

The Almighty Lord Caspian Chapter 611

Chapter 611 No Mercy

Alicia was brought down from the roof by Macy.

She hurriedly ran toward Henry.

Henry was overjoyed when he saw Alicia running toward him. He stood up to run toward her as well.

Henry asked, "Are you okay?"

Alicia replied, "I'm fine. Are you okay? Did you get shot?"

"You must've been scared silly. I wouldn't have been able to stand up if I was shot.

"That's good to hear. We're safe now."

Alicia felt as if everything that had happened to them was just a nightmare.

And the nightmare was finally over.

She had thought that she would die in the hands of Robert, that she wouldn't survive to see another day.

Caspian's arrival had finally saved Alicia and Henry from certain death.

Macy came to Caspian's side and asked, "Lord Caspian, are you okay?"

Caspian calmly replied, "I'm fine."

Macy noticed that Caspian's clothes had holes in them, and his arm was bleeding. She realized that he was injured from the fight with Robert.

Macy asked, "Lord Caspian, should I get a doctor? Just in case your wounds get infected."

Caspian waved his hands and replied, “It’s nothing. Just a few minor injuries.”

Alicia had also noticed that part of Caspian’s arm kept bleeding profusely.

She knew that he suffered the injury when he was attempting to rescue her.

Alicia was overwhelmed with emotions as she thought about how Caspian had saved her through enemy lines.

She recalled how she had always treated Caspian and was ashamed of her past doings.

If only Alicia had known that Caspian was so powerful, she wouldn’t have

She wondered why someone as powerful as Caspian would choose to marry Willow and willingly be branded as a lowly matrilocal son-in-law.

Unless Caspian was willing to do it just for Willow.

While Alicia was still deep in her thoughts, members of Phoenix Vanguard had already entered the Hudson residence. They rounded up all members of the Hudson family.

Dozens of men and women, including the domestic help, were brought out of the house.

They ran back into the house earlier when they realized that Vadesia forces would be losing the battle. They all went into hiding inside the house that they had prepared prior to the war.

But they were still found and captured by Phoenix Vanguard.

The Hudsons were all trembling with fear and couldn’t even walk straight while being brought out of the house.

They became terrified when they saw the corpses of Vadesian soldiers littering the ground. They were worried that they might be joining them soon.

Richard was so frightened that he could no longer control his bladder.

The Hudsons had assumed that defecting to Vadesia would promise them a brighter future and they could one day rival Caspian.

They never would have guessed that Robert would meet his end so soon. He never even stood a chance against Caspian in the first place.

Grant started to realize that Alicia was right, and he started to regret committing treason against his own country. He felt immensely remorseful that a woman like Alicia was more righteous and patriotic than he was.

His mistake of a decision was about to end up destroying the Hudson family.

The Hudsons were soon brought before Caspian.

One of the Phoenix Vanguard members asked, “Lord Caspian, your orders?”

Caspian coldly declared, “Just lock them up somewhere. We still need to drive our enemies out of Southlake City as well as capture the Archer family. We’ll deal with both parties at the same time with a public execution as tribute to our fallen comrades.”

He didn’t want to execute the Hudsons just yet.

115 BONUS

He wanted to deal with the enemy troops first before dealing the punishment for the traitors.

The Hudsons lost their marbles after listening to what Caspian said.

Some of them fainted on the spot, while some of them crumbled onto the ground and began to cry,

“Don’t kill me! Please don’t kill me!”

“Casplan, we’ve realized our mistake! Please give us another chance!”

The Hudsons tried to beg for mercy.

Casplan coldly answered, “Why defect if you knew this was going to happen? I have no mercy for traitorous bastards!”

The Hudsons fell into despair.

Richard turned to Alicia to ask her for mercy instead. “Alicia, save me, please! I’m your husband! Do you really want to see me sentenced to death by Casplan?”

Alicia angrily shouted, “Richard, you bastard! You just said you wanted a divorce yesterday and even tried to offer me up to Robert just to gain his favor. Why would I save a scumbag like you?”

“I was just kidding! And Robert didn’t touch you or anything anyway! We’re still husband and wife. I’ll treat you better from now on!”

“Enough nonsense! Do you think I’m an idiot? You beat me up so badly with the iron whip earlier. You’re only asking me for mercy now because Robert is dead!”

Richard continued to beg, “I’m so sorry, darling. I’ve learned from my mistakes. Please just spare my life!”

Casplan suddenly walked up to the couple. “In your dreams, Richard. There’s no mercy for those who committed treason.”

Richard finally lost all hope.

Casplan no longer wanted to talk with the Hudsons. “Bring them away!”

Henry was also frightened as he watched the scene unfold before him.

He had also harbored thoughts of committing treason, and he still had Kenzie's contact information. He began to wonder if Caspian would let him get away with this.

His thoughts were quickly confirmed as Caspian continued, "Bring Henry along. and lock him up as well!"

Henry immediately lost all his strength and crumbled onto the ground.

Alicia was also shocked by the sudden news.

She had assumed that Caspian had already spared Henry to have saved him in the first place.

Henry sheepishly asked, "Caspian! Are you trying to kill your own family? Why lock me up as well?"

Caspian replied, "Do you think you've fooled me? I know that you had gotten in contact with enemy agents alongside Richard and Nicholas to defect to Vadesia. "

"But I never committed treason! It was just a thought! At least I didn't actually do anything like the Hudsons!"

"What you said may be true, but to have the thought of betraying your country is already grounds for a death sentence. You won't be getting away with this."

"But, Caspian! I'm your wife's cousin, you know? Can't you please spare my life? For Willow's sake?"

"The law isn't concerned about our relationship, and it won't care about your explanations. Be honest for once in your life and accept your punishment."

The Almighty Lord Caspian Chapter 612

Chapter 612 Traitor's Punishment

Henry was so frightened that he collapsed on the ground.

Alicia realized that Caspian truly intended to execute Henry and hurriedly explained, "You can't do this, Caspian! Henry has already turned a new leaf after everything that happened! Please, for the Stewart family's sake, please spare him!"

Caspian coldly replied, "Shut your mouth! No one will be able to cure him of having traitorous thoughts!"

Alicia was left speechless after being shut down by Caspian,

Caspian turned to Phoenix Vanguard and shouted, "Why are you still standing around? Bring Henry away!"

"Yes, sir!" Two of the Phoenix Vanguard members immediately sprung into action.

Alicia remained frozen in place.

Henry desperately shouted, "I don't want to die! Help me, Alicia! Help me!"

