

Medical Genius's Unspeakable Marriage Chapter 130

With a simpering smile, Tiger said, "Stanley, you're indeed more meticulous than me. Yes, a mansion is more suitable for Mr. Davis and his daughter.

Mr. Davis, I'll keep the townhouse while you take the mansion. In a way, we'll be neighbors in the future as I'll be staying in The Grand Pavilion while you'll be staying in The Grand Garden behind it. How exciting is that?"

Julian struggled to come up with anything to say in response.

Meanwhile, Matthew spoke directly, "Since his apology is so sincere, you should forgive him! Well, I'll take charge of this matter from here. Tiger, you get some of your men to help my buddy move his stuff to the mansion. Since you're going to be Julian's neighbor in the future, please do help me to take care of my buddy after moving to that area since both of you are my friends."

Master Tiger was thrilled that Matthew saw him as his friend. Even though it meant he would have to be Matthew's subordinate, he would surely be given a lot of chances to gain a substantial fortune in the future.

Stanley was able to enjoy such a respectable social status and immense wealth in Eastcliff just by working for Billy Newman.

Since Matthew had a similar status with Billy Newman, he would have a high chance to be as successful as Stanley if he seized the chance to work for Matthew.

"Mr. Larson, please don't worry. Just let me handle everything and I'll get them done! By the way, I have a housekeeper working for me who does her job very well. Since Mr. Davis has a daughter, I'll send the housekeeper over to Mr. Davis' mansion so that she can help take care of her!"

Tiger managed to make all the necessary arrangements for Julian with a few sentences.

Matthew was very satisfied with his performance. Other than being slightly snobbish, Tiger was rather competent in other aspects.

He had the gumption to do the right thing as required by the situation he was in. Also, he did his job brilliantly and he could be humble enough to accept setbacks in his life.

Most importantly, he could be assigned both legal and illegal tasks.

Matthew had never forgotten the need to avenge the tragedy that had befallen his family.

He knew very well that he needed to gather enough power, not only money but also talents, before he could execute his revenge.

He could take his time to deal with money but he had to act promptly to gather enough talents.

Tiger fitted his requirements perfectly and he just happened to need a person like him.

He walked over to Tiger and patted his legs gently with his hand. “You may stand up!”

All of a sudden, Tiger could feel his legs again. Immediately, he rose to his feet and he could move around like normal again.

Elated to have his legs back, Tiger was impressed. “Mr. Larson, you must be a deity! I went to the hospital to have my legs checked but the doctors couldn’t find out the problem at all although I couldn’t move my legs. But now, I can move again after you just patted my legs! I-It’s magical!”

Stanley, who secretly marveled at Matthew’s medical skill, commented with a smile, “There’s no doubt Mr. Larson can cure your legs as I’ve told you that Mr. Larson is a superb doctor. Well, it’s about time you leave and do your thing because I have something else to discuss with Mr. Larson!”

Tiger nodded vigorously. “Yes, I should go! Mr. Davis, what do you think if we move your stuff to the mansion right away? There’s nothing you need to do because I have lots of men who work for me and I can get them to move your stuff over in just one trip.”

Julian looked at Matthew, who flashed him a faint smile and nodded at him. “You should give him a chance and accept his kind gesture. After all, the two of you will become neighbors soon!”

Julian nodded in agreement but deep down inside, he was still in a state of confusion.

He really couldn’t figure out how he was suddenly given a mansion from this trip to Carlson Group.

Prior to this, he had mentally prepared himself to have one of his arms broken and never had he thought that things would actually end up this way.

Jayde still remained in Stanley’s office even after Tiger had dragged Julian away.

At the moment, she was overwhelmed by a sense of remorse.

She merely received ten to twenty thousand as monthly allowance by being Tiger’s girlfriend.

Without any formal recognition from Tiger and without having the respectable social status as his wife, she was just one of his toys.

She had visited Tiger’s mansion before; the interior was lavishly renovated and she had never seen anything similar to it before.

Her biggest wish was to stay in such a mansion one day.

However, in the end, the mansion was given to her ex-husband whom she had always looked down upon, much to her surprise.

If she was still married to Julian, she would be the owner of the mansion now.

