "Is teasing me that amusing to you?"

Keira said, "The main point is that giving you a gift directly wouldn't have been as exciting. Isn't the contrast before and after more enjoyable for you?"

"Hmm, it is enjoyable."

Lewis leaned down, burying his face in her neck, his voice muffled. "This is the happiest birthday I've ever had."

Keira nodded upon hearing this.

Just as she was about to say something else, she heard him say, "However, I could be even happier. Keira, could you fulfill a small wish for me?"

"What?"

"My wish is..."

The next moment, affectionate sounds came out of the room.

...

Keira thought, "I'll never dare to mess with this dog of a man again!"

The next morning, as soon as Keira woke up and felt the lingering soreness on her body, she couldn't help but complain inwardly.

Lewis was refreshed and invigorated as if he had been injected with some magic potion.

Keira twitched the corner of her mouth, supported her waist to get out of bed, and then asked, "You're making an appearance at the banquet tonight, right?"

Hearing this, Lewis glanced at her and said, "Mhm, I can't delay it any longer."

The Horton family had been in Clance for three months, and his delayed appearance as the head of the family was starting to cause speculation among the branches of the family.

If he didn't show up soon, people might start thinking he had been ousted by Jake of the first branch of the family!

Keira nodded, "Okay!"

Then she said, "I'm going back to the Olsen family later and will go to the gala with them in the evening. What about you?"

"I'll take you to the Olsen family."

Keira didn't object.

After having breakfast together, Keira was dropped off at the Olsen family by Lewis.

As she got out of the car, Keira waved cheekily at Lewis, making his eyes to darken once again.

Meeting his intense gaze felt like being scorched, and she averted her eyes.

She smiled and then stepped into the Olsen family's living room.

Inside the living room.

At that moment, all seven Olsen brothers had gathered there. Ellis's fever had subsided, but his body was still weak from his recent illness.

Therefore, he sat quietly in a corner, lost in his own world.

The other six brothers huddled together, whispering among themselves.

"Lately, everyone in the circle has been badmouthing our little sister. What do we do about this?"

"The main thing is, Keira's show of affection has been too outrageous. No matter where she goes, she brings along that driver, making everyone in the circle aware that she's kept a gigolo!"

"If I were Lewis, I'd feel so humiliated by now!"

"What do we do now? I heard that the old Mrs. Horton seems quite displeased with Keera. These rumors must be coming from the Horton family itself... they must be true..."

"How do we convince Keira to break up with that gigolo?"

"Is it possible that... Keera wants to call off her engagement with Lewis more than we thought? She didn't grow up in the Olsen family after all; there's no need for her to marry into another family just for our sake..."

"You're right! I think so too!"

James burst out, "If Keera doesn't like Lewis, then let's make it clear with him this evening and call off the marriage!"

"Well, I think we shouldn't be hasty. We could wait and see... What if tonight, our cousin hits it off with Lewis?"

The youngest in the family, Charles, quietly voiced this opinion.

Amidst the discussion of everyone, Keira slowly walked in.

James coughed. "Keera, where's your gigolo?"

"Well, he went to get prepared."

"Prepare for what?"

"The banquet tonight."

"What?!"

James was stunned, "He's going too?"

Wasn't this a bit too disrespectful to the Horton family?!