

THE DIVORCE PRESCRIPTION

Chapter 571

Hailey froze in place. She had never seen this side of Declan before.

Ewan smirked and said, "Hailey, do you see it now? Is this still the Declan you thought you knew? He's in the casino now, fully immersed in this world and mixing around with its people. You two are from completely different worlds—he doesn't deserve you!"

Hailey turned to Ewan, finally realizing why he had brought her here.

It would seem that Ewan knew about Declan being here in advance.

"Ewan, no matter what Declan is like, it's not up to you to judge him. You have no right!"

Ewan sneered. "Even now, you're still willing to defend him? Did he put some kind of spell on you or what?"

"It's none of your business! I don't want to be here. I'm going home!" Hailey turned to leave.

However, Ewan blocked her way. "Declan is right there. Don't you want to go say hi?"

"There's no need. Move aside."

Hailey didn't know why Declan was here, but she sensed that he didn't want to see her. So, she chose to leave quietly.

But Ewan wasn't about to let that happen. He grabbed Hailey's arm and said, "Come on, Hailey. Let's go say hi."

"Ewan, let me go! Don't touch me!"

Hailey struggled to break free, but Ewan's grip was too strong. She couldn't shake him off.

At that moment, Hailey felt a sharp gaze homing in on her. She looked up and locked eyes with Declan's cold, piercing stare.

Declan noticed them.

Their eyes met, and Hailey stiffened.

Ewan had also noticed Declan's reaction and suddenly smirked. Then, he wrapped an arm around Hailey's shoulders, pulling her into his embrace.

"Declan, it's been a while."

Hailey shoved Ewan away furiously. She wanted to slap him.

Declan, accompanied by several men dressed in black, walked over.

The black-clad men recognized Ewan. "Mr. Ewan! What brings you here?"

They then glanced at Hailey and asked, "Is this your girlfriend?"

"No!"

"Yes!"

Hailey and Ewan answered in unison.

The men chuckled. "Oh, so this is Mr. Ewan's girlfriend. You brought y here for some fun to 1.

Hailey shot Ewan a death glare. She had no idea what he was trying to pull.

Wasn't he in love with Melody? He had gone as far as cheating just to be with her.

Hailey turned to Declan and called out, "Declan."

The men were surprised. "Declan, you know Mr. Ewan's girl?"

Hailey started to explain, "I'm not "

Before she could finish, Declan's cold voice cut in, "We don't know each other."

Hailey froze upon hearing that. Declan just said he didn't know her.

She felt hurt. His indifference stung her deeply.

Declan glanced at her, then said, "I have things to do. I'll be over there."

With that, he turned and walked away.

He was gone just like that.

Hailey stood frozen in place.

One of the men in black chuckled. "Mr. Ewan, Declan isn't much of a talker."

Ewan smirked. "I can see that."

"But Declan is the type who gets things done. Ruthless, efficient, and highly capable. Our boss values him a lot. Soon, this whole casino will be under his management."

Ewan laughed. "So, he's fully stepped into this world now. The net mean's getting out won't be easy."
