

My Dreamy Old Husband

Chapter 25

As if she seemed to have grasped something, Kayla laughed angrily and deliberately made a loud commotion. “Is this how the employees of Audistin treat their premium members? Look at this filthy floor! Where’s your manager? Ask him to come out now!”

Her actions now made her look like a shrew who cursed on the streets with one hand on her hip, which made it extremely annoying.

Xyla, who was earnestly persuading Kayla not to make a fuss earlier, hid herself among the crowd while watching the latter embarrass Sophia. Since Sophia Edwards no longer has any value now, she has to reduce herself to work at Audistin.

I bet she must have endured a rough time to even search for this part-time job! I’m really looking forward to the scene where Kayla Huff, this shrew, drives her out from Audistin!

This incident had placed the Audistin’s manager in a difficult situation. The Audistin had plenty of premium members like the Harper Family, but there were only a handful of platinum members like Sophia Edwards. Therefore, he would definitely lose his job as a manager if the screw pissed off their platinum member!

The manager of Audistin wasn’t any ordinary man either. The black suit he wore made him look smart and competent as well as handsome. A few gym instructors automatically stood behind him upon his arrival, making an imposing appearance.

The gym instructors were usually personal trainers. However, if there was anyone causing a commotion at the scene, they would immediately turn into fighters.

When the manager and a few muscular men with an average height of 1.8 meters appeared, they naturally gave off a strong presence, causing a young girl like Kayla Harper to be startled when they surrounded her. Nevertheless, she immediately returned to the condescending attitude she had earlier.

I'm in fact a premium member! "Are you the manager?" She appraised the manager from top to bottom.

The manager replied, "Yes."

She arrogantly stated, "You must have seen what had happened earlier. I want to lodge a complaint about that part-timer. I'm a premium member of Audistin and have also booked a session with two silver-rated personal trainers, but your part-timer looks down on me. I'm sure you know what to do now!"

Sophia, who was initially prepared to leave, turned and blended with the crowd to watch the scene.

The manager was clear as to who Kayla referred to.

Even though she was a premium member who took courses from two silver-rated personal trainers and usually spent more than tens of thousands with them per week, Sophia was an even more important client!

As a shrewd person, the manager planned to please both parties when he saw that Sophia did not want to pursue the matter even further—he would first deal with Kayla before apologizing to Sophia. "I'm sorry that our services haven't been good enough.

We will immediately clean up the water stains on the floor. However, Miss Edwards is also our member. She is not our part-timer."

Kayla was in disbelief. “She’s a member as well?”

Audistin’s members were all respectable people. As this place was also considered a venue for the upper-class society to socialize with one another, each member’s background had to be verified before they were allowed access.

Sophia Edwards probably registered as a member when she still had her value. Now that she’s no longer part of the rich and powerful, what can she do with her member card?

Relying on the fact that she was a premium member, she declared in a condescending tone, “I don’t like her and I don’t wish to continue seeing this person. If she still appears here after this, I’ll never come to Audistin again. Even my family and friends won’t come here as well. You guys better take care of it!”

This is the power that wealthy people possess. We can order a store manager around just because we are rich! Sophia Edwards must have shamelessly stayed in Audistin because she is using her appearance to get a rich man. All the members of Audistin are wealthy and powerful with extraordinary backgrounds.

Therefore, even if she were to blindly pick any one of them, she will still get a tall, wealthy and handsome man. She wants to marry into a wealthy family and join the upper-class society, huh? In her dreams! I will make sure that she won’t succeed! This is the power of their wealthy people, they are so big that they can deceive shops!

The manager felt even more conflicted. Young Lady Harper’s words carry weight, so if she decides not to come again after this, there’s a possibility that a bunch of rich clients would also stop coming to Audistin. Then again, Sophia Edwards is a platinum member! He hesitantly asked, “Are you sure you won’t be coming again after today?”

Kayla was cold and superior. “If this person is still here, I won’t come again after this. My friends, my family and my school mates won’t come here again as well.

As the management personnel of Audistin, you should know who is the quality client—a lowly commoner who came to secure a rich man or me, the Young Lady Harper!” She even emphasized, “Audistin is the best gym in Bayside City and not a place for someone to fish for a rich man.

If you want to get yourself a wealthy man, you should go to the bar next door. There are plenty of old men who fancy women like you over there!”

While she was speaking, she stared at Sophia, who was among the crowd, with detestation.

After listening to Kayla’s declaration, the crowd turned to look at Sophia.

Among the crowd, she looked at the crowd in bewilderment with her arms folded across her chest—as if she had no idea that Kayla was talking about her.

Sophia was wearing sportswear with a crop top that revealed her flawless six-pack. The muscles on her abdomen were impeccable, arousing the envy of men and jealousy of women. It was obvious that it would be impossible for someone to attain such a perfect figure without investing sweat and time into it.

If she was really here to get herself a rich man, he would definitely come to her on his own accord.

Kayla thought that she was about to succeed in driving Sophia away. Feeling delighted, she pressed on maliciously. “I’m giving you three minutes now.

You shall decide on whether to have her to leave or for me to go!” If I really leave now, the entire Harper Family and the wealthy families close to us will never come here again, which would result in an immediate loss of a great number of clients. Audistin certainly won’t be so foolish not to know who needs to leave.

Looking at Kayla’s triumphant expression, Sophia scoffed without saying anything while awaiting the upcoming show. She didn’t forget to look for Xyla Huff's figure and as expected, the latter was found watching the scene with the crowd. This scene is undoubtedly familiar!

When Sophia was dating Richard Harper, Kayla often sought trouble with her—just like what she did today.

To her, Sophia was unmatched to her unrivaled brother, so she had resented her without a reason. Sophia thought that in Kayla's eyes, she must have been worse than a piece of s*it.

In the past, when Kayla found fault with Sophia, Xyla would pretend to persuade them to make peace, but she stayed on one side and became an instigator. Some of the issues that happened between Kayla and Sophia were all instigated by Xyla.

When the issue intensified to the point where it alarmed Richard, Xyla would become a little cutie who was hurt for attempting to bridge the divide between Kayla and Sophia, but ended up offending them both. Xyla tried her hardest to mislead him into believing that Sophia was the one who deliberately provoked Kayla.

Xyla was expectedly hiding in the crowd right now, feeling delighted that Sophia was in trouble.

Sophia felt that there was more to watch, so she continued to do so with her arms folded across her chest.

The manager seemed to have made a decision between Sophia Edwards and Kayla Harper. As it was indeed a difficult decision to make, he asked Kayla again. "Are you sure that you won't be coming here again if Miss Edwards refuses to leave? Even your friends and relatives won't be coming here as well?"

Kayla adamantly nodded. "Yes, it's impossible for me to train in the same gym as this b*tch! I find that everything she has touched is filthy!"

Upon hearing her words and seeing that he could not turn things around, he finally made up his mind. "Alright, I'll do as you wish!"

She felt proud and elated, as if she had managed to regain a little of her lost pride. However, this was merely the beginning. I, Kayla Harper, will not only ensure that Sophia Edwards can't continue to stay in this gym. I will also make sure that she won't be able to continue her studies in Bayside University! She's merely a lowly commoner. How could she even think that she can steadily marry into a wealthy family by studying in Bayside University? In her dreams!
