

Married At First Sight Chapter 2911

Married At First Sight Chapter 2911-Callum added, "However, since my wife has thought of it, I will let my wife get her wish. Don't worry, wife, I won't torment you in bed."

Callum took a Mandarin duck bath with her.

Camryn: "..."

This wolf!

"Honey, I'll get you some clothes and put in the bath water." Callum said as he stood up and walked out of the bedroom.

Having said that, Callum didn't really bother Camryn. The main reason was that it was already dark and he had to get up early to go back to work in the city tomorrow, so he felt sorry for her, who would be tired.

At the same time, in a large villa, Carrie, who had become Mrs. Labbe again, was lying on the luxurious bed and playing with her mobile phone.

She no longer desired to remain in the rented house as a result of the two aunts cutting her off and her subsequent rage at Camryn.

This time, she returned the rental.

It was better to be Mrs. Labbe, who was more comfortable and had the best food, clothing, and accommodation.

This was the life that Carrie used to live before.

The door was suddenly pushed open.

When Carrie heard the noise, she was startled, thinking that there was a burglar. The two bodyguards and four servants usually would not go upstairs.

Even if they came to see her for something, they would always make an internal call.

"It's so late, and you haven't slept yet. Are you waiting for me?"

A somewhat familiar yet unfamiliar voice sounded; it was Mr. Labbe.

When Carrie saw Mr. Labbe coming in, she immediately put her phone aside and slid out of bed. She walked barefoot to Mr. Labbe, put her arms around Mr. Labbe's neck, and said in a delicate voice, "Mr. Labbe, if you didn't tell me in advance when you arrived, I thought there was a burglar."

This time, her initiative and enthusiasm surprised Mr. Labbe.

Last time, she could be said to have ignored his wishes, and she was still very resistant. Now that she took the initiative to embrace him, he felt a little surprised.

It was not surprising because Carrie had been pampered since she was a child and had been used to living a wealthy life. The time in prison was what she least wanted to recall, and she also least wanted to live a life of hardship and lack of freedom.

Although Mr. Labbe took care of her and treated her like a pawn and plaything, he did not treat her badly in terms of material life.

The last time he left, he gave Carrie a bank card with millions on it. He didn't care how much she spent.

Usually, Carrie told the bodyguard what she wanted to buy and asked him to pay for it, and Mr. Labbe satisfied her.

She was used to this kind of life when she had clothes to wear, food to eat, luxury cars to travel around, bodyguards to follow her, and money to spend as she pleased, so she wanted to understand the benefits he could give her, so she accepted him.

Mr. Labbe laughed in his heart. This kind of woman is just having fun after being given money.

"It's very safe here. How could a thief break in? I'm on the plane all the time, and it's not convenient for me to call you. I wanted to give you a surprise."

Mr. Labbe said that he picked up Carrie, went straight back to the bed, put her down, and began to untie her tie.

...

Mr. Labbe sat against the head of the bed, holding Carrie in one hand and holding a cigarette in the other. Carrie was very discerning and immediately leaned over, took the lighter he had placed there from the bedside table, and helped him light the cigarette.

Mr. Labbe asked, "Would you like one?"

Carrie said, "I'm not very good at smoking."

She tasted it, and it was too choking, so she didn't want to smoke anymore.

Married At First Sight Chapter 2912-Carrie's mom also didn't let Carrie smoke. She let her do whatever she wanted, but she didn't allow her to smoke because her mom hates the smell of tobacco. If her dad smoked, her mom would drive him to the study to sleep.

Her mom also said that she would marry into the York family and become a young lady. If she smoked, the York family elders might not like her, which would lower her score and prevent her from marrying into the wealthiest family.

But these days, she didn't smoke and had no way to marry into the richest family.

She became the mistress of a middle-aged uncle.

It was all the fault of Camryn and Serenity!

Every time Carrie thought about her current situation, she hated Serenity and Camryn with their itching teeth.

"If you don't know how to smoke, you can learn to smoke. Sometimes, if you are in a bad mood, smoking two cigarettes can relieve your depression." Mr. Labbe stuffed a cigarette into Carrie and personally helped her light it.

Carrie took two puffs and then coughed violently.

Mr. Labbe laughed and said, "Just get used to it. It's easy to learn to smoke, but it's very difficult to quit smoking."

After finally stopping her coughing, Carrie said, "I used to go out and buy like crazy when I was in a bad mood. No matter if it was useful or not, I would buy what I liked. After I bought something, I felt better."

Mr. Labbe pinched her face and said, "Your method of relaxing your mood is not something that ordinary people can afford."

Carrie said, "My parents loved me the most. They gave me whatever I wanted. I was never short of money and lived a comfortable life. That blind woman, Camryn, was not even as good as a servant. She was not even independent at home. There were no other rooms, so she lived in a room with a servant. If it weren't for Serenity, I offended Mr. York, and our family would not be in this situation. Blind woman Camryn has cured her eyes, regained her sight, and married Callum. Why are she and Serenity so lucky?"

It was obvious that both of them were of a different origin than hers.

There was deep hatred and strong jealousy in Carrie's words.

She was just jealous of them.

Mr. Labbe bit her on the face, put out the cigarette butt, turned over, and pressed her down again. He said, "You have satisfied me. I will give you whatever you want and whoever you want to deal with. I've helped you deal with it."

Carrie immediately put out the cigarette butt.

After the clouds and rain, Carrie felt sleepy. She pulled the quilt to cover her and said while yawning, "Mr. Labbe, don't lie to me. I have nothing now but you."

And the pie that Mr. Labbe painted for her.

Mr. Labbe said, "You went to see the eldest young lady of the York family today."

She was very sleepy, and Mr. Labbe was still in good spirits.

Carrie said, "Well, I went to the bookstore and found an excuse to buy a set of materials for junior high school students. It cost a few hundred dollars. Mr.

Labbe, let me tell you, the face you gave me is really useful. Serenity didn't recognize me."

Carrie, who was terribly sleepy, regained her energy, opened her eyes, and said to Mr. Labbe, "I stood in front of her on purpose, but she didn't even recognize me."

Mr. Labbe said, "That's right, not everyone can get this kind of face that can look fake. Since she didn't recognize you, you should be more confident and don't feel guilty or afraid. They said you shrank when you saw Mr. York's car! It's easy for them to suspect you like this. They will suspect and target you if you don't offer any assistance. You will take all the benefits you get from me with interest. Come back; I won't do loss-making business."

When Mr. Labbe said this, his strong hand fell on Carrie's neck, tightening it quickly but then letting it go. Even so, Carrie's face turned pale, and she broke out in a cold sweat.

Mr. Labbe was so enthusiastic just now that Carrie couldn't help but fall in love with him, and now he would kill her. Just now, she felt murderous intent, which made her understand that if she couldn't satisfy him, he would really strangle her to death!

He said he had a lot of blood and human lives on his hands!

He was a devil!