Alicia was already injured and covered with bruises. She was so frightened as she watched Henry get dragged away that she fainted on the spot.

Caspian shouted, "Bring Alicia to the hospital for treatment!"

"Yes, sir!" Another member of Phoenix Vanguard stood up.

Caspian continued, "Report good news of our victory to His Majesty at once!"

"Yes, sir!" an intelligence officer at the side responded.

"The rest of you, follow me to the Archer residence! We'll be going for Viktor's head!"

Phoenix Vanguard followed behind Caspian without any hesitation as they marched toward the Archer residence.

Balthazar soon received news of Caspian's victory. He was excited to hear that Robert was felled by the hands of Caspian.

“As expected of Caspian! That arrogant bastard must have thought that he was invincible, but he was still just a mere ant in front of Caspian! Hahaha!”

Other senior officers within the room were also elated after receiving the news.

“Lord Caspian defeated Robert in one fell swoop! He truly is unmatched!”

“That's right! I was expecting that Robert guy to be a threat, but it turns out he's nothing compared to Lord Caspian!”

“Of course! Lord Caspian ain't the strongest of the Five War Gods for nothing! I heard that he had already ascended even beyond the ultimate supreme grandmaster long ago. Lord Caspian might just be the strongest man in the world!”

“We're winning this with Lord Caspian on our side!”

Balthazar was overjoyed as praises for Caspian poured in. “Spread the good news of Caspian's victory to the world! It'll help reassure the citizens as well as diminish our enemies' spirit!”

“Yes, sir!”

News of Robert's defeat was spread across the world after a round of official announcements.

News of Caspian, the Diatoranian God of War, personally defeating Robert shocked the world.

Diatoranian soldiers were revitalized and began pushing back the enemies with fervor after hearing about the good news.

The King of Vadesia, Relius Lycan, was disappointed after receiving news of Robert's defeat.

He already expected for Robert to lose, but he never expected it to happen so early.

The most surprising part of all was that Robert was felled by Caspian himself.

Robert was supposed to be the Champion of Vadesia. Being defeated without any difficulty would pose serious damage to Vadesia's reputation and safety.

Relius angrily complained, "What's going on with the International Alliance? Why aren't they making a move? I've lost my Champion!"

One of the senior officers asked, "Your Majesty, now that General Valez is not more, what should we do next?"

Another officer stood up and chimed in, "Will Diatoran invade us now that Robert has been defeated?"

Relius calmly explained, "Astronia's champion, Viktor, still remains in Southlake City. Diatoran won't be making a move for some time. We don't have to worry

+15 BONUS

The officer replied, "With General Valez defeated, Viktor's defeat will only be a matter of time!!!"

Another officer stood up. "That's right! Diatoran will surely come for us once they've dealt with Viktor! We need to make preparations now!"

Relius reassured, “Don’t worry, Diatoran is thousands of miles away from us. They won’t be coming for us anytime soon.”

Meanwhile, in a meeting room of the International Alliance, everyone present was panicking after receiving news that Caspian had killed Robert.

“I never expected that Caspian would only take such a short amount of time to deal with Robert. He’s too powerful!”

“Luckily, we didn’t deploy our troops to attack Diatoran. Or we might be in a hot mess now.”

“Caspian’s way too powerful! He may pose a threat to us someday!”

Discussions raged on within the room.

Alexander Martin, the leader of the International Alliance, took all the credit for himself. “Do you guys finally understand what I was trying to do? The reason I decided to wait and see was to avoid being on the wrong side of things.”

“Yeah, Mr. Martin’s right! Thank God we were patient.”

“We won’t be able to make a move against Diatoran with someone like Caspian around.”

“Unless we have someone that can defeat him!”

The crowd started discussing countermeasures.

“Caspian is the Diatoranian God of War... Is there anyone who can defeat him?”

“We can hire assassins to deal with him!”

“We’ll have a better chance of winning as long as we can get rid of Caspian. Besides, the assassin’s won’t reveal any connections back to us even if they fail.”

The crowd seemed to be in favor of the idea.

They realized that Caspian may pose a threat to every other country in the world if he were to be left alone.

Alexander voiced his agreement, "I like this idea, but we'll still have to think about it carefully."

+15 BONUS

Suddenly, an intelligence officer rushed into the room and reported, "Mr. Martin, the King of Astronia is calling for you!"

Ted Roosevelt, the King of Astronia, was panicking as he asked for help. "Alexander! Robert and his men are no more! When are you sending me reinforcements?"

Alexander calmly replied, "I need more time to think about such an important matter."

"What do you even need to think about? Diatoran violated international agreements with their missiles! Your hesitation may be the end of my Champion, Viktor, as well!"

"I've already told you again and again that Diatoran was merely testing the weapons within their own borders. We can't launch an attack on Diatoran for this reason alone. It was you who insisted on causing trouble for Diatoran in the first place. Your own failure is not our problem!"

Alexander immediately hung up as he didn't want to waste any more time talking to the losing side.

He didn't want to bother with people who only came to him asking for help after they cheerfully disrupted the hornet's nest.

Ted was stunned as he listened to the beeping sound after the call came to an end.

“Is the International Alliance scared of Diatoran as well? Is it really over for Viktor?”

Meanwhile, fighter planes were hovering above Southlake City, ready to start a new round of attack on enemy troops.

The Almighty Lord Caspian Chapter 613

Chapter 613 Last Stand

The remaining enemy soldiers could not resist the revitalized Diatoran troops in Southlake City.

Coupled with the support of fighter planes, the enemy troops were being cleaned up left and right.

Sylvia’s and Desmond’s troops each headed for the Archer residence with great morale.

The reinforcements sent by Viktor were already blown into smithereens before they even reached the Hudson residence.

Meanwhile, at the Archer residence, Viktor angrily complained, “Robert, that bastard! Didn’t he always boast about how powerful he was? And now he’s dead!”

A senior officer chimed in, “Yeah, Robert always claimed that he could defeat Caspian by himself. Turns out he was just overestimating himself!”

Another officer commented, “Robert planned to join us after defeating Caspian. Seems like it won’t be happening now.”

Viktor hurriedly explained, “We should begin preparing to deal with Caspian’s troops.”

“I think we should call back our reinforcements and set up defenses around the Archer residence while we wait for reinforcements from the International Alliance.”

Viktor ordered, “Very well. Call back our reinforcements! We’ll set up defenses. here!”

The next moment, an intelligence officer ran into the room. “General Obrien! Bad news!”

Viktor frowned at the man and asked, “What is it?”

He felt that something bad was coming.