Medical Genius's Unspeakable Marriage Chapter 131

Seeing that Jayde was still around, a look of disgust flashed across Stanley's face. "Mr. Larson, what should we do with this b*tch?"

Frightened, Jayde pleaded anxiously, "M-Mr. Larson, I realized my mistake now. I-I'll spend my days quietly with Julian and won't leave their sides again. Please give me a chance."

"Get out of here!" Matthew roared. "What makes you think you're fit to be with my buddy? Are you even qualified? Throw her out of here!"

Stanley waved his hand and a few men came up to drag her out before she could say anything else.

"So tell me, why did you come to look for me?" Matthew asked.

Snorting, Stanley replied, "Mr. Larson, have you heard of the Six Southern States Medical Conference?"

Mr. Harrison did mention this before and it was said that Dr. Ellis left the mountains for this conference, Matthew recalled.

According to Mr. Harrison, this conference was a grand and important event for the medical industry of the six southern states.

Stanley explained further, "Although it is a medical conference which is held annually, it is in fact, an event that determines the distribution of medical resources between the six southern states. To put it simply in an example, the drugs produced by the Cunninghams overlap the ones from other companies in different states. So, how can you sell the same drug with different brands?"

"What's the problem with that?" Matthew was surprised. "Shouldn't the pharmacies and customers have a choice in this?"

Nodding, Stanley answered, "That was what we thought in the beginning, but some problems popped up afterward. The pharmacies later started a price war in order to appear more competitive. In the end, smaller pharmacies were forced to close down while the bigger ones were unable to make much profit. But the same situation was not only happening within the pharmacies—it also happened to hospitals, medical institutions and medical equipment manufacturing companies. Anything related to the medical field would be affected."

Matthew frowned as he thought about Cunningham Pharmaceuticals. Now it was clear to him why it almost toppled over a few years ago; this must have been the reason.

Stanley continued, "Because of this, the medical families in the six southern states came together and decided to hold this medical conference annually. Even though they call it a conference, what we actually do there is compete with each other and see who has the best medical skills. The state that wins will get the most benefit while the state that loses will have to give up part of their interests."

Casting a gaze at Stanley, Matthew asked in a low voice, “So you would like me to compete and assist Eastshire?”

With an awkward smile, Stanley replied, “It seems like I can’t hide my thoughts from you, Mr. Larson. For the past few years, Eastshire has been at the bottom place and the medical resources are now incredibly scarce. I have long wanted to expand Carlson Pharmacy to other states but was unable to do so due to the consecutive losses of Eastshire. Even the main business of Cunningham Pharmaceuticals is limited to some cities in the state, and they are unable to open up new markets. If Eastshire won this time, just Carlson Pharmacy alone could triple its assets in a year. Mr. Larson, if you’re willing to compete and help Eastshire win, I’ll give you ten percent of the equity in Carlson Pharmacy!”

Matthew pondered over it for a while. “I will probably go to the conference, but I may not get involved because I don’t want people to know about me.”

Although he already inherited the knowledge from the jade pendant, it still involved the incident which resulted in the annihilation of his family back then, and he didn’t want to expose his identity before he had accumulated enough strength.

He had to maintain a low profile, gather his strength and investigate the destruction of his family in order to take revenge and return the Larsons to their former glory!

Medical Genius’s Unspeakable Marriage Chapter 132

Stanley appeared disappointed but he still nodded. “I understand!”

Subsequently, Matthew went straight to The Grand Garden.

Tiger was really reliable as he had already moved all of Julian’s belongings there. Other than that, a woman in her fifties named Mrs. Collins also came along. She was Jullian’s kind neighbor in the suburbs who would help him look after Nicole whenever he was not home. Usually, she would do some handicrafts at home to earn a little over one grand to subsidize her expenses.

Initially, Tiger wanted to send his own housekeeper to Julian’s, but Julian decided it would be better to hire Mrs. Collins instead after giving it some thought. This was because Mrs. Collins liked Nicole a lot and because he would be more at ease if Nicole’s nanny was someone he knew.

Being really forthright in doing things, Tiger gave Mrs. Collins thirty thousand on the spot, saying that it was her salary for the next six months, which meant that her salary a month would be five thousand.

