

Married At First Sight Chapter 2905 -

Married At First Sight Chapter 2905-Camryn added, “Rowan is about to go on winter vacation. You brothers, take him out to play and relax. Children nowadays are under a lot of pressure to study.”

As far as Camryn knew, Rowan’s grades were very good. As long as he didn’t fail the college entrance examination, he could choose any of the key universities.

“He still has to make up classes. When he comes back from vacation, the New Year will be in a few days. Okay, his second sister-in-law, you, will speak for him. When he comes back from winter vacation, we will take him out to play for a few days.” Speaking of traveling, Callum asked enthusiastically, “Honey, do you want to go to the north to see snow? Have you seen real snow?”

Camryn said, “I haven’t seen snow, but I have felt the cold in the north. Aunt Azalea took me all over the country to seek medical advice. I have been to many cities in the north, but I couldn’t see it at that time. I had never seen snow before.”

Before Camryn became blind, she could not travel with her because of her mother’s obstruction, so she had never seen snow. Before she lost her sight, the furthest place she had ever been was Aunt Azalea’s house, where it never snowed in the winter.

Callum asked, “How about we go to the north to watch the snow during the New Year?”

Camryn was very excited at first, but thinking of her own situation, she said, “Let’s wait until next year to make arrangements. I can see now, but from a distance, I still can’t see clearly. When I go out to play, I can only see what’s in front of me. The scenery is not beautiful enough, and I cannot appreciate the shock that the northern ice and snow world brings to me.”

Callum looked into her eyes distressedly.

Camryn smiled and said, “Husband, you don’t have to look at me like this. I’m fine now. Really, I thought I was going to spend the rest of my life in darkness. I didn’t expect that one day I would see the light again.”

Camryn stopped, raised her head, and touched Callum’s eyes.

Callum closed his eyes and let her touch them.

After touching his eyes, Camryn touched his face. Before, she could only imagine what he looked like by touching him with her hands.

Callum hugged her and let her lean against his chest. “Camryn, it’s too late for me to know you. If I had known you earlier, I would have protected you well and not let you be bullied by them.”

Camryn said, “If you had known me earlier, you might not have liked me. Whenever we met, it was fate for both of us.”

The couple looked at each other, and Callum lowered his head and kissed her red lips.

After a kiss, Camryn gently pushed him away, clasped his fingers together again, and continued to move forward.

The couple didn’t speak for a while.

Reminiscing about the deep kiss just now.

The couple walked around the villa for an hour before returning to the house.

Rosella and Matthias were talking about something. Rosella had a big red brocade box on her lap. Just now, the couple was discussing what kind of clothes would look better with the set of jewelry in the brocade box.

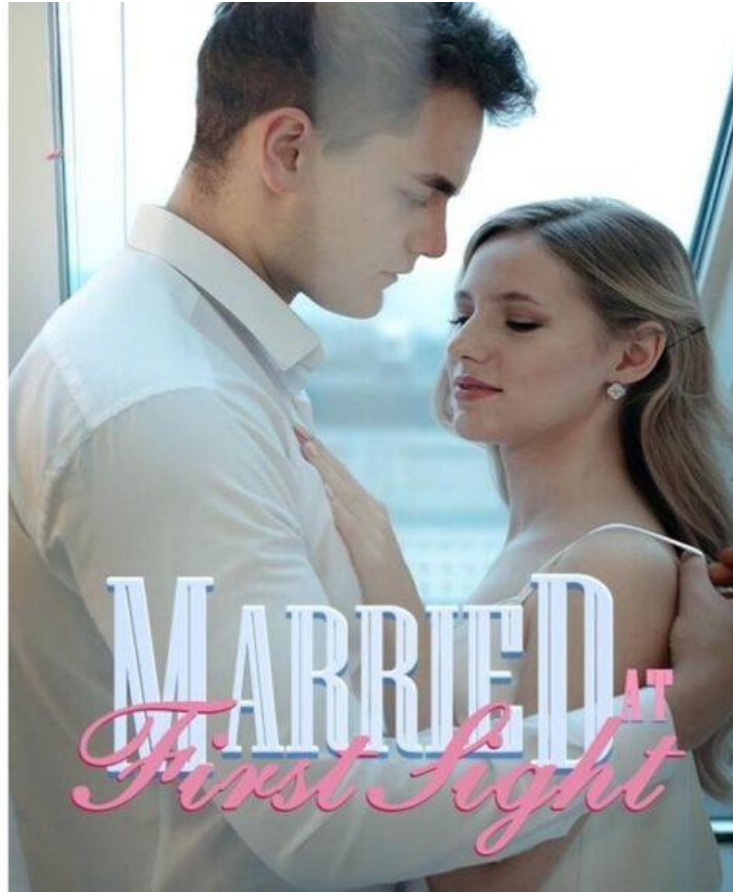

Seeing her son and daughter-in-law coming back, Rosella immediately waved to her daughter-in-law and shouted, “Camryn, come here, come here; mom has something for you.”