“The reinforcements we had sent to Robert were completely wiped out by Diatoran fighter planes!”

Viktor was shocked beyond relief upon hearing the news that his men were all annihilated.

“General Obrien!” Another intelligence officer ran into the room.

Viktor impatiently asked, “What is it?”

+15 BONUS

“Our troops stationed on the coastline alongside our Vadesian allies were also wiped out by Diatoran forces!”

Viktor fell into despair. “What? How is that possible?”

“The Diatoran forces are now gathering around us! We’re in danger!”

Viktor subconsciously swallowed as he started getting nervous.

One of the officers asked, “What should we do, General Obrien?”

“How am I supposed to know? Robert, that bastard! He asked me for reinforcements, and now he’s gone along with my troops! We don’t have much left to defend ourselves! What else can we do?”

One of the strategic officers replied, “Please calm down, General Obrien. We should think about how to deal with Caspian’s men.”

Viktor angrily replied, “There’s nothing we can do. We only have 70 thousand men left, while hundreds of thousands of Diatoran troops are closing in on us. We have no chance of winning this.”

It was the first time he had become so frustrated.

“General Obrien, I believe you can come up with a perfect solution with your experience! You must remain calm!”

Viktor shook his head. “We’re alone in Southlake City. Nobody is coming to save Sus.”

“We should give His Majesty a call and ask for reinforcements from the International Alliance! They might be able to deal with Diatoran!”

Viktor nodded as he grasped at the last possible straw. “Very well. Get in contact. with His Majesty immediately!”

He began to explain his circumstances after the satellite call was connected. ” Your Majesty, our troops are in grave danger. Caspian is currently gathering his men around our location.

“Please get in contact with the International Alliance and request reinforcements, or have them convince Diatoran to cease fire!”

“Viktor, I’ve already talked to Alexander about it.”

Viktor asked, “What did he say?”

“They want nothing to do with this war. We’ll be dealing with this alone.”

+15 BONUS

“Didn’t Diatoran violate international agreements with their missiles? Is the alliance going to turn a blind eye on this?”

“Alexander claims that Diatoran was only testing their new weapon within their own borders, and it’s not grounds for them to step in.”

Viktor began to panic. “Are they a bunch of idiots? The Diatoran military did that on purpose! We could’ve won if they never used such illegal weapons! The hurricane missiles killed all 700 thousand of our combined troops with Vadesia!”

“I believe the International Alliance is too afraid of Diatoran to make a move and give us any assistance.”

Viktor could only hope that Ted would come to his rescue. “Your Majesty, please send me some reinforcements. It’ll be the only way out for us.”

They may have lost the war with Diatoran, but it would be fine so long as they could make it out alive.

Ted sounded helpless. “Viktor, we’re thousands of miles away from Diatoran. Reinforcements will never make it in time. And even if they do make it, they’ll only be killed by the missiles again.”

“What’s the meaning of this, Your Majesty? Your men have devoted themselves to fight for you, and you’re leaving us here to die?”

“I have no other choice. I can’t afford to risk losing hundreds of thousands more men just to save tens of thousands. I won’t be able to bear the guilt

Viktor was about to lose all hope. “What about me?”

“Don’t worry. I’ll talk to the King of Diatoran and make sure that you’ll all get out alive.”

“I see. Please make haste, Your Majesty.”

“I know. You must hold on until then, Viktor. Astronia can’t afford to lose a Champion like you!”

Meanwhile, Caspian, Sylvia, and Desmond had arrived outside of the Archer residence with the rest of their troops.

The entire army had completely surrounded the Archer residence.

A hundred thousand Diatoran troops held a major advantage over the meager ten thousand Astronian troops.

As soon as Viktor hung up the call, he began to hear gunfire coming from outside.

An officer ran in to make a report. “General, Caspian’s men have arrived!”

“Stay calm, we must hold on! His Majesty is now attempting for a ceasefire with the King of Diatoran!”

Viktor had no other option but to trust Ted.

He could only trust that Ted would stop the war, or they would all be killed in a matter of minutes.

Viktor realized that he might suffer the same fate as Robert, perhaps even worse.

The Almighty Lord Caspian Chapter 614

Chapter 614 Nefarious Plant

Meanwhile, Ted managed to get in contact with Balthazar.

“Do you think we can stop the war at once, my friend?”

Balthazar replied, “You’re seeking a truce? After what you’ve done?”

“We shouldn’t have invaded Diatoran. I’m willing to make reparations if you order for your troops to stand down immediately.”

“You’re the one who started the war, and now you’re asking for a ceasefire when you’re about to lose? In your dreams! Do you think that reparations can ever repay the lives of the soldiers and civilians lost in this war?”

Ted asked, “Then what do you want?”

Balthazar angrily dismissed him. “I don’t need your land, and I don’t need your reparations! All I need is the eradication of all of Diatoran’s enemies!”

“Aren’t you afraid that I might send the entirety of my army for war?”

“Oh? Come on, then! I’ll kill them all as well!”

“Calm down, Balthazar! We’re supposed to talk this out! I only hope that you don’t kill my Champion, Viktor. I can pay you as much as you like!”

“Your land and money is only a matter of time. But none of your troops invading my country will be spared!”

Ted was furious. “You’re crazy! Why are you so cruel?”

“Cruel? Me? Your men burned and looted Southlake City while killing countless innocent civilians. Who’s the cruel one here? They’ll have to pay for their actions!

Ted had no idea how to continue the conversation. “So, you’re saying that we won’t be coming to an agreement?”

He never expected things to end up like this when he first initiated the war.

“We have nothing to talk about to begin with. I’ll see you at war.”

Ted asked, “See me at war? What do you mean?”

“You Astronians invaded my country, and I’ll be doing the same as payback! I’ll show you the wrath of Diatoran!” Balthazar declared and hung up the phone.

Ted was stunned for a moment. He never expected that Balthazar would actually

Meanwhile, at Riverside Villa, Willow and Zoey were overjoyed when they learned that Caspian had defeated Robert.

Zoey exclaimed, "I already said that Caspian would be fine! Right, Willow?"

Willow replied, "You're right! I didn't expect Caspian to be so powerful that he could even kill Robert!!

"Yeah! Who would've known that Caspian and Robert would fight each other head -on? Everyone said that Robert was strong, but in the end, he was no match for Caspian. It's a pity that we never got to witness the fight with our own eyes. It must've been amazing!"

Willow asked, "Now that Robert's troops have been wiped out, I wonder if Alicia and Henry are saved?"

The official announcement of the victory was short and concise. It never mentioned anything about the survivors.

