

A WARRIOR UNDEFEATABLE/

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3376-Jared's voice sounded heavenly when Rosetta heard it. When she saw Jared, she shouted in excitement, "Help me, Mr. Chance!" Jared kept the Demon Flogger aside and whipped out his Dragonslayer Sword.

He then swung the sword forcefully at the shield, thinking he could break it.

Boom!

Those transparent barriers were surprisingly still there. Jared's Dragonslayer Sword had cut through the shield, but the shield didn't suffer any damage.

"Huh? That's weird..." Jared's curiosity was piqued. How did the demon beasts come up with such a thing?

Seeing that sheer power couldn't break the shield, Jared ignited a ball of flame in his palm and tried to use demonic fire to break the shield. Since I can't break it with sheer power, let me try burning it down!

To his disappointment, not even demonic fire could damage the shield. Jared panicked when he couldn't break the shield because the demon beasts were closing in on them.

He felt helpless, and in the next second, the draconic essence on his chest started to glimmer. Afterward, rays of golden light spread out all over the place.

A torrent of the Power of Dragons shot toward the shield.

The moment the Power of Dragons reached the shield, the shield vanished.

At the same time, the fast-approaching demon beasts, with terror in their eyes, gradually halted in their tracks.

Rosetta heaved a sigh of relief when she saw that. While relying on the Power of Dragons to suppress the demon beasts, Jared slowly led Rosetta backward to pull away from the demon beasts.

However, the demon beasts would take a step toward them every time they took a step backward. When Jared stopped, the demon beasts would also do the same.

This was repeated many times, and Jared was utterly baffled.

“Have these demon beasts gone mad? Why won’t they let us go?” Rosetta grumbled.

“This is indeed very odd. Why are these demon beasts after us? Did you provoke them?” Jared asked in confusion.

“I didn’t! I simply picked up a rock, and they just started chasing after me,” Rosetta replied.

“A rock?” Only then did Jared notice a rock in Rosetta’s arms.

Jared took the rock from Rosetta and saw the weird ripples on it. When he injected a thread of his spiritual sense into it, he was stunned. This isn’t a rock!

This is an egg! No wonder those demon beasts chased after Rosetta. This must be their egg! It’s only natural for them to protect their egg.

“This isn’t a rock. This is an egg,” Jared uttered in a helpless tone.

Rosetta felt embarrassed when she heard that. “I saw the ripples on it and thought it had to be a magical item. That was why I took it. I had no idea…” Holding the egg in his hand, Jared looked at the leader of the demon beasts and said, “We’re so sorry. We didn’t mean to steal your beast egg. This is just a misunderstanding. I’m giving it back to you now.” Those demon beasts possessed spiritual intelligence, so they understood Jared’s words.

Most importantly, they also feared him because of the Power of Dragons he possessed.

If not for the Power of Dragons, the demon beasts would have ignored Jared’s words, howled at him, and attacked him.

The demon beasts nodded in response. Jared placed the beast egg on the ground and pulled Rosetta backward.

Seeing that, the leader of the demon beasts opened its mouth and kept the beast egg in its mouth.

After that, it looked at Jared and Rosetta. "You guys came in to look for treasures, right? Follow me..." With that, the leader of the demon beasts turned around and left. The rest of the demon beasts followed suit.

Intrigued, Jared and Rosetta exchanged glances before they followed the demon beasts from behind.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3377-Jared and Rosetta ran behind the demon beasts, and soon, they ran a long distance. The two of them followed the demon beasts from the boundless wilderness to the hills.

Scared, Rosetta asked, "Mr. Chance, where are these demon beasts bringing us? I didn't pick up the rock from here." "I don't know, but these demon beasts have lived on the Celestial Battlefield for ages. They surely know where the magical items are. We just need to follow them. I don't think these demon beasts mean harm. We should be fine." Jared was just as clueless, but he was determined to keep following the demon beasts.

After they crossed a hill with the demon beasts, a field filled with shiny items soon appeared in front of them.

At a closer look, Jared saw that the field was filled with weapons. However, the weapons were damaged. Well, it was a fierce battle. When the immortals fought the demonic immortals, their weapons were bound to get damaged.

