

A WARRIOR UNDEFEATABLE/

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3106-Thereafter, Zordey, his men, and Montane Daemon also went ashore. Some of the cultivators chose to stay on the beach, while others began walking into the dense jungle. This group was hoping to get lucky in their search for magical items.

As most of them were wandering cultivators who didn't belong to any group specifically, they entered the depths of the island in teams of two to three.

Although some of them started to disappear inexplicably, no one felt alarmed by it, for they barely knew each other.

In fact, they even suspected that someone was messing around in an effort to scare them so whoever it was could take the island's magical items for themselves..

Meanwhile, Jared and his companions had arrived deep inside the island, which was a dark place due to the towering trees blocking off the sunlight.

"Mr. Chance, look!" Cloud yelled abruptly. Stopping in their tracks, Jared and the others trailed their gaze along the trajectory of Cloud's finger. They were greeted by the sight of an altar formed from a bunch of rocks piled together.

"Why is there an altar here? From its battered condition, we can tell that someone must have come here a long time ago," Renault commented as he stared at the altar.

"Come, let's take a closer look. Be careful, everyone!" Jared proceeded to lead the group toward the altar, which was a few meters tall and covered in shrubs.

As it was built by piling some rocks together, it appeared incredibly simple. Surrounding the altar was a path that gave one access to the top.

Nonetheless, Jared and his companions could leap straight up, as it was only a few meters tall. Just as Cloud was about to do so, Jared stopped him.

“Don’t be reckless. Let’s take the stairs up first.”

It would be careless of Jared to allow Cloud to jump up there because he wasn’t sure if there were any traps or dangers lurking at the top.

“This altar looks really strange. Who in the world would build one on a far-flung island such as this?” Renault remarked with narrowed eyes and a quizzical look on his face. Despite the altar being barebones, its existence on the island was still puzzling.

“We’ll ascend it one by one, and I’ll be the first to do so. All of you can come up once I make sure it’s safe. On top of that, don’t forget to tread on the very steps I take.”

Jared, too, was baffled by the existence of the altar on this uninhabited island.

“Mr. Chance, you shouldn’t be taking such risks. I’ll send one of my disciples instead.” Holding Jared back, Renault instructed one of his men, “You, go up there. Watch yourself while doing so.”

“Understood!” The disciple began to ascend the steps carefully. While everyone held their breath, ready to react to any eventualities, the disciple proceeded forward fearfully.

Nevertheless, nothing happened even as he finally reached the top of the altar.

“What’s up there?” Renault asked the disciple. However, the disciple simply stared blankly at the center of the altar. It was as if he was dumbfounded by a shocking sight

Without a moment’s hesitation, Jared ran up the steps while Renault and Cloud followed closely behind with the other disciples.

No sooner had Jared stepped foot on the altar than he felt the appearance of an aura all around him. The supposedly empty forest, which was devoid of life a moment ago, was suddenly brimming with demon beast aura.

The turn of events baffled Jared, for he had no idea where the aura came from. There were no demon beasts in sight in the surroundings at all. When everyone arrived at the top, they were similarly left stunned.

One by one, their expressions froze as they stared at the center of the altar. Never in their wildest dreams had they expected to find something like that there

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3107-Everyone fell silent when they saw what was on the altar. After a while, Renault quietly remarked, “I can’t believe a small altar with no spiritual energy fluctuation like this would have such a frightening seal.”

“It’s powerful, but it looks like it’s no longer effective,” Jared commented. As it turned out, there was a two-meter-wide stone on the altar, its surface carved with complicated markings. At one glance, one could tell it was a sealing arcane array.

Nevertheless, the individuals present were unaware of what a modest altar like this could possibly be sealing, especially with the utilization of such a potent sealing arcane array.

Time had worn out the stone carved with the sealing arcane array, and the marks were barely visible. They could only catch a glimpse of its original shape.

Had they not witnessed it firsthand, nobody would have believed that such a weathered altar could house such a complex arcane array.

Most importantly, there were no spiritual energy fluctuations from the sealing stone. It was just like any ordinary stone, and that was why Jared's group had not sensed anything when they were below.

A sealing arcane array devoid of any spiritual energy fluctuations was impotent, which was why Jared remarked that the arcane array appeared to be ineffectual.

Regardless of the type, arcane arrays all needed to be powered by spiritual energy. Hence, some old arcane arrays would weaken from the loss of spiritual energy and eventually be rendered useless.

That was why some sealing arcane arrays had to be re-imbued with spiritual energy years later -to maintain their functionality.