Zoey reassured her, "Don't worry about it. They must be safe now since Robert's troops have been eliminated."

Willow nodded her head and replied, "I hope so."

"Now that Robert is done for, the only enemies remaining within Southlake City would be Viktor and his men. Caspian must be already on his way to defeat them. Once that's over, all our enemies will be gone!"

"You actually have so much confidence in Caspian's abilities?"

"Why not? Don't you believe in your own husband? Your husband is the Diatoranian God of War, after all!"

Willow became embarrassed after listening to Zoey's reply.

She was was genuinely happy that she had married such a wonderful man. He would be a dream come true for many other people.

Meanwhile, the Archers had received news of Robert's defeat in their residence. They had also learned of Caspian's subsequent objective of attacking the Archer residence with a huge army.

All of them were frightened beyond relief and were at their wits' end.

They began to regret betraying their own country and helping the Astronian troops.

Nicholas and Kenzie searched the house for a very long time, but they couldn't find Laina at all.

Nicholas was terrified after hearing gunfire outside the house. He had given up on finding Laina.

Ted had also relayed Balthazar's words to Viktor.

Viktor became depressed as he was now at the end of his rope without any options left to escape.

Caspian continued to lead his men in battle, and Viktor's men couldn't even stand a chance.

Within half an hour, the Astronian troops had already lost half of their forces.

"General, only 30 thousand of our men remain!"

"General, our enemies are way too powerful! We can't hold on much longer!"

“General, please think of something! They’re about to break through our defenses!”

“General, please lead us in battle!”

Astronian officers were panicking.

Viktor, however, was completely pale as he knew that he was doomed.

“What for? Where do you think we can even go?”

The officers stood up and replied, “Where are our reinforcements? Are we being left here to die? Maybe we should just surrender. We might still be spared!”

The officers seemed to have come to the same agreement.

Viktor, however, declined their suggestion. “Surrender? Me? I’ll never surrender! My reputation won’t allow it!”

“Are we really just going to be sitting ducks, then?”

Viktor replied, “Don’t worry, I still have a plan.”

The crowd looked up at him with joy upon hearing Viktor’s words.

“What is it, General? Please tell us!”

“Will that really work?”

Viktor explained, “Caspian loves his wife very much. We’ll be able to get out of here if we hold her hostage!”

“That’s right! I heard that Caspian would never abandon his wife!”

“We’ll capture Willow and force him to pull back his troops!”

“Perhaps we can even trade Willow for Caspian himself as hostage, and then we’ll kill him!”

“This is a brilliant idea!”

The crowd was overjoyed.

They believed that Caspian wouldn’t be able to see such a nefarious plan coming.

The Almighty Lord Caspian Chapter 615

Chapter 615 Enemy Special Agents

One of the strategic officers asked, “This is indeed an unexpected move. But it’s almost impossible to send a team out of the current encirclement. How do we kidnap Caspian’s wife?”

The crowd’s joy was instantly dampened.

They managed to come up with a great idea, but the current circumstances prevented them from carrying out the plan.

Caspian may have a weakness, but the Astronian troops couldn’t break out of the encirclement they were in.

Viktor reassured them, saying, “Don’t worry, I have a plan.”

“General, do you still have a team left in the c city?”

“Of course not. But I still have special agents lurking within the city.”

The officers finally recalled that they had planted many special agents throughout Southlake City.

Both Astronia and Vadesia had sent out special agents to infiltrate Southlake City. Gathering them together to launch an attack at Riverside Villa would be the only way they could kidnap Willow.

Caspian’s armored battalion may be powerful, but they could still be outnumbered.

Riverside Villa must not have many troops left stationed nearby. The special agents wouldn’t run into any difficulties once they received their mission.

“What a wonderful plan, General Obrien! I’m impressed!”

“Yeah! I knew that the general had a trick up his sleeve!”

“You’ll be the strongest once we kill Caspian!”

The officers began to praise Viktor.

Viktor replied, “That’s enough. Get in contact with Kenzie immediately and tell him to relay the order to the rest of the special agents to begin the mission.”

An officer nodded his head and left to contact Kenzie.

Viktor continued, “The rest of you, go back to your positions and continue holding on. Everything will be over once we manage to capture Willow!”

“Yes, sir!”

The officers all left the room to continue their fight for survival.

Kenzie soon entered the room,

“General Obrien, your orders?”

Viktor explained, “General Valez has been killed, and most of the Vadeslan troops are dead. We’re also in a similarly grave situation.”

Kenzie sounded hopeless. “I know. It seems that this may be the end for all of us.

He wouldn’t have come to the Archer residence if it was not because he was chasing after Laina. He wouldn’t have been caught inside the Diatoran encirclement.

He could have still survived if he had hidden somewhere else.

Viktor reassured him, saying, “Don’t worry, I have a plan.”

“Oh, really?”

“Notify your special agents hiding within Southlake City for a joint operation with my own special agents. Their mission is to capture Caspian’s wife!”

Kenzie was puzzled. “Huh? What does capturing Caspian’s wife have anything to do with the encirclement outside?”

“Caspian won’t just abandon his wife. We can capture her and then threaten him!

“I get it! What a great plan, General!”

Viktor ordered, “Relay my orders to your men and make haste to Riverside Villa at once!”

“Of course! I’m on it!”

“The defenses around Riverside Villa should be relatively weak now. With our forces combined, we can definitely break through their defenses! You have to be quick, as we're not going to be able to hold on much longer around here."

Kenzie nodded his head. "I know. I'll gather my men as soon as possible!"

He left the room to get in contact with the Vadesian special agents. He ordered them to work together with the Astronian special agents to attack Riverside Villa and capture Willow,

Meanwhile, outside of the Archer residence, Caspian was personally leading the charge to take down the Archer family and kill Viktor.

Suddenly, an intelligence officer ran up to him. "Lord Caspian, a message from. Captain Laina!"

Caspian was delighted to hear that Laina was still alive and well.

"You may speak."

"Captain Laina reported that Viktor is attempting to gather Astronian and Vadesian special agents to attack Riverside Villa and capture Lady Willow in order to threaten you!"

Caspian's expression sank as he asked, "How did Laina learn about the enemy's plan?"

"Captain Laina explained that it's because she's hiding within the Archer residence."

"Well done, Laina! She truly is a courageous heroine of Diatoran!"

"Lord Caspian, Captain Laina also mentioned that the enemy special agents will make up a force of a thousand men. We only have hundreds of men stationed around Riverside Villa at this moment. What should we do?"

Caspian explained, "If they want to play like that, we just have to join them in the game!"