Nevertheless, it's weird how big a pile of weapons is gathered here! It doesn't seem like the weapons were dropped here. Instead, it looks as if someone has purposely collected and piled up all these weapons!

Right then, the leader of the demon beasts said, "I picked up these weapons." Jared was baffled when he heard that. Oh! So this demon beast collected all these weapons. No wonder after we entered the Celestial Battlefield, all we saw were piles of bones without weapons lying around. But why did this demon beast pick up all the damaged weapons? Is this its hobby?

Jared asked curiously, "Why did you collect these weapons?" "These weapons all have celestial energy left in them. I need the celestial energy..." the leader of the demon beasts answered.

“Celestial energy?” Jared froze momentarily. I’m not sensing any celestial energy!

Without saying a word, the leader of the demon beasts walked toward the pile of weapons.

Seeing that, Jared followed behind. Soon, the two seemed to have passed through a transparent shield, and Jared even saw ripples in the void as they passed through. The moment Jared passed through the shield, a burst of celestial energy greeted him.

Jared was dumbstruck. So these weapons still have celestial energy in them, and there’s a force blocking the celestial energy! That’s why I didn’t sense anything just now! Now that I’ve passed through the shield, I can sense the intense celestial energy everywhere!

“The celestial energy is very intense. Did you collect these weapons to cultivate by using the celestial energy they hold?” Jared asked the leader of the demon beasts.

The leader of the demon beasts shook its head. “I don’t need the damaged weapons’ celestial energy to cultivate. Mystical herbs are abundant on the Celestial Battlefield, and they’re all exceptionally lush.” “Then why did you gather these weapons here?” Jared cast the leader of the demon beasts a confused look.

The leader of the demon beasts didn’t answer Jared. Instead, it kept walking forward, and Jared and Rosetta followed it from behind.

Stepping on the weapons under their feet, they just kept walking forward. When they arrived before a big pile of weapons, the leader of the demon beasts used its thick and robust tail to scatter the weapons aside.

After the weapons were shoved aside, Jared and Rosetta saw a colorful beast egg covered with various patterns.

As it turned out, the weapons were used to bury the beast egg. Jared looked at the beast egg and noticed it looked different from the one Rosetta had picked up earlier.

“Is this beast egg yours?” Jared asked tentatively

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3378-The leader of the demon beasts shook its head. "No. If it were mine, I wouldn't have buried it underneath these weapons. I don't know what's in this beast egg either. Nonetheless, I know it has been absorbing celestial energy all along. To incubate it, I gathered these weapons for the celestial energy within to assist the process. Regrettably, this beast egg still doesn't show any signs of hatching after thousands of years have passed. But from the look of it, the creature within might be a spirit beast. If it were ordinary demon beasts like us, it would have hatched long ago with such rich celestial energy enveloping it." "A spirit beast egg?" Jared was surprised. Not only were spirit beasts exceedingly rare, but their capabilities were multiple times greater than those of ordinary demon beasts.

In the celestial realm, only immortals of sufficient strength were worthy of owning spirit beasts as mounts.

"So, why did you bring me here?" Jared asked.

"You have the aura of the beast race and the power of the Draconians, so I'd like you to hatch this spirit beast egg. If you succeed in doing so, this spirit beast will be of greater value than all magical items on the Celestial Battlefield," the leader of the demon beasts answered.

Jared studied the leader of the demon beasts quietly before he questioned with a slight frown, "Why are you helping me? Is it because of the Power of Dragons within me?" "No. I'm not helping you but myself." The demon beast paused briefly before continuing, "The Celestial Battlefield has opened, and our clan's life will soon be disrupted. At that time, we are sure to be massacred and our beast cores will be taken away. I only hope you can seal off the entrance when the Celestial Battlefield closes. All we want is to have a peaceful life. We don't want to cultivate to attain immortality, merely wishing to be left alone. Actually, it's been pretty nice in the thousands of years we've lived here." His voice carried a great deal of helplessness. At present, few had entered the Celestial Battlefield, yet one of their beast eggs had been stolen by Rosetta. If the number of people increased, their entire clan might be wiped out.

The demon beasts living in the Celestial Battlefield had no way of ascending to immortality as that place was created by men.

