

My Dreamy Old Husband

Chapter 263

More than a dozen security guards had swarmed into the scene, vigorously dragging the girl away as they left. Along with the girl who had come rushing in, there were several men and women dressed up in a rustic way. There was an old woman, a middle-aged woman and a middle-aged man.

The old woman and the middle-aged woman were full of arrogance. “The Young Master of the Harper Family has made my granddaughter pregnant, but he doesn’t want to admit it at all. You’re such a brat—trying to run away from your responsibilities after getting my granddaughter pregnant, huh? No way!”

Richard then yelled in a rage, “I don’t know you at all!”

The old woman sneered coldly. “Oh, you’d yell intimately on bed for pleasure, but now you can’t recognize her at all? My granddaughter’s name is Ella Spencer, and she’s the top scarlet woman at Paradise Club. Since the beginning of this year, you’ve been going to Paradise Club and sleeping with her every weekend. Don’t even try to deny it, for a lot of people have witnessed it!”

Paradise Club!

Richard and Xyla’s faces immediately turned stormy after hearing that term.

It was a well-known business club under the Audistin Group which offered inexplicable services!

A few of the male guests at the scene had already recognized the poor girl. Was she not Ella, the top streetwalker at the Paradise Club?

Did Richard really sleep with her and even got her pregnant?

“Shut up!” Richard became very annoyed, making his entire face flush red. A number of security guards were already dragging the old woman and the other two intruders out from the scene, and the old woman screamed like a pig which was being slaughtered.

“You’ve made my granddaughter pregnant, so you must marry her now! I won’t leave today unless you marry my granddaughter!”

The colors on the faces of the Harpers and the Huffs had turned sullen. With something like this happening, it would not look good whether or not Richard had really slept with that streetwalker. They wanted that family to vanish from the engagement ceremony right away!

At that critical moment, the old woman acted with an imposing manner as she played her master card, which was to take off her pants!

The three of them had taken off their pants as soon as they said it. Within a short while, they were all half-naked and had started rolling on the floor. This scene had even frightened the security guards, who were heavily trained. Even the guests had started running around the place in order to escape.

The old woman who had freed herself immediately stood up on her feet. She then showed an arrogant expression on her face before putting on a smug smile. She then swayed her shriveled hands as she rushed toward Richard like a gust of wind and grabbed him before she hit him.

“Tell me—will you marry my granddaughter?!”

The other woman had swiftly gotten through the crowd as well and dashed forward to beat Richard up. Two shriveled bodies were surrounding Richard as they dragged him around. Richard had never witnessed such a scene in his entire life and had forgotten how to resist. He would retract his hands in fright when he touched their shriveled hands every time he wanted to fight back. At this point, the old woman had grabbed hold of him before she gave Richard two slaps on the face.

“Hey, it’s not that easy for you to get away with it after sleeping with one of the women from the Spencers!”

The old woman was exhilarated; she had previously heard that the Harpers were a wealthy family. Nonetheless, she did not expect them to be this rich. With such a grandeur scene, she would soon have to rely on her great-grandson to enjoy her blessings in life!

Ella saw the opportunity as she rushed forward to hug Richard’s thigh. “Richard, you said you’d marry me and be responsible for me! Your child and I are still waiting for you!”

Xyla wanted to save Richard, but she did not expect a bald-headed old man to dash forward, stopping right in front of her. He then shrugged his old waist before a shriveled ugly thing showed up dangling in between his crotch. Xyla was so terrified that her face had turned pale and instantly retreated.

Whoever came forward to rescue Richard, the old man would sway his shriveled ugly thing at them. Needless to say, he had successfully chased away a crowd of people.

Richard was completely surrounded by the family.

“Richard, you have to be responsible for me and your child!”

“This b*stard, I order you to marry my granddaughter today! Otherwise, we’ll see about that!”

“My daughter has had a miserable life. How did she run into this goddamn man?”