Camryn said, “Mom, you have something good for me again.”

Camryn had just entered the house, and she was still a little far away from her parents-in-law. She couldn’t see her parents-in-law very clearly, but when her mother-in-law spoke, she could distinguish them through her voice.

As the distance got closer, what she saw became clearer and clearer.

Matthias took the initiative to make room for his daughter-in-law and let her sit next to Rosella.

Married At First Sight Chapter 2906-Matthias changed his position, patted his side, and motioned for Callum to sit next to him.

Callum sat down, looked at the big brocade box in front of Rosella, and asked Matthias softly, “Dad, what did my mother buy for my wife?”

Matthias said, “There is a set of jewelry in her trousseau. It is a piece of retro-style jewelry. Your mother wore it when she was young and then kept it. I took it out tonight when I thought about it. That set of jewelry is very suitable for your wife. She is tall and slim. She is naturally noble and can hold up that set of jewelry.”

Callum smiled: “I have already given several sets of jewelry to Camryn in my mother’s trousseau. I am still giving them away. I have two younger brothers, and my mother will have two daughters-in-law in the future.”

Of course Callum was happy when Rosella gave something nice to Camryn, but he also wanted to leave some for his two future sisters-in-law, lest they say that his mother is partial and is not conducive to the harmonious development of the family.

Callum also felt that Camryn had no shortage of jewelry. She couldn’t finish wearing all the jewelry he gave her.

Matthias said, “Your mother and your aunts all have their own small jewelry storehouse. It’s not like you don’t know that there are many more in the jewelry storehouse. When your mother married me before, the dowry was real. There are so many red makeups filling the room.

You are the eldest son, and Camryn is the eldest daughter-in-law. The first daughter-in-law is the one your mother loves the most. She has already stated that the three daughters-in-law will inherit her jewelry in the future. It is normal for the eldest daughter-in-law to inherit more.

Your two future sisters-in-law shouldn’t mind. Your grandma always looks at character when choosing her granddaughter-in-law. If she is petty and careless, your grandma will definitely look down on her. Don’t worry.”

Callum curled his lips and said in a low voice, “Dad, don’t you think my mother has stolen my limelight? She always gives so much jewelry to my wife. My wife is also filial. She always wears what my mother gives me. Yes, that would take up my position, and all the jewelry I gave her would be buried in dust.”

Matthias smiled. “You go complain to your mother. It’s useless to complain to me. Everyone in Wiltspoon knows that I, Matthias, am a strict henpecker.”

Callum: “...”

Why did he feel so proud when his dad said he was a strict wife?

The mother-in-law and daughter-in-law opposite, who were as good as mother and daughter, did not pay attention to the conversation between dad and son.

Rosella put the brocade box in front of Camryn and said to her daughter-in-law, “Camryn, this set of jewelry doesn’t look good on me now. I’m old and can’t afford the luxury of this set of jewelry. You are still young, and your appearance and temperament are all very good. I think it will suit you very well. I’ve given it to you. I’m going to attend a banquet in two days. It’s all those noble ladies. I want to take you with me. Just in time, you will stun them with this set of jewelry. By the way, are you free in the next two days?”

Camryn said she wanted to bring her daughter-in-law to the banquet, and then she remembered to ask her daughter-in-law if she was free. But the daughter-in-law also managed a lot of business.

Camryn smiled and said, “Mom wants to take me to the banquet. I’ll be free anytime.”

She had not yet appeared with her mother-in-law. It wasn’t long before she and Callum got their marriage certificates.

When she was unmarried, she couldn’t see. Even if Rosella was willing to take her and take care of her, she didn’t want to go with her. She was afraid that being a blind woman would become the focus of other people’s jokes and affect her mother-in-law’s mood.

“Mom, I want to go too.” As soon as Callum heard that Rosella was going to bring Camryn to the banquet, he immediately said, “I’ll be free in two days.”

He was worried about Camryn. Even if he knew that Rosella could protect Camryn, he didn’t feel at ease. He had to follow her to feel at ease.

