

Chapter 123

Janet had seen William in Harper's house before. Therefore, she could tell at a glance that the person who was under the supervision of the two guards was none other than William, the one whom Harper looked up to.

She frowned as she strode in William's direction. And the people behind her were all stunned as they couldn't catch what Janet had just shouted.

They were all flustered when they saw Janet walking towards William.

Especially Martin and Elizabeth, both of their faces were pale!

They thought that William was going to snitch on them to Janet.

Martin immediately rushed ahead of Janet as he hissed to William, "Why are you still here? Quickly make way for Miss Ching!"

William did not respond.

Martin's heart was beating fast as he continued, "You're looking for death, aren't you?"

At this time, Janet came over and demanded, "Director Zhang, what is going on? I need a reasonable explanation!"

Janet was referring to the fact that they were being scornful towards William.

But Martin couldn't grasp Janet's words.

He quickly explained, "Miss Ching, please don't mind him. This guy is just a good-for-nothing. I offered to hire him to be an assistant photographer in our company. I didn't expect him to be such an ungrateful person."

Martin was completely oblivious to the immediate change in Janet's expression.

He turned his head and roared at William viciously, "Kid, there goes your opportunity. Get out of my sight! I'll never give you another chance even if you kneel in front of me now."

He then ordered, "Security, throw him out!"

Martin decided to resolve the matter at once before William could expose his awful deeds.

However, at this moment, they heard a sneer reverberating across the room.

It was from Janet.

Standing in front of Martin, her smile seemed menacingly frightening.

Janet was indeed a charming lady, but her half-suppressed snicker at this moment unnerved those around her.

"Director Zhang, repeat yourself. Are you telling Mr. William to get out of here? Did you just Insult him as a good-for-nothing? And, are you expecting him to kneel to you?" Janet's voice was sending a cold chill down his spine.

Martin couldn't help but shiver. "Miss Ching, let's go to the front door and welcome the new director, shall we? We'd not waste our time on a b*stard. The new director will be here any sooner."

Then, Martin saw Janet walking towards William.

She pointed at William and said to Martin and the others, "Listen, this so-called b*stard is the new director of Lunanica Media! He's Director Lu!"

Janet glimpsed at the crowd and stated, "I don't know what happened just now! But, I'll report what Mr. Martin said to Mr. Harper!"

At that very moment, there was just dead silence in the hall!

Everyone looked at William who was in sportswear, their eyes widened in disbelief. They could not tell that William was the newly appointed director at all!

How could he be the new director of Lunanica Media!

They could not believe that William was the director whom they had to greet and welcome this morning!

Martin's face turned pale.

Director Lu...

William was Director Lu!

Martin's mind was bombarded by all the remarks he had just made on William!

He had dug his own grave!

Being a company director was practically being on the top of the hierarchy in the company. Yet, Martin had just offered William a position of 3000 dollars per month.

How could Martin fail to see through a person of such caliber!

Martin was so petrified that his entire body was quivering. If Harper were to learn this, it would ruin his future! It would be difficult for him to even step foot in Qena City.

F*ck!

"How could I say something so terrible!"

Thinking about it, he instinctively turned around and slapped Elizabeth!

"It's all this b*tch's fault!" Martin thought.

Elizabeth was the one who told him that William was jobless!

And that William was her obsessed fanboy!

However, William was the newly appointed director!

How could Elizabeth claim that William had no background and a job?

How dared she spread lies about William being her fanboy?

Elizabeth must be an idiot!

It was this b*tch who put him in such a difficult situation!

Elizabeth, who was on the side, had been in a daze for a long time.

She stared at William blankly, who at this moment had transformed from a good-for-nothing into a director of a company!

This striking contrast left her completely stupefied!

"I can't believe he's the director!" Elizabeth thought.

"How is this possible?"

Back then during the alumni meeting, Elizabeth was extremely bossy towards him, but he did not utter a word! He was clearly a coward!

How could such a person be the new director?

"What a joke!" She scoffed inwardly, refusing to accept the fact.

She was slapped and her face was swollen. The pain jolted her out of her disbelief. Only then did she realize she was not dreaming; William was indeed the new director!

He was the new director...

A chill suddenly swept over Elizabeth's whole body.

All the past memories resurfaced in her mind.

She had made countless contemptuous remarks about William during the alumni meeting.

