

A WARRIOR UNDEFEATABLE/ Read A Man Like None Other Chapter 3381

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3381-The sight of the weapons littering the ground had the middle-aged man's eyes brimming with greed.

But in no time, his attention fell on the spirit beast egg with peculiar patterns on it.

Perceiving that Jared and Rosetta were only cultivators who had just broken through Tribulator, he felt much more relieved.

"If you two get out right now and hand over everything here, I can spare you.

Otherwise, both of you will die with a blow from me," he threatened.

"We'll never give them up to you," Rosetta declared with an icy expression.

Jared uncharacteristically had fear etched across his features. "We only discovered this place by chance, sir. We can hand everything over to you, but you must promise not to kill us." Seeing his tactfulness, the middle-aged man nodded and replied, "Of course.

There's no grudge between us. I came to the Celestial Battlefield for magical items, not to kill people. As long as you both behave, I won't kill you." "All right, then. We'll give you everything now." After Jared said that, he threw Rosetta a look. "Let's go. The arcane array is gone, and we have no hope of stopping him." Surprise showed on Rosetta's face, and she gaped at him in disbelief. She did not understand why he had suddenly changed.

Isn't he being too much of a coward? Although the intruder is at Sixth Level Tribulator, he's capable of fighting a cultivator of that caliber! Why is he backing down before even giving it a try?

Nonetheless, she did not give voice to it, merely following him out of the arcane array.

When Jared and Rosetta had walked out, the middle-aged man released his spiritual sense and discovered that the arcane array had indeed been dismantled. Only then did he step in with peace of mind.

The sight of the weapons blanketing the ground and the spirit beast egg had him guffawing excitedly. “Haha... This is a windfall! I’ve hit the jackpot!” While most of the weapons were damaged, they were still divine weapons used by immortals. They were much stronger than the average weapon despite the damage.

Seeing the middle-aged man’s excited look, Jared made to leave while pulling Rosetta along.

“We’ve already given everything to you. What else do you want?” Jared asked.

“What else? To kill you two, of course. There are too many things here. If I want to take them all away, I will need some time. But you both know this place. If I let you go, won’t others come to learn of it as well?” “Don’t worry. The two of us won’t tell anyone about it,” Jared vowed.

“Haha... I only trust dead people!” the middle-aged man countered with a bark of laughter.

Despite knowing that the middle-aged man wanted to go back on his word and kill them, Jared remained calm. The corners of his mouth turned up, and he drawled, “I just knew you wouldn’t let us both go. Since you want to kill me, it’s only natural for me to kill you now.” “Hmph! You’re only a First Level Tribulator cultivator, yet you want to kill me?” The middle-aged man snorted coldly. He did not believe that Jared could kill him.

“Didn’t you consider why I handed everything to you and allowed you to enter the arcane array when I knew full well that you wanted to kill us?” Jared grinned, his smile rather insidious. As the middle-aged man looked at that smile, his heart abruptly jolted. At that precise moment, his expression started contorting, and he screamed in agony.

“Ahh! My head! My head!” he howled in pain, sensing worms crawling around in his brain, eating away at his spiritual sense.

“What’s happening to him, Mr. Chance?” Rosetta asked in puzzlement upon seeing that the middle-aged man was suddenly acting as if he had lost his mind.

“He has been infected by my parasitic silkworm. Soon, he’ll become an empty shell,” Jared explained.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3382-While the middle-aged man was speaking, Jared had discreetly let out the parasitic silkworms. By the time the middle-aged man stepped into the arcane array, the parasitic silkworms had crept into his body.

This time, Jared had unleashed all the silkworms he had, keeping only the parasitic silkworm king. After all, he felt it a shame to use so many of the parasitic silkworms which he had raised with his own blood.

However, faced with a Sixth Level Tribulator cultivator, Jared needed a significant amount of them, for someone of that caliber had an extremely attuned spiritual sense.

Fortunately, the parasitic silkworms Jared raised were particularly powerful.

Even against a Sixth Level Tribulator, they would make quick work of his spiritual sense.

Within a few minutes, the middle-aged man’s eyes became listless, and all that was left of him was an empty shell. Watching the change in the man, Rosetta wanted to destroy his physical body but was stopped by Jared.

