

Married At First Sight Chapter 3731

Married At First Sight Chapter 3731 – Liberty smiled and said, “Why make things so complicated? We can just get our marriage certificate, pick a good day, and have a wedding when we have the time.”

“Actually, we don’t even need a wedding—just the certificate. But since this is your first marriage, I don’t want to disappoint you. So, let’s have a wedding.”

Duncan didn’t want to let her down.

She didn’t want to let Duncan down either.

It was her second marriage, but his first. Duncan was the fourth young master of the Lewis family, and it wouldn’t be fair if they skipped the wedding.

Duncan gently took her hand, kissed it, and looked at her with love in his eyes. “Let’s not disappoint each other. We should have what others have, and maybe even more. I promised I’d give you a life everyone envies.”

Liberty smiled and said, “I’m already someone people envy. They wonder how I got so lucky. Even though I’m divorced and have a child, I’m marrying into a wealthy family.

“You’re so good to Sonny, I don’t have to worry. Some even say I’m lucky because of my sister. It’s true—Seren has brought me good fortune.”

The two sisters had supported each other for over a decade and had a strong bond. As Serenity often said, if she didn’t treat her sister well, who would?

To Serenity, Liberty was both her big sister and a mother figure.

“You are a phoenix,” Duncan said. “No matter what people say, we live our lives for ourselves. As long as we’re happy, let them be envious.” He added, “I haven’t heard anyone say that about you to my face, but if I did, I’d make sure they couldn’t talk again.”

Liberty chuckled, “Why so violent? Let people say what they want. You’re so good to me—it’s my destiny, and I don’t mind if others envy us.”

Duncan smiled and said lovingly, “Alright, alright, I’ll listen to you.”

When they returned to the hotel, Duncan told the two bodyguards they could take a break and enjoy their own dinner. After that, they were free to relax. He didn’t want them following him and Liberty everywhere.

The bodyguards felt more at ease with Liberty by Duncan’s side.

After dinner, Liberty pushed Duncan around the hotel.

The Fortress Hotel was in the busiest part of Jensburg. Everywhere they walked was lively and bustling.

Liberty was usually busy with work and rarely had time to shop.

But tonight, she strolled with Duncan. They walked slowly, stopping to browse or buy things they liked.

They stayed out until late at night and grabbed a midnight snack before heading back to the hotel.

“It takes us half an hour to walk back, so I can enjoy this snack guilt-free. I usually avoid eating late,” Liberty said as they walked.

Duncan, carrying their shopping bags filled with clothes and toys—mostly for Sonny—turned to her and said, “You’re too thin now. You should eat a bit more. I think work is wearing you out.”

“It’s not so bad. I think I’ve got a model figure now! If I didn’t mention it, no one would believe I’m in my thirties with a son who’s almost four.”