The previous day, she even slandered William in every way possible to distort the truth when she was with Frank!

She even offered fifty thousand dollars to bribe him!

Moreover, she nearly ran him over just a moment ago!

Not only did she refuse to apologize, but she also put all the blame on him.

She deeply regretted what she had done; she had wronged William in too many ways.

He didn't take any of her photographs to blackmail her!

He never replied to her sarcastic comments.

It was not that he was a coward!

It was because he didn't care at all!

What a great difference in terms of character between them!

He never intended to care about her!

"I'm f*cking blind!" Elizabeth scolded herself.

She had offended the superior of her superior!

"Mr. Lu, I'm really sorry. I was stupid of me! I'm a piece of trash! I apologize for my stupidity!" Martin walked to William and bowed continuously.

William ignored Martin; he wasn't buying it.

He turned to Janet and grumbled, "Miss Ching, you're late."

Janet's face became stiff as she explained helplessly, "I'm really sorry. The traffic was awful."

"I hope this is the last time," William replied calmly.

"Of course, I can assure you that," Janet immediately answered respectfully.

Seeing that Janet, who had always been high and mighty, was actually being respectful to William, everyone was dumbstruck once again!

Lunatica Media was just one of Mr. Harper's companies.

Although Janet was not a senior executive, she held a more influential status than any of them.

Even the former director of Lunatica Media had to show his respect to Janet.

But, Janet, at this moment, was exactly like an obsequious waitress while she was talking to William.

It was mind-blowing!

Who the hell was William?

Janet was pretty dejected at this moment, too.

She was Harper's personal assistant. Needless to say, she was an all-rounder.

In Harper's house, she had witnessed how respectful and polite Harper was when William came to his house.

She knew that Harper was not being pretentious; he did not treat William like just another businessman. Janet could see admiration for William in Harper's action!

Naturally, Janet had to be respectful to William.

"Director Lu, they were extremely ill-mannered towards you. How do you plan to deal with them? Or do you want me to handle it?" Janet asked.

Elizabeth and Martin's hearts skipped a beat!

They knew...

They would be able to escape from an imminent punishment!

They would have to pay a hefty price for their misjudgement!

Chapter 124

William glanced at the two of them in front of him.

To be frank, he was unruffled by their insults.

However, their characters were something questionable, something worth having a look at.

William pondered for a moment and voiced, "The two of you, only one shall stay. Make up your mind!"

His word took the others by surprise!

"Only one shall stay!"

What did that mean?

William did not fire the two; his ability to make such an immediate response proved how decisive he was!

Besides, William also displayed his forgiving side by not dismissing both of them!

As the newly appointed director, he made the most indecisive solution.

Why did he do that?

Was he trying to make the two of them unravel each other's scandalous deeds?

William was merciless!

At this time, Janet darted a stare at William!

What a well-thought decision!

On the surface, everyone thought William was unforgiving and ruthless, or even indecisive.

However, Janet was greatly astounded when she gave some thoughts about it!

Lunatica Media had been operating for decades.

The internal management was a mess.

The complicated human connections among employees exacerbated the situation.

Initially, Janet assumed that William was still too young and inexperienced, unlikely to be up to the task.

William's first command as the new director shocked Janet greatly.

Making either of them, Martin and Elizabeth, leave the company delivered a powerful message to the others.

Such a tactic demonstrated his courage to reform the company!

Now that Janet knew William's intentions, she was more impressed.

William knew that both of them should be fired yet he decided to show some leniency!

It showed that he could enforce strict discipline and etiquette on those under his watch!

That reflected his unparalleled confidence in his own capabilities!

A pack of hyenas might seem ferocious!

However, they were no match for a lion!

William was the lion above these seemingly rapacious hyenas!

This was what William was trying to convey!

It was indeed mind blowing!

Those present were all experienced employees in this industry.

After some thought, they stared at William in amazement.

They could see William's courage, determination and confidence!

At that moment, a dreadful fight was about to erupt.

Elizabeth's face turned pallid as she kneeled in front of William, kowtowing to him, tears streaming down her face!

"Director Lu, it's all my fault! My sheer stupidity blinded me! Please let me stay in this company! I promise you that I'll work hard."

Elizabeth was in a state of despair.

Like a plane on the runway, her career was just about to take off!

However, at this moment, all her efforts were going to go down the drain!

That was to say, all the time she spent could have come to nothing!