Mrs. Collins was stunned. Her husband who worked as a deliveryman couldn’t even earn that much in a month! So, she didn’t dare to accept the offer at first, but Tiger stuffed the money into her hands firmly while Julian persuaded her. Finally, she accepted the offer.

With this salary, she would no longer need to do handicrafts. Her job now would be to stay peacefully in this mansion and look after Nicole.

To make things more convenient for her, Tiger allowed Mrs. Collins and her family to move into his three-bedroom flat, which was nearby, without asking for any rent. That way, she could still return home occasionally and visit her family easily.

Matthew was satisfied with everything that Tiger had done, thinking that he was a really sharp person when dealing with situations.

On the other hand, Julian felt embarrassed. He was already hesitant to accept the mansion Tiger offered him, and now, Tiger was also the one who forked out his nanny's salary and even went so far as to arrange the accommodation for her. All the unpleasantness which existed before completely disappeared at this stage.

"Tiger, I-I've caused you too much trouble. I'll consider this a loan from you and I'll return you the money once I've made some!"

Waving his hands anxiously, Tiger said, "Julian, don't speak about this with me since this is what I should do. We're all friends and I feel offended that you would say this! Money is not the most important thing in the world but if you bring this up again, I'll fall out with you!"

Matthew burst out laughing and patted Julian on his shoulder. "It's okay, just arrange a position for Tiger when you start working at the company. Everything will be solved if you pay him a higher salary!"

Surprised, Julian said softly, "Don't spout nonsense, Matthew! Tiger is earning millions a month with his big business. Wh-What position can I offer him?"

But Tiger's eyes were twinkling because he knew the reason Matthew asked Julian to offer him a position was so that he could work for Matthew.

It didn't matter what that position was. Most importantly, he would be working for Matthew from now on, which meant that his status would be elevated!

As for making money, it would be a piece of cake with Matthew. "Julian, you'll be my boss from now on! Whatever position will do for me. I'm a person who's not afraid of hardships and can do anything!"

Medical Genius's Unspeakable Marriage Chapter 133

Finally, as per Matthew's suggestion, Julian arranged Tiger to be his assistant at the company.

Meanwhile, Matthew gave Julian two prescriptions—one for Nicole and another for him, which was to help him with his leg injury so he could recover fully.

In the afternoon, Matthew went to look for Sasha and told her about Julian's situation, which she immediately agreed with. She trusted Matthew fully now and listened to everything he said, acting like a submissive woman, and the matter was fixed after she personally gave the order.

On the other hand, the moment Liam heard about this news, he immediately went to James and Helen and told them all about it, adding inflammatory details to his version of the story.

Slapping the table in anger, James stood up furiously and cursed, “That b*stard has gone overboard! After he promised not to be the boss, he went and placed his friend in that position instead. It’s equivalent to him taking the position himself! Does he really take us as fools? This won’t do, I have to speak to Sasha!”

Liam stopped him hurriedly. “Dad, it’s useless if you look for Sasha now! Think about it, she’s now completely taken in by Matthew and takes his side on everything. If you look for her now, you’ll get into a huge argument and won’t get any results. Also, the more you argue with her, the more she will feel that Matthew is right.”

Frowning, James exclaimed, “But I can’t just do nothing! Should I just sit at home and watch in vain as Matthew gobbles up all the assets of the Cunninghams?”

A smirk spread across Liam’s face. “Don’t worry, Dad. Let me settle this. I have a couple of buddies in the company. I’ll send them a greeting and ask them to force the new boss to quit by today. When Sasha tries to find the person accountable for this, you just need to step forward and stop her from making a fuss. That should do the job.”

With twinkling eyes, James said, “Really? That’s amazing! Liam, you’re reliable when it comes to dealing with situations. Matthew is a far stretch behind when compared to you!”

Liam was secretly overjoyed. When he was a manager at Wellness Herbary, he had placed a few of his rogue friends in some important positions in the company. Although he was fired later, his friends remained there and he could still control matters within the company.

If he took care of the new boss now, he would eventually reclaim the company.

He regarded the company as his own and wouldn’t allow anyone to lay a finger on it.

After bringing Julian and Tiger into the company, Matthew was explaining the operations to Julian when a group of men approached them.