“Leave his corpse. I have use for it.” Jared pulled the man’s body to the side of the arcane array and stuffed a pill into the man’s mouth. Following that, the aura of a Sixth Level Tribulator gradually emanated from the man’s body.

In the meantime, Jared arranged another arcane array with the weapons on the floor. Thereafter, a white mist saturated the area again.

The difference this time was that the aura of a Sixth Level Tribulator was being emitted from the mist-covered arcane array.

Using the lifeless shell of the middle-aged man, Jared created a Sixth Level Tribulator scarecrow, whose powerful presence within the arcane array would keep other cultivators away.

Once he was done with his arrangements, Jared reminded Rosetta not to step out of the arcane array before continuing to absorb celestial energy.

For the next three days, no one came to bother them, either because no one found them or whoever that did was warded off by the aura of a Sixth Level Tribulator. As a result, Jared managed to cultivate in peace for three entire days.

Although Jared's Focus Technique was incredibly powerful, he still failed to absorb all the celestial energy within the area in that period.

Meanwhile, outside the Celestial Battlefield, the three-day advantage of the VIP token holders had ended. Thus, hordes of cultivators began to swarm into it, causing the Celestial Battlefield to suddenly be brimming with cultivators.

As for Creston Sect, they had accumulated large amounts of spirit coins and resources from the sale of tokens.

"Mr. Chevalier, Old Mr. Giuvali, we have obtained the tokens to enter the Celestial Battlefield. We can go in now," Cloud said to Hamish and Misho after purchasing the tokens.

He alone had paid for the tokens for the entire group, which numbered more than ten people. Since Cloud was wealthy, Jared assigned the responsibility of obtaining the tokens to him and Feenix.

"Thank you very much, Mr. Seizon." Everyone took turns to express their gratitude to Cloud.

"There's no need to thank me. I'm just carrying out Mr. Chance's instructions.

One more thing- once we enter the Celestial Battlefield, we might land in a random place, so there's a chance we'll be separated despite entering the battlefield together. I have here a few communication devices. All of you should take one. They will help us keep in touch in the event of emergencies." Cloud brought out a bag of communication devices and gave them out to everyone.

To the other cultivators, the communication devices were rare contraptions, but to Jared, who had forged them, they were merely tools he could create with a snap of his fingers.

With that, everyone stepped through the entrance and entered the Celestial Battlefield with the communication devices in hand.

Back inside the Celestial Battlefield, Jared gradually opened his eyes. Staring at the undisturbed arcane array, he asked, “Ms. Lothian, did anything happen over the last three days?” “It was uneventful outside the arcane array, but the spirit beast egg seemed to have moved by itself a little,” Rosetta replied as she pointed at the beast egg.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3383-“It moved?” Jared examined the spirit beast egg before giving it a gentle stroke. He wanted to feel what was inside it. However, the moment he made contact with the egg, a rainbow-like ray shot into the sky without warning.

The scene gave Jared a fright, and he retracted his hand immediately. If others were to see the light, they would track it down, which would become a problem.

Unknown to him, the moment the vibrant light flashed into the sky, a group of cultivators appeared nearby after being transported from the entrance of the Celestial Battlefield.

The group was dressed in similar outfits, a clear sign that they were from the same sect. The fact that they could bring so many of their members along was a sign of how strong their sect was, or at the very least, how wealthy they were.

“Quick, look. What is that?” someone exclaimed when they saw the rainbow-like rays. However, when the rest of the group looked in the direction he was pointing, the light had already disappeared.

“What are you babbling about? This is the Celestial Battlefield, where there are no rules. If you want to survive, you had better keep a low profile,” a middle aged man in green barked.

“Kyan, but I just saw a blistering light shoot up into the sky nearby. However, it disappeared in a flash,” replied the man who was being reprimanded anxiously.

“That’s right. I saw it, too. The vibrant array of colors disappeared in a flash.

Could it be a sign that a magical item has appeared?” someone else added.