If they wanted to ascend to immortality, they had to destroy the Celestial Battlefield. Alternatively, another immortal had to come and wreck that place before freeing them.

However, judging from the current situation, it seemed they did not want to leave or ascend to immortality to live forever.

All they wanted was a peaceful life.

“Okay, I give you my word. But I’m afraid that my capabilities won’t suffice to seal off the entrance to the Celestial Battlefield,” Jared agreed to the request of the leader of demon beasts, but he had just broken through to Tribulator, so it would not be easy for him to seal off the entrance to the Celestial Battlefield forever.

“So long as you promise me that, I trust you can do it. You have the Power of Dragons within you. You are undoubtedly capable of achieving it.” The leader of the demon beasts had great faith in Jared because he believed in the Power of Dragons within the man.

As part of the beast race, he knew of the might of the Power of Dragons.

“I’ll do my best!” Jared nodded.

“If this is a spirit beast egg, please treat it well.” With that said, the leader of the demon beast spun on his heel and left. It would appear that the demon beasts did not live there. They had merely led Jared and Rosetta over.

“Is this really a spirit beast egg, Mr. Chance?” Rosetta did not quite believe it since she had never seen a spirit beast.

“It’s possible. There must have been spirit beasts joining the battle on the Celestial Battlefield. Leaving a spirit beast egg behind is within the realm of possibility.” After saying that, Jared slowly walked toward the spirit beast egg. Then, he reached out and stroked it.

To his surprise, the spirit beast egg felt warm and was incredibly comfortable to the touch.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3379-Jared could distinctly sense movement within the spirit beast egg, but when he used his spiritual sense to probe it, it could not penetrate the beast egg at all.

Besides, when he did that, the spirit beast egg seemingly reacted.

The peculiar patterns on it abruptly emitted colorful lights.

The lights shot into the sky and exploded like fireworks. Immense fright struck Jared, upon which he hastily retracted his hand and gaped at the spirit beast egg that emitted colorful lights.

The colorful lights appeared particularly eye-catching in the dark and gloomy Celestial Battlefield. All those who had entered the Celestial Battlefield saw the colorful lights.

“What kind of magical item has been unearthed?” Pablo was suspended in mid-air right then. Beneath his feet was the dead body of a demon beast, and a bloody beast core was in his hand.

The instant he caught sight of the colorful lights, murderous intent blazed in his eyes. No matter the person who obtained that magical item, he was determined to fight for it without hesitation. Mercy did not exist in the Celestial Battlefield, much less emotions.

Everyone’s sole goal was to get their hands on the magical items they wanted.

People started heading in the direction of the lights. By then, Jared had already taken his hand off the spirit beast egg, so the lights were slowly fading.

Nonetheless, his brows were creased deeply, for he knew the lights earlier must have attracted others’ attention.

He did not want to attract any attention since he was only there to hunt for magical items and had no plans to fight. Presently, however, there was nothing he could do about it.

“Mr. Chance, I think we should leave this place as soon as possible with this spirit beast egg. Someone is bound to come in a while,” Rosetta urged after glancing around.

I can leave with this spirit beast egg, but isn’t it too great a pity not to absorb and put the rich celestial energy here to good use?

Following a brief contemplation, Jared lowered his head and picked out four magic swords from the pile of weapons. Then, he drove them into the ground in the four respective corners.

All four magic swords had defects, but he could not be bothered about that right then. Subsequently, he began drawing arcane arrays under the four swords.

Mysterious arcane arrays took shape, one after another.

On the heels of that, he connected all of them together. In no time, a massive arcane array was completed through his effort alone.

Rosetta stared at Jared in shock, never having expected the man to be capable of drawing such an enormous arcane array. Jared was already drenched in sweat at that moment. Still, he did not give up but continued drawing.

When the last stroke of the arcane array was completed, bursts of white mist promptly materialized from all around and enshrouded Jared and Rosetta.

From the air, the area would appear entirely white, the situation within obscured.

On top of that, the arcane array could block spiritual sense. Even if someone wanted to use spiritual sense to probe into it, they would never succeed in discerning anything.

“Please keep guard over me for the time being, Ms. Lothian. I’m going to absorb the celestial energy here. Once I’m done, we shall leave this place,” Jared said to Rosetta.