"But Lord Caspian, you've brought the bulk of our forces with you. How are we going to deal with the enemy special agents?"

"Contact Laina immediately and tell her to gather up Task Force Rose to head for Riverside Villa. Eliminate all the enemy special agents!"

"Yes, sir!" The intelligence officer immediately left to contact Laina.

He then returned to Caspian after relaying his orders to Laina. "Lord Caspian, Task Force Rose only has hundreds of fighters. Even if they were to combine their forces with the 200 armored soldiers, the enemy special agents still have the upper hand in numbers!"

Caspian understood that Willow's safety was an utmost priority.

He could very well become a mere puppet once Willow was captured by the enemy.

But it was too late to send reinforcements back to Riverside Villa now.

+15 BONUS

Caspian shouted, "Sylvia!"

"Yes, sir!" Sylvia answered as she ran over to him.

"Where's Joey?"

"Joey should still be at the hospital after repelling the enemy troops back there."

"Notify Joey to immediately send reinforcements to Riverside Villa and join the fight against the enemy special agents!"

Sylvia was surprised by the news. “Lord Caspian, are enemy special agents attacking Riverside Villa?”

“That’s right. Laina just reported that enemy special agents are going to attack. Riverside Villa and capture Willow.”

Sylvia started to panic. “Lord Caspian, what if Joey’s men aren’t strong enough. to deal with the enemy? I’ll go instead!”

Caspian explained, “We’re dozens of miles away from the house. It’ll be too late.”

“I understand. I’ll notify Joey right away.”

Joey and her men were still in Southlake Hospital.

She immediately picked up the call from Sylvia the moment her phone rang. What is it, General Frost?”

“Ms. Sanders, enemy special agents are currently attempting to attack Riverside Villa and capture Willow. Lord Caspian has ordered for you to send reinforcements there at once!”

“I’m on it!” Joey answered without any hesitation.

She was ready to heed the call of duty.

Joey hung up and began to gather up her men to head toward Riverside Villa.

Caspian also issued an order for Macy.

“Macy, I need you and Phoenix Vanguard to head for Riverside Villa at once. Make sure that Willow is safe!”

The Almighty Lord Caspian Chapter 616

Chapter 616 Emergency Reinforcements

“Lord Caspian, why would you even need Phoenix Vanguard just to deal with some enemy special agents?” Macy complained as she was enjoying the fight at the frontlines and didn’t want to leave.

Caspian replied, “The enemy special agents are trained fighters. Joey’s men won’t be enough to deal with them. I need you there at once!”

“But the battle here is just getting started. I don’t wanna go!”

“Are you defying my orders, Macy? Bring Phoenix Vanguard with you and head for Riverside Villa now! I’ll hold you responsible if anything happens to my wife!”

The loss would be tremendous if Willow was captured by the enemy as it would disrupt their current battle plans.

“Yes, sir! I’m on it right away!” Macy was reluctant to leave but didn’t dare to go against Caspian’s orders.

Macy soon led Phoenix Vanguard back to Riverside Villa.

Laina had also ordered the rest of Task Force Rose to head toward Riverside Villa reinforcements.

as r

Caspian made a call to the remaining soldiers stationed at the house and ordered them to be on high alert for incoming enemy attacks. They also needed to make sure that Willow was safe.

The armored soldiers immediately began preparations to deal with enemy attacks after the call.

Task Force Rose arrived at Riverside Villa as soon as possible and set up an ambush around the vicinity.

They had just finished setting up their positions when a group of men dressed in black appeared outside Riverside Villa.

The enemy special agents/saw that there was not a single soul around Riverside. Villa and were too puzzled to make a move.

“Is there not a single soldier defending this place? This doesn’t seem right.”

“Yeah. Did Caspian not leave any soldiers to protect his wife?”

“That can’t be possible. Unless the soldiers are taking a break?”

“Absolutely no way. They wouldn’t dare to leave their posts without permission.

“What should we do now? Do we still proceed with the mission?”

The group of men began to discuss their next move.

They were all trained fighters with keen senses, and they all felt that there was something fishy going on.

The leader of the Astronian special agents, Caro, explained, “We don’t have time to think about it! General Obrien tasked us to capture Willow as soon as possible. We’ll have to head inside.”

A Vadesian special agent replied, “It’s way too obvious that we’re walking into at trap! We’re just walking into certain death!”

Caro replied, “Time waits for no one. General Obrien is currently trapped under heavy fire. We need to capture Caspian’s wife in order to turn the tides of battle. The troops stationed here shouldn’t be a problem for us. We’re doing this!”

“You go first, then. I’ll follow behind.”

The Vadesian special agents weren’t fully committed to the mission as their champion, Robert, was already no more.

They could always choose to quietly sneak out of the city instead of risking their lives for this mission..

They decided to let Astronian special agents lead the charge so that they could retreat at the first sign of danger.

Caro explained, “Fine, but you’d better actually follow up behind us. Capturing Willow will be beneficial for you guys as well. Don’t just try to sneak out of Diatoran in one piece!”

They had no time left to idle any longer.

Caro led the charge with his men.

The Vadesian special agents stood around and waited.

Suddenly, there was a burst of gunfire from behind the bushes on both sides of the house.

The Astronian special agents screamed in pain before collapsing onto the ground.

“Fire!” Caro shouted.

He finally realized that he had been ambushed as he returned fire.

Both sides were immediately locked in a fierce battle.

+15 BONUS

The Vadesian special agents also joined in the fight.

At this moment, members of Task Force Rose also appeared.

They had been lying in wait nearby and finally showed themselves when the time was right.

The enemy special agents were dumbfounded as they were told there were not at lot of soldiers defending the house.

But what they were seeing now were plenty of reinforcements.

Willow and Zoey were frightened by the sound of gunshots blazing outside the house.

Zoey began to panic. “What’s happening? Why are they fighting outside?”

Willow replied, “Perhaps the enemies are trying to take down the house.”

“This is bad! The sound of gunfire seems very close! We only have a few hundred men stationed here to defend the house. We might be in danger!”

“Calm down, Zoe. We should stay here and see what happens next.”

“Then let’s head outside to see what’s going on.”

Willow stopped Zoe. “We should stay inside where it’s safe. We can just watch from the living room downstairs if you really want to see what’s happening.”

Zoey nodded her head, and the two of them headed to the living room.

There were 30 armored soldiers standing guard.

The rest of the armored soldiers were stationed outside the house.

Willow asked, “What’s happening outside?”

The leader of the armored soldiers replied, “Enemy special agents are trying to attack the house, Lady Willow. We’re currently defending the house with all we’ve got.”