The Harpers and the Huffs were both stunned. The guests were all petrified and dared not utter a word. Silence reigned throughout the entire banquet; only the sound of the media's camera shutters repeatedly sounded while they captured the scene.

What was happening...

Among the crowd, only Sophia was laughing heartlessly. She had burst into laughter, holding her tummy while smashing onto the table as she stood outside the crowd.

“Hahahaha...”

In the silence, everyone had heard a series of laughter. The guests who did not know what expressions to put on moments ago seemed to have been tickled on their funny bone. Suppressed laughter then filled the entire scene.

Richard was going crazy. He stared at Sophia, the one person who was laughing the loudest in the crowd. He gritted his teeth and yelled, “Guards! Guards! Where did they all go?”

The security guards then came back to their senses as if they had woken up from a dream. All of them rushed in to drag the Spencer Family away, but little did they expect the old woman to have another trick up her sleeves. She immediately forced out a pile of dump in public before she rubbed it all over Richard. Whoever came forward would have gotten covered in a load of sh*t!

Although the bunch of security guards were covered in sh*t, they endured the stench while dragging the Spencers away and out from the scene. Ella was also punched and kicked while being dragged out.

After a series of screams coming from Ella, her white skirt was dyed red all of a sudden; even the carpet which Ella was being dragged on was drenched in red blood. The security guards were stunned and had let her go. Richard's face turned even more sullen when he caught sight of the blood.

“Drag her out!” Richard ordered fiercely.

The security had no choice but to drag Ella out, who just had a miscarriage.

The world had finally quietened down, but the carpets were left with stains of blood and indescribable liquid on it. A stench mixed with the scent of blood wafted among the crowd, allowing all the guests to get a whiff of it. It was supposed to be an engagement party, but the banquet could no longer be carried on after such an ordeal.

Someone had immediately come forward to clean the carpet and freshened the air up, using the shortest time to cover up the stench.

The Harpers and the Huffs were all dumbfounded after what had happened. Only Richard's father had come back to senses; he then pushed Richard, who was completely frightened up. Richard finally realized that he was stinking and immediately went back to his hotel room to get changed.

Before he left, he subconsciously looked toward Sophia to find her clinking glasses with Michael while smiling happily.

It was her!

It must've been her!

Under Richard's mother's instruction, the host managed to smooth things over. "What a thrilling moment. Fortunately, the engagement ceremony will not be affected by this. Let's watch a short movie; don't go away as there's a surprise at the end of the film!"

The light in the grand hall had dimmed within an instant before the big screen was turned on. The short movie starred the couple, and it was deliberately produced for today's engagement ceremony.

Xyla was a performing arts student, and Richard had quite the visuals. Together with the help from a professional team, the results of the film were very impressive.

The short movie told the story of them getting to know each other and falling in love.

The short movie was based on their real-life story, and they had even used their real names; the couple even borrowed one of the classrooms from Riverdale Highschool for the film. They had nailed everything down, including their uniforms and textbooks from back in the day.

The gist of the story was how the male and female protagonist had known each other since they were little. Ever since becoming playmates, the female protagonist secretly had feelings for the man. However, she was about to confess to him when the male protagonist was already in a relationship with a conniving little bitch.

The conniving girl would pretend to be pitiful and acted to be the female protagonist's best friend in front of the male protagonist. However, she would start to sow discord among the protagonists behind their backs.

As the conniving girl had played them off one against another, the male protagonist started distancing himself from the female protagonist. Nevertheless, the conniving girl remained a conniving girl; she then hooked up with some other boy behind the back of the male protagonist, to which he found out about it in the end.

The love-lost male protagonist was very depressed. Just then, the female protagonist showed up at the right time to care for him and comforted him. The two of them naturally fell in love with each other and got together...

As Sophia finished watching the short movie from under the stage, she let out a smug smile.

The choice selection for the cast of the conniving girl was perfectly chosen. The talent looked just like Sophia, and her name in the film was blatantly called 'Soph'.