Given that more than one person had seen the phenomenon, the wavering Kyan said, “Let’s go over and take a look, but stay alert, everyone. Anything can happen here in the Celestial Battlefield, so it pays to be extra cautious. Even if they're the same as us, you should not let your guard down. Human cultivators are the most ruthless beings, after all." Once the instructions were given out, the group flew toward the source of the vibrant array of lights from earlier.

Soon, they were greeted by the sight of a thick white mist.

"Kyan, look. There's a cloud of mist in this wide expanse, Something strange must be going on." said someone aloud.

Kyan had long noticed the presence of the mist. Despite releasing his spiritual sense, he was unable to probe what was within. It was evident that there was an arcane array preventing his spiritual sense from entering.

The existence of an arcane array clearly indicated that someone was there.

Coupled with the vibrant light that appeared earlier, the group speculated that the mist was hiding a magical item.

"Kyan, let's charge into it. There must be a magical item inside as the colorful light earlier came from it." Some of them were raring to go, for a magical item that could emit such a vibrant array of lights had to be an extremely rare treasure.

"Everyone, don't act recklessly. Only someone strong can cast such an arcane array. On top of that, we don't know who is inside or how many of them there are. What if it's a trap?" Kyan stopped his subordinates.

Now that his spiritual sense couldn't breach the white mist, he didn't dare to charge into it without knowing how many enemies were in there.

With that thought in mind, Kyan swiftly descended to the border of the mist. He then gradually reached his hand into it, hoping to ascertain the situation inside.

Unfortunately, the attempt was nothing but futile.

Nevertheless, the aura of a Sixth Level Tribulator emanated outward continuously. The phenomenon caught Kyan by surprise, as most cultivators preferred hiding their auras to blend in instead.

The person inside is releasing his aura on purpose. Why is he doing so?

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3384-Don't tell me he wants to scare us away with the aura of a Sixth Level Tribulator cultivator?

With that thought in mind, Kyan spoke up. "My friend, we have just entered the Celestial Battlefield and noticed a burst of colorful light soaring into the sky. We are curious as to what magical item emitted that. Rest assured, we are only here to take a look. Since you made the first move, we won't seize it. Skywolf Sect is known for keeping our word." The words reached the ears of both Jared and Rosetta. Rosetta's expression subtly changed when she heard the name "Skywolf Sect." "I didn't expect those from Skywolf Sect to be here too. It seems that many from the Ethereal Realm have come to the Celestial Battlefield," Rosetta remarked.

"Oh? Do you know people from Skywolf Sect?" Jared asked. He had limited knowledge of the Ethereal Realm and was unfamiliar with Skywolf Sect.

"Yes, Skywolf Sect is a sect in Epea. Those guys are the worst-untrustworthy and lecherous. I once went to Epea with Dalton and encountered people from Skywolf Sect. At that time, I was still weak, and I almost got taken advantage of by those from Skywolf Sect. Fortunately, Dalton risked his life to save me, and we escaped to the northern region," Rosetta explained with a resentful expression.

"So, Skywolf Sect is like that?" Jared didn't expect that such people would have the audacity to claim they were trustworthy and announce their sect so proudly.

Jared decided to toy with these Skywolf Sect people, so he spoke in a mocking tone. "Oh, so you're from Skywolf Sect. My apologies for the oversight." Upon hearing his polite response, Kyan thought he was intimidated by Skywolf Sect's name and flashed a smug smile. "My friend, I hope you can remove the arcane array and show us the magical item. If you have concerns, I can enter alone. I won't covet your magical item. You must have heard of Skywolf Sect. In Epea, we are known for our integrity." Kyan continued to boast, almost making Jared burst into laughter.

"Of course, I've heard of the illustrious Skywolf Sect. Legend has it that the disciples of Skywolf Sect are a bunch of lecherous disciples who spare no one, not even their own relatives. The women of Skywolf Sect have become public commodities, and the sect members are all b*stards..." Jared nonchalantly spoke.

Hearing Jared's words, Rosetta couldn't help but laugh. She didn't expect Jared to be so bold.

Kyan was taken aback. He promptly burst out angrily, "Ah, f*ck you! I will tear you to pieces and take your life! For the woman in the arcane array, I'll strip her naked and make her our slave!" Kyan waved his hand, and the rest promptly descended to the ground.