“Huh? What do they hope to achieve?”

“General Obrien of Astronia is currently under heavy siege. He wishes to kidnap you in order to threaten Lord Caspian himself!”

Willow became terrified at the thought that her being in danger would be extremely detrimental to Caspian and the tides of war.

Willow asked, "How many enemies are there?"

Ther mission would be completed once they captured Willow.

The special agents also wanted to finish the mission as soon as possible.

The armored soldiers stationed inside the living room began to open fire when enemy special agents entered the house.

The enemy never expected that there would still be more soldiers stationed inside the trouse

"Don't stop Keep going. They don't have much troops left!" Caro shouted.

The Almighty Lord Caspian Chapter 617

Chapter 617 Capturing Willow

The enemy special agents rushed forward without hesitation in order to capture Willow as soon as possible.

The battle reached its climax when a woman appeared with a group of men behind her.

The woman was none other than Joey Sanders.

Joey had rushed over to the house after receiving the order.

“Kill them!” Joey ordered as she opened fire at the enemy.

The rest of the inspection team joined the fight.

The enemy special agents were shocked to see that reinforcements had arrived.

It would be dangerous if they were caught in an encirclement.

‘Split up and deal with the reinforcements from the back!’ Caro shouted.

The vicinity around the house had become a complete mess with gunshots blaring everywhere.

The armored soldiers were shocked when they saw Joey and her men approaching.

It meant that their chances of winning this fight had dramatically increased.

Willow and Zoey hid in the bedroom. They were extremely frightened as they listened to the gunshots outside the house.

Zoey exclaimed, “It seems that the enemy is here for you... Being Lady Willow must be dangerous.

Willow replied, “I have to get used to this as Caspian’s wife.”

“Let’s deal with the matter at hand for now. Why didn’t Caspian leave more troops to stand guard around the house? The enemy special agents wouldn’t have even tried if we had a thousand more men!”

Willow explained, “Caspian already has his hands full with the war. We shouldn’t blame him for this.”

“We can only hope that everything will be fine. So, when are the two of you having a child?”

“Gunshots are right at our door, and you’re still worried about these questions?”

The battle raged on, and Joey eventually lost half of her men.

They were simple security guards, and they naturally couldn’t stand a chance against trained military combatants.

Joey became depressed as she watched half of her men get killed in action.

She had lost many great men working for the Inspector General’s office ever since the war started.

“Stop fighting them! We need to rush into the house!” Caro shouted.

The enemy special agents collectively rushed toward the house.

They would have completed the mission so long as they captured Willow.

Just when they were about to enter the house, the loud roar of engines nearby stopped them in their tracks.

Everyone on the battlefield was surprised as they looked over at where the sound was coming from.

What they saw was countless tanks and ATVs approaching.

Within the vehicles were the Phoenix Vanguard members. The armored soldiers, Task Force Rose members, and Joey were all pleasantly surprised by their arrival.

The enemy special agents were thoroughly defeated now that Phoenix Vanguard had arrived.

They were all scared beyond relief as they watched Diatoran tanks approach.

They never expected reinforcements to make it here in such a short time.

Macy was sitting in the tank, leading the charge.

“Kill all of the enemy special agents!”

Machine guns installed upon the vehicles opened fire upon her orders.

The enemy special agents couldn't even react in time.

They were surrounded by enemies from all four directions.

The Phoenix Vanguard members jumped out of their vehicles and joined the fight.

Joey and her men immediately retreated from the battlefield to make way for Phoenix Vanguard.

It was only natural to leave the job to the actual professionals.

Phoenix Vanguard's arrival had instantly shifted the tides of battle.

They were all vigorously trained combatants, and the enemy special agents never stood a chance against them.

Phoenix Vanguard provided an offense so overwhelming that it scared the enemy special agents to the point of discarding their weapons and armor in order to escape.

The enemy special agents only wanted to run away for survival.

But they no longer had any way out of the battlefield.

Joey led her men to take down any stragglers attempting to escape.

Willow and Zoey were surprised by the even louder surge of gunfire outside the house.

Zoey asked, “Why does the gunfire sound so much louder now, Willow?”

Willow replied, “Perhaps reinforcements have arrived.”

“But Caspian has already brought the bulk of the army away. Who could be coming as reinforcements?”

Willow shook her head and replied, “I don’t know.”

“I’ll go take a look by the window.” Zoey opened the window to take a good look at the battlefield. “It’s Macy and her team!

“So we do have reinforcements... We’re saved!”

Zoey noticed Joey in the midst of the battle. “Even Joey is here! She’s pretty good!!

Willow also saw that Joey and Macy were fighting alongside each other like action heroines.

“I wish I was as cool as Joey too.”

Zoey replied, “They’re both a one-in-a-million talent!”

“I’m starting to regret not joining the army back when I was 18. I wish I could have also experienced military life.”

“You gotta be kidding me! It’s hard to be a military combatant! You’ve been raised in a spoiled environment since you were a child. I don’t think you could possibly stomach the intense training they have to go through.”

Willow clenched her fists and exclaimed, “What do you know? I’ll ask Caspian to powerful as well!”

“You’re overthinking this. Just do what you’ve been doing.”

“You don’t get it! Being Caspian’s wife is very stressful... I’m even starting to think that I’m not worthy of him. I need to work harder!”

Suddenly, the window was hit by a bullet, and the glass shattered into pieces.

Willow and Zoey screamed aloud as they hid away from the window.

Willow was frightened. “We should stay in the bedroom! What if we get hit by a bullet out here?”

It was a horrifying experience.

Meanwhile, outside of Riverside Villa, Phoenix Vanguard had eliminated all of the enemy special agents in a matter of minutes.

Macy then entered the house to look for Willow and Zoey.

“Lady Willow, we’ve eliminated all enemy special agents. You’re safe now.”

“Thank you so much! By the way, didn’t you leave for the battlefield with Caspian earlier? Why did you come back?”

“Lord Caspian learned that Riverside Villa was in danger and sent me back here to protect you.”

Willow asked, “How are things over at Caspian’s side?”

“We’ve already defeated Robert and his men. We’re now commencing an attack against Viktor. We can basically declare ourselves victorious in the war.”

“Are Alicia and Henry safe?”

“They’re both safe,” Macy answered.

She deliberately omitted the fact that Henry had already been arrested.

Willow asked, “That’s good! Can we go outside the house now?”

“Of course. Please follow me.”