“Don’t worry, Mr. Chance. I’ll keep guard over you to the death.” Rosetta gave a dip of her head.

Jared swiftly sat cross-legged and closed his eyes lightly. His body started absorbing the celestial energy around him rapidly.

Focus Technique circulated at lightning speed, and he unleashed all of his potential.

He had no other choice either since he simply could not bear to give up the rich celestial energy there.

While he was cultivating, a middle-aged man appeared a near distance away.

Glancing around, the middle-aged man frowned. "This should be the right direction. I couldn't have made a mistake. Why can't I see them anymore?" It was all too clear that he was searching for the colorful light beams earlier to see the exact kind of magical item that had emitted such dazzling lights.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3380-The middle-aged man leaped up to hover in mid-air before casting his gaze into the distance. Soon, he discovered a vast expanse of white mist a stone's throw away. It remained dense and only enveloped a few radii.

Seeing that, he quickly flew over. While doing so, he released a sliver of spiritual sense. He found no one around, but when his spiritual sense entered the white mist, it suddenly disappeared without any response.

"Could this be an arcane array someone set up that even spiritual sense can't penetrate it?" His brows furrowed. He then took two black balls out of his pocket and threw them on the ground. They exploded, and two starving wolves charged out of the black mist.

Under the middle-aged man's command, they rushed into the white mist. But no sooner had they done so than two agonizing howls rang out. After that, nothing else was heard from the two starving wolves.

The middle-aged man's expression turned solemn. At just that moment, however, there was a sudden fluctuation in the white mist.

Immediately after, a sword flew out.

The middle-aged man's eyes went cold, and he shot his palm out at the sword.

Boom!

Following that strike, the sword shattered into pieces.

While at a loss, the middle-aged man abruptly realized that a figure had streaked to his front. On the heels of that, a flash of white light glinted before him.

He frowned. In the blink of an eye, a black shield materialized outside him and blocked off that flash of white light.

On a closer look, he realized that a girl with a sword in hand was glaring at him.

The girl was none other than Rosetta. Upon learning that someone had come, she had chosen to charge out of the arcane array to prevent the person from disrupting Jared when he was cultivating.

Looking at her, the middle-aged man laughed. "How daring of you to sneak an attack on me with such paltry capabilities, girl. You must be sick of living. In view that we're both demons, I'll spare you. But what kind of magical item emitted those colorful lights earlier? Hand it over at once." Seeing that Rosetta was also a Demonic Cultivator, he planned to spare her, only demanding that she hand the magical item to him.

"In your dreams! That belongs to Mr. Chance. How can I possibly hand it to you?" Rosetta snarled with fury written all over her face and her eyes wide.

"How daring to insist on doing this the hard way, girl. Then, I shall kill you first and lay here in ambush for the magical item." The middle-aged man shot his hands out without warning. A monstrous black mist erupted from his body and quickly transformed into a black python before attacking Rosetta.

Rosetta's expression changed slightly. She hastily swung the sword in her hand, upon which glints of light shot into the sky.

"Quick, come back, Ms. Lothian!" Just then, Jared's voice drifted into her ears.

The middle-aged man was a Sixth Level Tribulator cultivator, while Rosetta was only a Second Level Tribulator cultivator. The gap was vast, so she could not possibly be his match.

Hearing Jared's voice, Rosetta wanted to retreat to the arcane array. Alas, it was already too late. The black python had already reached her. Panic swamped her. As she was at a loss, three flashes of light suddenly shot out.

They instantly pierced the black python. Under the attack, the solid black python promptly turned into a cloud of black mist and slowly dissipated.

Looking closely, Rosetta found that the three flashes of light were three swords.

All of them were the magic swords Jared had used to set up the arcane array at the beginning.

She seized the opportunity to retreat into the arcane array. By then, Jared had already opened his eyes and was currently staring at the middle-aged man outside.

“It looks like this place will be increasingly dangerous, Mr. Chance. Soon, many people will be here,” Rosetta said to Jared, fear lingering within her.

Naturally, Jared knew that staying would be beyond dangerous. However, celestial energy was bountiful there, and he truly could not bear to give it up.

Slowly, the white mist from the arcane array dissipated, baring Jared’s and Rosetta’s figures before the middle-aged man.
