

My Dreamy Old Husband

Chapter 423

The film crew received a lot of flower baskets again on this day. It wasn't rare for the film crew to receive flowers because it was a common occurrence.

Many nouveau riche often bombarded the film sets with flowers to flatter the female celebrities they liked, and some rich women also did this to flatter their favorite young idols. However, the flower baskets this time were quite different, for they were sent to Taylor by Natasha.

Everyone on the film set knew that Natasha was in love with Taylor. She was eager to please him; not only did she visit the film set in person every now and then these days, but she also had flower baskets delivered to the set from time to time. Looking at the flowers placed on the set, the walk-on ladies and the staff on the film set began whispering among themselves.

"Tsk, tsk. Natasha seems serious, but her feelings don't seem to be reciprocated!"

"That's difficult to say. Our Prince Charming here may seem aloof and distant on the outside, but who knows what he's thinking deep down inside? Perhaps he is inwardly bursting with impatience to marry into the Mitchell Family, but is now simply putting on an act!"

"That's right. Even though he is flourishing in show business, he's still just an artist after all. Marrying into the Mitchells would be a very good choice!"

All of them sounded jealous as they spoke. Their eyes were filled with jealousy. How they wished they were born into prominent families, or possessed the same cleverness and academic qualifications as Natasha!

On this day, they were filming a scene where the male lead courageously rescued the trafficked ladies, who all looked travel-worn, weary, and wretched after being hidden in a car. The film director forbade them to wear makeup; instead, he told everyone to apply some dirt on their faces and roll on the ground.

Sophia obediently applied some dirt on her face and rolled on the floor. However, after she had done so, she discovered that everyone else simply put a little dirt on their faces after having applied their usual exquisite base makeup, and they didn't roll on the floor at all.

While other ladies looked delicate and charming with feigned pitifulness, Sophia looked a real sorry sight. Covered in dirt, she huddled in a corner while eating some snacks. As she listened to everyone's discussion, she couldn't help saying with a touch of jealousy, "That's not necessarily so, for Taylor is a married man! It'll be difficult for Natasha to get married to him!" However, her words were instantly met with unanimous ridicule from everyone else.

"We can tell at first glance that you're new in show business. Nothing is absolute in the field, for it is normal for celebrities to get married or divorced, and cheat on their spouses for the sake of publicity!"

"It's silly to talk about love in show business; there is no true love to speak of here. Everyone in the circle is vain. Can Taylor really stay faithful to that wife of his when different ladies want to have sex with him every other day?"

"Romance in show business is the most worthless; it's not as practical as money and fame!"

"Haven't you heard it? There's an unspoken rule on the set whereby all the supporting actresses are supposed to sleep with the lead actors. Who do you think out of so many supporting actresses here stand the best chance to sleep with Miss Taylor?"

"Miss Taylor can sleep with whoever he wants, of course! The way I see it, he'll most likely sleep with Natasha!"

“I bet Miss Taylor doesn’t dare to touch Natasha, though. If he really sleeps with her, he’ll be bound to the Mitchell Family for the rest of his life, and he’ll no longer be able to play around as he pleases. I wouldn’t be willing to end up like that if I were him!”

Sophia was quite at a loss for a reply, for she found herself unable to join their conversation at all. My idol won’t be as deplorable as they imagined! He has always been chaste! she thought to herself.

Still, Sophia was a bit worried. In general, men were animals that easily succumbed to lust. Now that so many beauties were offering themselves to Michael, what if he really gave in to their seduction one day? What if there really were supporting actresses who wanted to sleep with him? With that thought in mind, she decided to keep a closer eye on Michael.

Michael was playing the male main antagonist this time. Since there wasn’t any romantic subplot for his character, he never had to worry about having to film intimate scenes. Therefore, he was totally unperturbed even with his wife watching him on set.

The ladies waited on the film set for a long time just to film a scene that might last for only a minute or two. Even so, they scrambled to have their faces featured in the scene despite it lasting such a short time.