“You’re the new boss?” asked a man with roguish long hair. He seemed like the leader and his eyes were full of disdain.

“That’s right. This is Julian Davis, your new boss!” Matthew said.

Almost instantly, the long-haired man was furious. “Was I asking you? You’re merely a live-in son-in-law but you think you’re some kind of big shot! Do you really think the Cunningham family’s company belongs to you? Damn, you think you can show off just because you managed to pacify that b*tch, Sasha! Let me tell you, you’re nothing to me and you have no place to speak here! Get out!”

Matthew frowned as it was apparent that these people were here to create trouble. But just as he was about to say something, Tiger came over.

As soon as Tiger walked through the door, he grabbed the man by his long hair and punched him in the abdomen.

The long-haired man yelled in pain, "How dare you hit me? Damn it, beat him up!"

The moment a few men standing behind him rushed forward, Tiger kicked a chair to the side and roared, "I'm Master Tiger of the North Street. Are you sure you want to pick a fight with me, b*stards?"

That roar of his paralyzed everyone and one of them asked in a shaky voice, "Y-You're Master Tiger?"

"I think he is. I-I've seen him once before. He really looks like Master Tiger," another stammered.

This sent everyone into a state of panic. Even though Tiger was nothing to Stanley, but to these small thugs, he was definitely a big shot.

"Master Tiger, wh-why are you here?" the long-haired man asked in a trembling voice.

"I'll be working here from now on as Julian's assistant. Of course I'll have to be here."

"What?" Everyone was stunned. A big shot like Tiger was actually Julian's assistant? So what sort of background did Julian have, then?

"Master Tiger, w-we didn't know that the new boss is your friend. Please be generous and forgive us if we offended you earlier. We'll just pretend it never happened, okay? Why don't you continue with your work, and w-we'll leave now." The long-haired man gave a smile and wanted to leave in a hurry.

"Stop right there, all of you!" Tiger yelled, and they all froze in their places, not daring to take another step. "Mr. Larson and Julian, how do you wish to deal with these b*stards? Just one word from you and I'll immediately send them to the bottom of Lake Eastcliff!"

The long-haired man and his gang were so terrified they almost wet their pants. Tiger was not known to be a kind man.

"Let me ask you, who sent you here to make a scene?" Matthew asked.

The long-haired man answered timidly, "I-It was Liam..."

Matthew frowned. I knew it.

"Who is Liam?" Tiger asked. "Mr. Larson, should I send a few men to bring him here and chop off his hands so he will know his place from now on?"

But Matthew just waved his hand and said, "Ask them to get out of here!"

Looking as if they had been granted clemency from death rows, they quickly scrambled off.

Stunned, Tiger asked, “Are you going to let them off so easily, Mr. Larson? Should we get the mastermind, then?”

“Forget it, I’ll take care of this matter myself!” Matthew said.

He was indeed angry, but the problem was more complicated as it involved his own family members. It was easy to take care of Liam, but it would be troublesome when Demi came home to make a scene afterward.

Since it involved Sasha’s parents and family, Matthew had to think twice before making his move. Otherwise, Demi would be caught in a dilemma if the situation was blown out of proportion.

After settling Julian and Tiger in, Matthew left. With Tiger here, Julian would be able to work at ease. Who else wouldn’t acknowledge Julian in the company with the troublemakers gone?

The long-haired man and his gang happened to run into Liam after they left the company. With a beaming smile, Liam said, “So how did it go? Did the new boss leave yet?” He laughed smugly and continued, “Just do your part well and chase away the boss every time a new one arrives. Sooner or later, that b*tch, Sasha, will have no choice but to come crawling back to me and beg me to manage the company.”

Twisting his face into a furious scowl, the long-haired man ran up to him and slapped him across the face. “Damn it, you b*stard. You should do it yourself if you have a death wish! Don’t drag us down with you! Get out of here! I don’t know you!”

When Liam heard that Tiger was in the building, he was so frightened that his legs turned to jelly and he left the scene immediately.

He used to be a thug once, so naturally, he knew who Tiger was and didn’t have the guts to go up against him. Therefore, he had to completely give up on this matter. If Tiger was involved, there was no way he would dare to stir up trouble.