They surrounded Jared's arcane array before barging in under Kyan's order.

Their intention was to overwhelm those inside the arcane array as they assumed there were only a few individuals inside. Based on their conversation, Kyan had guessed that there weren't many people inside the arcane array.

Perhaps there is only a man and woman inside. If we barge in together, they won't be able to react in time!

Seeing them approach, Rosetta became somewhat tense.

"Don't worry. As soon as these guys enter the arcane array, they're like sitting ducks. I've already set up an illusion array within the white mist. Once they're trapped in the illusion, they won't pose a threat," Jared reassured Rosetta.

Hearing that, she relaxed and nodded in response. Then, Rosetta brandished her sword and advanced toward the intruders. Her eyes were ablaze with anger

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3385-At this moment, a Skywolf Sect cultivator entered the white mist and immediately felt dizzy. Soon, the vast mist in front of him slowly dissipated.

A curvaceous young lady, dressed provocatively and carrying a flower basket, was walking toward him with a smile. Upon seeing the young lady, the Skywolf Sect cultivator grinned lecherously.

"Gorgeous, come to me. I'll make sure you enjoy yourself," he said, running to the girl impatiently. Simultaneously, Rosetta spotted a Skywolf Sect member running toward her. His eyes were burning with desire, and he was practically salivating.

He didn't seem to be on guard as he was taking off his clothes while sprinting at full speed. Rosetta knew that this particular Skywolf Sect cultivator had fallen for the illusion array.

Rosetta's anger intensified as she watched the pervert running toward her. She raised her sword and thrust it forward.

Squelch!

The Skywolf Sect cultivator experienced intense pain that instantly brought him back to his senses. Disbelief filled his eyes when he noticed the sword embedded in his chest.

His widened eyes conveyed shock as he stared at Rosetta, finally recognizing her, but he could no longer speak as blood was gushing out of his mouth.

Desperately raising his hand to grab Rosetta, the cultivator found his strength rapidly depleting. He couldn't even lift his hand. Gritting her teeth, Rosetta pulled out her sword and swiftly beheaded him.

His head flew a considerable distance, and his body collapsed to the ground.

Now dead, even his bodily spirit had disappeared.

Rosetta stared coldly at the corpse, her eyes filled with resentment and killing intent. Wielding her sword, Rosetta continued her hunt. Brandishing the Dragonslayer Sword, Jared utilized the illusion array to hunt down unsuspecting targets.

Jared understood that the illusion array wouldn't trap them forever. Thus, he aimed to inflict maximum damage while the intruders were unaware of its existence.

If their enemies were prepared, the illusion array wouldn't work that well anymore. Not long after entering the white mist, Kyan finally noticed something strange. His expression turned solemn.

"I didn't expect to encounter an illusion array outside the arcane array. It seems our opponent is skilled in formations," Kyan muttered, his eyes emitting a chilling light. As the most senior disciple of Skywolf Sect, he naturally possessed some skills.

“Listen up, everyone! We’re trapped in an illusion array. Concentrate and stay alert! Don’t get affected!” he shouted after gathering his breath in his elixir field.

His roar jolted everyone, snapping them out of the illusion. Hearing Kyan’s voice, Jared narrowed his eyes. It seems this guy is somewhat capable. To discover the illusion array so quickly and use sound waves to keep everyone alert is proof of that.

Rosetta was in the midst of attacking another Skywolf Sect cultivator when Kyan’s voice woke him up.

Seeing Rosetta’s sword coming for him, the Skywolf Sect cultivator retreated swiftly and barely dodged her attack in time.

Before he could rejoice, a sword pierced through him from behind.

Seeing that, Rosetta immediately took one step forward to sever his head.

The one who pierced him from behind was none other than Jared!

“Mr. Chance, these people have discovered the illusion array. What should we do?” Rosetta inquired.

“No worries. Let’s retreat into the arcane array. Even if they’ve seen through the illusion array, they won’t be able to breach it in a short time. I’ve incorporated ancient weapons into this arcane array, so its power is significantly enhanced,” Jared reassured Rosetta as they returned to the center of the array.