Sophia was unable to fight against them, so she was pushed to the back of the crowd every single time. Thus, she could only have her limbs featured in the shots at most since she couldn’t have her face featured at all.

However, she wasn’t here to steal the show from other actresses. She was here specifically to keep an eye on her husband! Therefore, she sat silently among the crowd while watching Michael closely.

Michael was a very professional actor; not only was he good at acting, but he was also very charismatic, and he rarely broke into laughter during filming. However, he frequently broke into laughter during filming on this day.

Whenever he was drawn into his character only to see the dirt-covered Sophia staring round-eyed at him nearby, he couldn't help but give her an affectionate smile. In the end, he only managed to finish filming his scenes with great difficulty by forcing himself not to look at her.

The morning passed in a flash. Aside from the fact that Michael often unexpectedly broke into laughter during filming, the filming went relatively smoothly, for the scenes were filmed according to schedule. When the film crew handed out the lunchboxes at noon, the walk-ons lined up to get their own, whereas Sophia went to eat in Michael's SUV.

Michael had put on quite a show this time since he had even brought a food truck and some chefs with him. The dishes were ready when Michael, Sophia, and the others arrived, so they sat at two separate tables to eat.

Michael sat with Harry at a table, whereas Sophia sat with Hale, Danny, and Maria to avoid suspicions. Since this was the first time Sophia played as a walk-on, she was both a little excited and physically exhausted, and it took only a little while before she wolfed down two bowls of rice.

When she put down her fork and spoon, she saw the director coming to scrounge a free meal and discuss the scenes that would be filmed that afternoon with the two lead actors. However, the lead actress was nowhere to be seen. She seemed to be filming other scenes on a separate set.

Looking at the flowers Natasha had sent to Michael on the film set, she quietly nudged Hale and shot a glance at the flowers. Then, she shot another glance at Michael and jutted out her chin toward Hale, signaling for him to approach Michael.

Instantly understanding what she meant, Hale finished his meal and went up to Michael, asking, "Mr. Murray, what should we do with the flowers?"

Sophia pricked up her ears and listened attentively as she was desperate to know what Michael would do with the flowers. Michael ate while sneaking a glance at Sophia, who had her ears pricked up while eavesdropping on their conversation. Thus, he said with a smile, “What else can we do? We can’t waste them. Just bring them back to the hotel.”

Before long, everyone on the film set learned that Taylor had accepted the flower baskets Natasha sent and even brought them back to the hotel. In an instant, the film set was abuzz with gossips, and it took only a while before the story was distorted.

“Have you heard it? Taylor accepted Natasha’s flowers! They’re seeing each other now!”

“That’s right! I heard that Taylor moved out from the hotel where the film crew is staying two days ago to the mountain resort where Natasha is staying! They must have been sleeping together for several days!”

Natasha had also sent many flower baskets over last time, but Michael gave them to the film crew so that they could be used as props. However, he readily accepted her flower baskets this time, which was an obvious sign that something was going on.

Natasha, who was staying at the mountain resort, was exuberant when she learned of this. As expected, my perseverance works! Taylor will fall for me one day!

Angry that Michael had accepted Natasha’s flowers, Sophia sneaked off to another film set that afternoon to play a walk-on part.

For time-saving purposes, the film crew was split into two groups to allow multiple scenes to be filmed simultaneously. Michael and Harry were in a group, whereas the lead actress was in the other. Currently, the lead actress was filming other scenes on a separate set.

The lead actress of the film ‘War Dragon’ was Nicole Walker, who landed herself the role despite her obscurity as the lead actress in a local TV drama.

Having played as walk-ons in many dramas, she was the favorite of middle-aged and old countrywomen, until a highly-publicized tabloid scandal landed her on the A-list and made her a true celebrity. After that, she signed up with Imperial Management Studio and became the lead actress of the film 'War Dragon'.