Joey became depressed. “This is all my fault... None of this would’ve happened itt never brought them into the enemy’s training grounds by mistake,”

“This isn’t your fault, Joey. Our enemies would have still invaded us even if you hadn’t been there.

Macy reported the current situation back to Caspian.

“Lord Caspian, Riverside Villa is now safe. We’ve eliminated all the enemy special agents!”

“Well done! Are Willow and Zoey sate?” Caspian asked,

“They’re both unharmed.”

+15 BONUS

“How much did we lose?”

“We didn’t suffer much losses, but Joey lost a lot of her men and has become depressed. Lady Willow is currently consoling her.”

“Joey led her men in defending Southlake City with their own lives and has contributed a lot to the war. She even helped defend Southlake City in order to buy time for the medical staff.

“I shall pay respects and monetary assistance to the families of those fallen in battle appropriately.”

“I understand. So, can I go back to the frontlines now?” Macy asked.

She didn’t want to remain idle now that Riverside Villa was safe. She would rather go back to the frontlines instead.

“There’s no need for that. I need you to remain at Riverside Villa as insurance.”

“Yes, sir!”

Macy didn’t dare to disobey Caspian.

Caspian led the charge once more after learning that Willow was safe.

He would have preferred to send a hurricane missile upon the Archer residence if not for Laina still being there.

He wasn’t so heartless as to sacrifice Laina just for an easy victory.

Meanwhile, within the Archer residence, a senior officer hurriedly ran inside.” General, Caspian is about to lead the final charge! We can’t hold them off!”

Viktor was similarly panicking. “Get in contact with our special agents and ask about their progress!”

“Yes, sir!” An intelligence officer nodded his head and began to get in contact with Caro.

A long time passed and yet Caro never made a reply.

The rest of the special agents were also not responding to their calls.

“General, we can’t get in contact with any of them!”

“What? How is that possible?”

The intelligence officer explained, “Perhaps they’re locked in battle at Riverside Villa and can’t answer our calls.”

+15 BONUS

“That shouldn’t be the case! Why would it take so long for a thousand men just to take down some lousy house? We’re going to be done for at this rate!”

Viktor began to panic.

He had a feeling that something bad had happened, which was why none of the special agents had responded to their call.

Viktor continued, “Where’s Kenzie? Get him to contact his special agents and ask them what happened!”

The intelligence officer ran out of the room to look for Kenzie.

“Mr. Kenzie, please get in contact with your special agents and ask about their progress.”

Kenzie nodded his head.

He attempted to get in contact with his own men but to no avail.

“This is bad. I can’t get in contact with my own men as well.”

The intelligence officer replied, “We should notify General Obrien about this right away!”

Kenzie nodded his head. “Yeah.”

The two of them soon returned to Viktor.

Kenzie sheepishly explained, “General Obrien, I can’t get in contact with any of my special agents as well.”

“What? What’s going on over there?”

“Perhaps they’ve been eliminated.”

Viktor refused to listen to Kenzie. “Absolutely not! I don’t believe that Caspian still has any troops left at Riverside Villa!”

He needed to capture Willow in order to shift the tides of battle.

It would be his death should the mission fail.

Kenzie replied, “Perhaps Caspian did, in fact, leave a lot of men back home.”

Viktor explained, “We had already confirmed that only a hundred armored soldiers remain at Riverside Villa.”

“Or maybe our plan was leaked to Caspian, and he sent reinforcements back home.”

+15 BONUS

Viktor realized that Kenzie may be right.

Viktor angrily stared back at him. “How did Caspian learn of our plans? Are we being wiretapped? Or did someone leak the information to him?”

Kenzie was terrified as he wondered if Viktor was suspecting him of being a ditor.

“This has nothing to do with me, General Obrien. I, too, wish for nothing but victory so that we can leave Southlake City alive! I have no reason to leak the plan. to Caspian!”

Viktor asked, “Are you implying that the traitor is from my own men?”

“I don’t know what you’re talking about... I think that Laina, one of Diatoran’s special agents, is in this house!”

Viktor’s expression soured. “Are you saying that Laina leaked our plan back to Caspian?”

“Yes, that would be the only possibility.”

“So you’re saying that Laina is right beside us in the house! Search every corner of the house and capture her immediately!”

The next moment, a wounded soldier ran into the room.

“General, the Diatoran forces are way too powerful! We can’t hold them back any longer! We only have four thousand men remaining!”

The Almighty Lord Caspian Chapter 619

Chapter 619 Surrender

Viktor and the rest of the officers inside the room turned pale after listening to the report.

No one had imagined that Caspian’s attack would be so terrifying

Only a few thousand Astronian troops remained at this point.

One of the senior officers spoke up, “General, we should just surrender. There’s no way we’re capturing Willow at this point. And we don’t have any way out of the city,”

Another officer chimed in, “He’s right. We’ve already lost. Surrendering is our only option.”

“Caspian’s troops are way too powerful. We need to surrender if we still want to live.”

Viktor’s men had already lost all hope as facing off against Caspian’s 200 thousand men would only be certain death.

A strategic officer asked, “What are you waiting for, General? We should surrender now so that we can still have a chance to stay alive!”

Viktor asked, “We’ve been killing and looting throughout Southlake City for such a long time now. Do you think Caspian will spare us even if we surrender?”

“I’ve heard that Diatoran never tortures their prisoners of war. We might still be able to survive if we surrender now!”

“Yeah! The International Alliance will also make sure that we’re treated well.”

“We can buy time for His Majesty to continue the peace talks and get us out!”

The crowd began to discuss their survival.

Viktor explained, “After all that we’ve done, we won’t be easily forgiven.”

One of the strategic officer’s spoke up, “The International Alliance will definitely help us out since we’re part of them. They won’t just abandon us!”

Viktor was also afraid of death and was eventually convinced by the rest of his men. “Fine, then. We’ll surrender.”

He never imagined himself having to surrender and beg for mercy. He had had countless victories under his belt and yet he still had to suffer such a humiliating defeat against Caspian.

The crowd was overjoyed after receiving a confirmation from Viktor. They immediately threw down their weapons and ran out of the house.

“Stop the war! General Obrien has ordered us to surrender!”

“Stop shooting!”

The senior officers shouted as loud as they could.

+15 BONUS

Astronian soldiers immediately threw down their weapons and raised their arms after hearing the order to surrender.

Some even raised a white flag. Everyone wanted to live to see another day. They realized that they should just surrender now that the chance for victory was gone.

Viktor then made a call to Ted during the confusion.

Ted asked, “What is it, Viktor?”

“We’ve lost, Your Majesty. Only four thousand men remain.”