Under Julian’s leadership, the company quickly purchased a huge amount of medicinal herbs and supplied them to Cunningham Pharmaceuticals.

It was undeniable that Tiger contributed a lot. He was the one who personally handled some channels which were not easy to get through, and the ruffian dealers all disappeared as well after they met Tiger.

When Liam heard that Tiger was in the building, he was so frightened that his legs turned to jelly and he left the scene immediately.

He used to be a thug once, so naturally, he knew who Tiger was and didn't have the guts to go up against him. Therefore, he had to completely give up on this matter. If Tiger was involved, there was no way he would dare to stir up trouble.

Under Julian's leadership, the company quickly purchased a huge amount of medicinal herbs and supplied them to Cunningham Pharmaceuticals.

It was undeniable that Tiger contributed a lot. He was the one who personally handled some channels which were not easy to get through, and the ruffian dealers all disappeared as well after they met Tiger.

The company was expanding smoothly; not only did they supply medicinal herbs to Cunningham Pharmaceuticals, but they also started supplying to other pharmaceuticals which made them a profit.

When the shareholders heard about this, they complimented Matthew for recognizing talents and picking such a capable person to run the company.

The shareholders all had a very simple request—as long as they could make money, the rest didn't matter.

Matthew's contributions for the company were piling up. First, he recovered 300 million. The second time, he turned the tide and saved the company from collapsing. The third time, he hired Julian to take charge of the company and successfully added another stream of income for the company.

This made the shareholders especially satisfied with Matthew and some even requested Sasha to hire him into the company.

In fact, Sasha wanted Matthew to work in Cunningham Pharmaceuticals as well, but she didn't do it in the end because she knew about her parents' prejudice against him. Usually when they were home, they would just lash out at him for no apparent reason.

If she really hired him into the company, her parents would flip.

In addition, they were more cautious against him now.

Previously, Matthew could still sleep in the same room as her. But now, Helen would barge in every night saying that she wanted to sleep with her and chased Matthew out. He would have no choice but to sleep on a thin mattress in the study.

Although this depressed Matthew, there was nothing he could do about it.

On this day, Matthew showed up for work as usual and when he was about to leave in the evening, he suddenly received a call from Sasha.

“Penny is back so let's have dinner together tonight!”

Matthew frowned as he thought about Penny, who was Sasha's classmate and a standard angelic b*tch.

Though she claimed to be Sasha's friend, she was actually taking advantage of Sasha's beauty. She would always introduce Sasha to rich young masters in hopes of benefiting from the situation herself.

When they were in school, she was very attentive toward Sasha and kept trying to matchmake for her. She had introduced her to countless rich young masters, but Sasha would always turn them down harshly and she never benefitted at all.

Later, when Sasha married Matthew, she was even more disappointed than Sasha's parents and mocked Matthew a lot. She went abroad last year and it never occurred to him that she would be back so soon.

"Sasha, what's the point of meeting such a person?" Matthew asked, displeased.

With an exasperated tone, Sasha answered, "Matthew, I know you're not happy with her, but she was still my ex-classmate. Moreover, she already called to invite us and it will make us look petty if we don't show up. Just think of it as accompanying me, alright?"

Matthew grinned; he knew Sasha's character too well and she placed a lot of value on relationships. So after work, he picked her up and they went straight to Shanghai Nights restaurant.

With an apologetic look, Sasha said, "Matthew, I know that Penny can be careless with her words, but she hasn't been back for a long time. Don't bother arguing with the likes of her, okay?"

Matthew gave her a slight nod. "Don't worry, I won't put you in a tight spot!"

A smile spread across her face unwittingly and she put her arm through his and entered the restaurant.

When they reached the door, they immediately saw a girl with thick makeup—Penny. Penny was actually quite pretty and was considered the belle of the school back then, but she was still a far cry when compared to Sasha.

"Sasha!" Penny greeted.

"Penny, it's been a while!" Sasha ran over with a smile. "Why are you waiting for us at the door?"

With a laugh, Penny answered, "I can't help it since Shanghai Nights is such a high class restaurant and you can't get in unless you're a member. It would be bad if the waiter tried to stop you from getting in, wouldn't it?"