Evidently, this sealing stone had been in existence for numerous years without any spiritual energy replenishment, rendering it inoperative.

Nonetheless, Jared was genuinely intrigued to discover what on earth on this island warranted the use of such an extensive and intricate sealing arcane array.

“I see some patterns on this stone that I can’t identify. Is this really a sealing arcane array? Is it as remarkable as you claim?” Cloud knew little about arcane arrays, so he reached out, thinking of touching it.

“Don’t!” Jared stopped him. “Before we figure out whether or not this arcane array is actually inactive, don’t touch it.”

Jared’s words frightened Cloud, who quickly stopped moving. Meanwhile, Renault took out a wooden doll from his pocket and placed his hands together to inject his spiritual energy into it. Soon, the wooden doll began moving, getting more and more flexible with each passing second.

“Let this wooden doll test how safe the arcane array is first.”

As Renault spoke, he threw the wooden doll out. In the next second, the wooden doll grew larger until it was about one meter tall before it started walking toward the sealing stone. “I never knew you learned the Spiritwood Transforming Technique, Old Mr. Seizon.”

Jared had not anticipated that Renault, a leader of a sect that mainly dealt with business, would possess knowledge of such a technique. While Jared had encountered this technique before, it was not widely known among cultivators.

“No, no, Mr. Chance. I bought this for a hefty sum. I wouldn’t know about these techniques. This wooden doll already has an arcane array on it,” Renault clarified, sheepishly chuckling.

Hearing that, Jared realized that, like the communication device, Renault's wooden doll already had an arcane array carved into it by a mage, so all Renault needed to do was use it whenever he wanted.

Nevertheless, the wooden doll had to be extremely expensive. Jared just did not know how much more expensive it was than the communication device.

If Renault was capable of buying this, that meant Stellaris Sect was earning big bucks. While Jared was talking to Renault, the wooden doll Renault was controlling suddenly started shaking.

At that, Renault hastily tried to control it, but ultimately, the doll was dismantled into a pile of rotten wood. Seeing that, he

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3108-However, Jared smiled and shook his head, saying, "Old Mr. Seizon, it wasn't because of the sealing stone's power.

You've been tricked. The arcane array on this wooden doll is flawed, and that is why it ended up falling apart. It looks like the guy who sold you the wooden doll is only an amateur mage."

Renault was instantly enraged. "F*ck! How dare he lie to me? I spent hundreds of millions of spirit coins on this! If I see that guy, I'm going to skin him alive! Mr. Chance, what do we do now? Should I send one of my disciples to test it out?"

"No need." Jared waved dismissively before breaking a nearby tree branch to hold in his hand. Then, as he muttered an incantation, the branch began moving. As though it had turned into a human, it started wriggling. In the next second, it leaped onto the sealing stone.

Then, with Jared's control, the branch started jumping on the stone, but neither the stone nor the altar showed any response.

Seeing Jared's skills, Renault could not help but feel admiration for the young man. Regardless of Jared's actual strength, with this technique alone, he could surely make a fortune in the Ethereal Realm.

Alas, Jared was not in the Ethereal Realm to make money, he had no attachment to wealth. "It seems like this sealing arcane array has already become ineffective. No issues here," Jared casually remarked as he waved his hand, turning the tree branch into powder.

"I had a feeling there wouldn't be any issues. There's no way an arcane array would have no spiritual energy fluctuations.

Judging by the level of damage to this stone, it's probably been here for thousands of years," Cloud said as he approached and touched the sealing stone.

It did not react at all. Upon realizing that Cloud had touched the sealing stone without any consequences, Jared was confident that the sealing arcane array had indeed become ineffective.

Otherwise, to protect the seal from being broken, there would be defensive arcane arrays integrated into the sealing arcane array. If anyone touched or deliberately damaged it, the defensive arcane array would activate and harm the intruder.

That was why Jared initially discouraged Cloud from touching the sealing stone. "It appears to be an abandoned altar and no longer of any use."

Renault sighed, a tinge of disappointment lacing his words. Stumbling upon an ancient altar like this, anyone would hope to discover valuable magical items. However, it appeared that this altar had been abandoned for quite some time.

“It seems like there’s no point in lingering here. We should continue our exploration elsewhere.”

Jared assessed the surroundings. The unadorned altar didn’t seem to hold any immediate promise, so he called out to move on.

Nevertheless, at that very moment, Cloud, who had placed his hand on the mysterious sealing stone, unexpectedly channeled a surge of spiritual energy into it.