“What? You’re supposed to be Astronia’s Champion! You brought hundreds of thousands of troops with you, and all that’s left is a mere four thousand?”

Ted already expected for Viktor to lose the war since he couldn’t manage to send reinforcements due to the distance. But he never expected the losses to be so massive.

Viktor explained, “Caspian’s troops are way too powerful! Our troops aren’t even a match!”

“Is Caspian truly so powerful?”

“Why didn’t the International Alliance make a move? I can’t fight back without any reinforcements here in Southlake City! All we can do now is surrender.”

Ted complained, “You surrendered? What do you think is going to happen to your reputation as a Champion of Astronia? It’s going to paint a bad light on Astronia as well!”

“Do you want me to die? Along with the thousands of men left with me?”

“I don’t. Whatever. Just surrender, then.”

“Your Majesty, you must secure a peace talk with Diatoran and get us back home!”

“Don’t worry, I’m already on it. I won’t just abandon my Champion!”

Viktor was relieved. “Thank you. All that matters is that we’re still alive.”

Ted then hung up the call.

The Archers were terrified after they heard that the Astronian troops were surrendering.

“Viktor, that bastard! Surrendering would also mean that we’re done for!”

“I never expected the Astronians to be so weak. This is the fastest defeat I’ve ever seen.”

“Isn’t Viktor also a God of War? It turns out he’s actually useless! We’re done for!

“Let’s think about how we can still get out of this alive!”

“Viktor and his men will live on as prisoners of war, but what about us? Caspian will definitely execute us for treason!”

“Oh God... What should we do now?”

The Archers began to discuss their next steps while lamenting their choices.

They had thought that they could become the most powerful family within Southlake City by defecting to and working for Vadesia and Astronia. However, their plans completely backfired.

Meanwhile, outside of the Archer residence, Diatoran soldiers stopped the attack after seeing that the enemy had surrendered.

Desmond reported, “Lord Caspian, the Astronian forces have given up.”

Caspian replied, “What cowards! I can’t believe Viktor actually surrendered!”

“Lord Caspian, you defeated Robert and forced Viktor to surrender. This war will rain glory upon the name of our Diatoranian God of War as the strongest man there is!”

Caspian explained, “Oh, really? I don’t think I can confidently say that I’m the strongest just yet.”

“You’re too humble, Lord Caspian. You defeated both Robert and Viktor. You deserve the praise!”

“I’d rather that Viktor didn’t surrender. Now personally.”

I won’t be able to deal with him

Sylvia asked, “Lord Caspian, what do you mean?”

115 BONUS

She quickly realized that Caspian didn’t want to spare the lives of the Astronians.

Caspian explained, “These Astronian seums invaded Southlake City and plundered and killed our civilians. I’ve already decided that I’ll kill every single one of them and that they’ll have to pay for all their crimes!”

“Lord Casplan, do you plan on killing the prisoners of war?”

“They’re not technically prisoners of war just yet... They may have surrendered, but we can just pretend we never heard them. Kill them all!”

Sylvia and Desmond both instantly understood Casplan’s intentions.

Sylvia exclaimed, “I understand. I’ll order our troops to open fire!”

Desmond chimed in, “Yes, we should. The King of Astronia will definitely try to rescue Viktor and his men if we were to keep them as prisoners of war. These foul beasts don’t deserve to return alive!”

Casplan clenched his teeth and replied, “Very well. I’m glad that both of you understand my perspective. We’ll take revenge for all of our fallen comrades!”

Casplan was furious as he recalled all the horrifying crimes the enemy soldiers had committed.

The Almighty Lord Caspian Chapter 620

Chapter 620 Eliminate All Enemies

Caspian ordered. “Wait for them to throw down their weapons. We’ll then ignore their cries for surrender and open fire!”

“Yes, sir!”

Meanwhile, in the Archer residence, one of the senior officers reported, “General, Diatoran forces have ceased fire. We can go out now.”

“Alright, I’m coming.” Viktor was hesitant, but he had no other choice.

Viktor stepped out of the house with the senior officers following behind him.

“Caspian, I hereby announce that my troops surrender from this war. We hope that you comply with international laws on treating prisoners of war,” Viktor shouted.

Caspian angrily shouted, “Viktor, your men have committed countless inhumane acts, from killing, burning, and looting throughout all of Southlake City. I refuse to accept your surrender!”

Viktor and his men were so surprised by Caspian’s reply that they became frozen in place.

Both Sylvia and Desmond shouted, “Open fire!”

The enemy troops had just thrown away their weapons and were already gunned down before they could react.

Viktor and his senior officers turned and ran back inside the house.

A senior officer asked, “What should we do now, General?”

Viktor angrily complained, “Caspian, that bastard! I can’t believe he actually opened fire at us after we surrendered!

“He’s actually going to kill us all! I can’t believe it!”

The strategic officer commented, “Does he wish to continue the fight and see more of his men die?”

Viktor explained, “Our troops have already thrown down their weapons. They couldn’t even react in time when Caspian’s men opened fire.

“We should’ve never invaded Diatoran in the first place.”

+15 BONUS

“You’re right. I can’t believe this is happening. We should’ve been spared after surrendering!”

Viktor frowned as he listened to the incessant chatter of his senior officers.

“It’s all your fault for pestering me to surrender! Our reputation is completely washed. And now, Caspian even rejected our surrender and wants to kill all of us!”

Viktor assumed that Ted would be able to get him back to Astronia safely if he just surrendered.

He never expected Caspian to be so vicious as to reject their surrender and kill them all.

A senior officer spoke up, "It's not the time to be complaining. We need to think of a new plan."

Viktor clenched his teeth and explained, "What choice do we have left? All we can do now is fight back and kill as many of their men as possible!"

"But all we can do now is hide behind cover. We don't even have a chance to peek over cover to return fire!"

"Bring me all your grenades! We'll place them at the door and wait for their troops to enter before triggering the explosion. It'll at least guarantee a few deaths!" Viktor decided that he would bring down some of the enemies with him to the grave.

The senior officers looked at each other in disbelief.

They were not afraid of combat on the frontlines, but personally exploding grenades to seal their own fate was still horrifying to think of.

It was too cruel, even as a last resort.

They would not even be leaving their corpses behind.

Viktor was furious. "What are you guys waiting for? Make preparations immediately! We're going to die anyway. We might as well pull some of our enemies down with us!"

The senior officers nodded their heads and began to pool up all the grenades they could find.

They realized that they had no chance of making it out alive.

Bringing along some of the Diatoran troops with them to the grave would be the only positive outcome.
