

My Dreamy Old Husband

Chapter 351

What's with these young girls lately with all their idol-chasing and dirty drawings!

When Harry left, he took Sophia's "little hobby" along with him. The little yellow book was privately printed and not publicly issued. There wasn't any information about the publishing house, but it only had the artist's name on the cover page. "I knew it—it's you again!" Sarah was an up-and-coming artist on the Internet. Her illustrations were mostly graphic drawings of men, and she was known for her brutality and straightforwardness.

Harry hated her with a passion since she always drew him. It was such an insult! As soon as he posted a selfie on Twitter, she would illustrate and publish the horrible picture of him scratching his head and showing his chest unless he caught her in the nick of time!

How bad it would be if it spread out! Harry could easily track her down with his status, but it would definitely be an insult to him if people got to know that a young girl like Sarah created so much trouble for him. Hence, he followed Sarah's Twitter account in secret. She had a total of 40 million followers, and he wanted to see if she still dared to draw such saucy pictures!

Meanwhile, Sophia was studying in her room. As she chewed on some beef jerky, she watched her live lecture. She didn't know that she had lost one of her "little hobbies" until Calvin came over in the evening and discussed suing Richard. With that, she immediately turned off the broadcast. Richard had slapped her in front of everyone and also cut her high-end dress. In fact, he had to pay for her medical expenses which included the mental torture she went through, as well as the loss of her job. She didn't ask him to apologize to her, but demanded that he compensated her monetarily instead. It wasn't much—it was just 20 to 30 million.

After drafting the legal formalities with Calvin, he finally left. It wasn't hard to make Richard pay until his entire family went bankrupt when Calvin was there.

As soon as Sophia's lawyer letter was sent to Richard, she received an immediate call from Richard himself. Once she answered the call, she was met with a hysterical roar from the other side. "What are you doing, Sophia? I will give you whatever you want. Can you please let me go? We really can't be together anymore, so please stop creating more nuisance!"

As she put on a facial mask nonchalantly, she replied, "Let me make this clear, Zane—you're the one who has been causing trouble. In fact, I have been letting you go. It was you who cut my dress, and you hit me as well. Did I force you?"

On the other side, Richard was speechless. He was silent for a while before he suddenly lowered his voice and threatened her, "Just wait for me, you b*tch. Your lawyer's letter is not a deterrent to me. I will definitely leave you dead with no place to bury you!"

Sophie smiled and said, "How are you going to kill me off?"

"You should be aware of the Harper Family's power. Killing you off is not a big deal. Just wait and see!"

As she fiddled with her mask, Sophia said into the speaker, "Zane, everyone here is civilized. Please don't say such things anymore as I am a law student myself. I can completely regard whatever you said just now as a death threat to me."

Richard Harper sneered, "Ask yourself, Sophia—am I in any way sorry to you? Yes, I am with Xyla. I know you hold a grudge, but you should see the facts in front of you clearly. It's impossible for us to be together!"

Sophie wanted to laugh, but she didn't dare do so for fear that her mask would crack. "Your sister broke my leg; your family slandered me for an abortion, miscarriage, infertility, and had me expelled from high school. I was ruined completely and lived on the streets. Your sister even got someone to rape me, yet you're here telling me that you're not sorry for anything?"

Richard once again had nothing to say and finally responded viciously, "Wait for me—once I have a word with the Harper Family, I will not let you see the sun tomorrow!"

With that, he hung up the call.

Sophie promptly sent the recorded conversation to Calvin. "He has threatened to kill me. Can you help me with this? If he goes to jail, there's no need for compensation; if this does not warrant jail time, I want him to pay until he goes bankrupt!" No one knew how desperate and helpless she was when she was thrown away back then; now, it was a totally different story!

Of course, Sophia kept her guard up; she knew that it was possible for the Harper Family to use some other means of retaliating. In fact, they would most likely hire several underworlds to block her path. Richard and Kayla were born to the same mother, and the both of them obviously inherited the same mind from their mother.

As they had expected, Sophia had been going in and out of school for the past few days when Hale informed her that someone was indeed following her. She then calmly said, "Since they want to follow us, let's drive to a remote place and keep the evidence."

Back at the Harper Family, Richard had been driven to a dead end. The video of him beating up people in public during the pageant had been posted on the Internet, and it was further sensationalized due to the handsome Taylor. The more popular Taylor was, the more Richard suffered!

Naturally, the Harper Family was not in harmony. Due to Richard's affairs, the Harper Group had to pay a large compensation. Not only that, their management rights were revoked. If it hadn't been because of their marriage with the Huff Family, they would have been driven out of the company's decision-making circle a long time ago. All of this was because of Sophia!

Richard and Kayla were indeed born to the same mother; despite the ongoing court case, the first thing they thought of was using underworld tactics to kill Sophia! Even if it meant using up the last bit of money on their hands, they had to humiliate Sophia no matter what!

Richard caught wind that Sophia had been forced to the suburbs; she would soon be brought to him and let him be ravaged!

Richard waited excitedly, already thinking about countless ways to make her ruin her knees and beg for mercy! It was exhilarating, truly exhilarating...

Meanwhile, he waited at a hotel near the suburbs. After waiting for an hour, he finally heard a knock at the door.

"SF Express! Open the door!"

Here came the signal!

In an instant, Richard opened the door excitedly. However, he came face-to-face with Sophia together with a bunch of cops behind her.

Richard froze.

"It's him, Comrades!" Sophia testified angrily.

The police rushed in and grabbed Richard, who hadn't even come back to his senses...

After this hiccup, the lawsuit between Sophia and Richard ensued. The death threats and personal threats of buying unemployed people in the society were enough to teach Richard and the Harper Family a valuable lesson. Sophia did not want an apology—she just wanted them to rot in jail and pay the price!

It didn't take long for the Harper Family to sell all equity in the Harper Group and eventually moved away from the property near Sophia's household.

Michael had once asked Sophia why she wanted to report this matter and take it to court in the first place.

Sophia smiled and said nothing; she wanted to use the law and let the bad guys who hurt her get the retribution they deserved!