Buzz! The vibrations started instantly as Cloud’s action triggered an unexpected response from the sealing stone. A powerful force then thrust Cloud away.

“Cloud!”

Seeing this, Renault reacted swiftly, jumping into the air to catch Cloud. Cloud appeared shaken, his face displaying discomfort.

“Are you okay?” Jared inquired. “I’m all right; it wasn’t too serious. However, the energy that surged from the stone was extraordinary,” Cloud replied, still recovering from the shock.

“It seems that this sealing arcane array hasn’t lost its potency. In fact, it remains rather formidable. The reason it appeared as an ordinary stone, devoid of spiritual energy fluctuations, is likely because its creator intentionally concealed its true nature. This deliberate camouflage served as a protective measure for the arcane array. What a brilliant mind..."

Jared couldn't help but admire the genius behind this setup.

"But, could it be that this sealing arcane array is here to contain some truly ominous creature or entity beneath this altar?

Otherwise, why go to such lengths?" Renault mused, gazing at the sealing stone now emitting a faint, eerie glow.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3109-Now that the sealing arcane array had been inadvertently triggered by Cloud, it produced noticeable spiritual energy fluctuations around the stone.

It was possible that once they departed, the sealing stone might revert to its initial condition. Nonetheless, at this particular moment, it emanated spiritual energy ripples and gleamed brightly.

"I'm also quite curious about what is concealed beneath this altar. This is such a formidable sealing formation. If it isn't used to imprison a demon beast or a Demonic Cultivator, then it could be-"

Jared halted abruptly, his expression darkening.

"Mr. Chance, what could it be?" Cloud asked curiously. Without uttering a word, Jared abruptly ascended into the air.

Flying on this small island wasn't impeded. Thus, he rose above and surveyed the entire expanse.

After a few minutes, Jared descended with a considerably more solemn expression. "It's possible that what we're looking at here is merely the core of a sealing arcane array. The entire island is actually the real arcane array, and what it's sealing is beneath it," Jared speculated aloud.

Cloud was left flabbergasted by the notion. Even though they referred to this island as “small,” it spanned tens of thousands of square kilometers. How could such an immense island serve as the location for a sealing arcane array?

Who could have established such an enormous sealing arcane array? Immortals from the celestial realm?

Renault was also startled by Jared’s hypothesis and promptly shook his head, remarking, “Mr. Chance, your conjecture is incredibly audacious. It can’t be true. How could someone create a sealing arcane array on such a colossal scale?

Additionally, if it indeed is an enormous sealing array, the entity sealed within must be unimaginably terrifying.”

“Maybe I’m overthinking it.” Jared smiled faintly when he saw Cloud and Renault’s shocked expressions. He wasn’t sure about his speculation, but the island was peculiar, especially with the sudden appearance of the altar. The entire island was filled with an eerie atmosphere, making Jared’s imagination go wild.

Cloud inquired, “Mr. Chance, what should our next course of action be? Should we attempt to break this seal? It’s possible that it’s not a demon beast beneath it but rather something like a weapon soul. This location was once an ancient battlefield, and numerous spirit weapons and sacred items were left behind. Even if we can acquire a somewhat damaged ancient divine weapon, it would be of great value. If it possesses a weapon soul, that would be ideal.”

Jared gazed at the sealing stone and shook his head. “Let’s not touch this seal for now. If there’s something terrifying sealed beneath, we’d only be inviting trouble. This island must’ve been here for years. There’s not a single living creature besides the birds flying above. It's too eerie, so let's not take unnecessary risks."

Jared was apprehensive about the peculiar island and didn't dare to act rashly.

"Mr. Chance, you're correct. This island gives off an unsettling vibe. It's best not to meddle with whatever lies beneath.

Instead, let's focus on locating those missing individuals. If we can find them and figure out a way to leave this island swiftly, that would be the best. I have a foreboding feeling about this place."

Renault also concurred with the decision not to tamper with the seal. After all, if someone had established such a sealing arcane array here, they couldn't be ordinary mortals. If there truly was a fearsome demon beast sealed below, they wouldn't stand a chance.

"Let's go," Jared urged. They decided not to touch the arcane array. As they were preparing to leave, a series of footsteps sounded not far away.

Hearing the footsteps, everyone paused for a moment, realizing that another group had arrived on the island. However, they had no information about the identity of these newcomers.

"Could it be our missing comrades finding their way here?" one of the Stellaris Sect disciples asked excitedly.