She wasn't going to give up!

But before William responded, Martin kicked away Elizabeth viciously.

He cursed, "What is wrong with you! You should be the one leaving! Elizabeth Zhang, believe it or not, I make things ugly for you if you don't leave!"

All the previous intimacy they shared had vanished into thin air now that they had to fight for their respective personal interest; they began to turn their back against one another!

Everyone was stunned by such a scene.

This was the natural selection.

However, some of the people there were pleased to see such a scene!

Elizabeth was a crony and Martin's lover, making her extremely cocky, demanding, and bossy, often showing zero regard to the other superiors!

They were irk but were in no place to comment about her bad attitude.

Seeing Elizabeth like a homeless stray dog, they felt that justice had been served.

As for Martin, he had been abusing his power for years. It was time for a wake-up call.

A few executives were starting to admire William.

William had vented their anger for them!

Elizabeth was kicked to the ground. Seeing that William remained silent, a flicker of irritation that she had been suppressing began to roar again.

She first grabbed Martin like a mad woman!

In an instant, Martin's face was scratched by her sharp fingernails, leaving a few bloody abrasions on it!

Elizabeth seemed to be out of her mind as she cursed relentlessly, "You b*stard! Think about what you said to me while we were on the bed! Are you going to dump me now! What a c*nt!"

Martin was taken aback by Elizabeth!

Their affair was exposed!

"What the f*ck are you talking about? Get out of here!" Martin lost his marbles too as he tried to get physical with Elizabeth!

Elizabeth was irate. She laughed sinisterly, "What? Are you going to deny things that happened between us? Fine, then I'll tell you the truth. Didn't I tell you that Director Lu saw me with a man? Did you really think that man was you? In your dreams! It wasn't you! It was another man! How does it feel to be betrayed?"

There was a pin-drop silence and no one uttered a word.

Everyone looked at Martin with pity in their eyes,

as if he was the dumbest man alive.

After hearing that, Martin was so vexed that his entire face was contorted with fury!

That b*tch...

That f*cking b*tch had slept with another man!

She even fooled and lied to him!

The sole reason Martin would offend William on this day was because of her. He did not expect it to be a lie!

Not only was he cheated on, but he was also tricked by Elizabeth. Otherwise, he would never make such careless remarks and get on William's nerves!

Thinking of his stupidity, Martin pounced on Elizabeth and wanted to bite her!

William shook his head and walked away, uninterested in seeing them fighting each other. "Time for our meeting. Guards, please do your job. This is embarrassing."

The crowd immediately followed William.

The security guards rushed over and separated Martin and Elizabeth.

Martin's body was covered with wounds, but he caught up with William immediately.

At that moment, Elizabeth stared viciously at William and shouted, "You son of a b*tch! Stop right there!"

William stopped and looked back.

Elizabeth's face was scrunched up in red fury as she yelled crazily, "Do you think that I can't keep my foothold in this industry if you drive me away? You are underestimating me! I'll find greener pastures!"

She rose from the ground. "I already have a plan B! I will definitely come back! Just wait and see! I'll tear you into pieces!"

The security guards dashed over again and pulled Elizabeth out.

Elizabeth stood at the door as she continued to curse!

She was not threatening William!

Nor cursing him!

It was a fact!

She was one fearless woman! She would do whatever it took to ensure her success.

"William, you'll pay for what you did to me!" Elizabeth cursed him inwardly.

"You're just a mere director of a company!"

"You are a nobody!"

Thinking of this, she took out her phone and called Frank!

Frank was the only one she could rely on.

Frank had promised her a future. She had nothing to fear; she did not have to hold back her anger towards William and Lunanica Media.

Frank had an upcoming project with Lunanica Media. She just needed Frank to ensure her an important role in that upcoming film.

"Let's see who shall have the last laugh!" Elizabeth sneered.

"Director Chien, where are you?" Elizabeth suppressed her anger and asked Frank in a delicate voice.

On the phone, Frank's reply seemed to , "I have something to do."

"Director Chien, I want you to do me a favor. William..."

But she was immediately interrupted by Frank. "William? Where is he?"

Frank sounded very excited!

Elizabeth was confused. "He's at my company."

"I'll be right there, wait for me!" Frank hung up instantly!

Elizabeth's lips quirked up into a resentful smirk!

Frank was coming over to have her back!

Chapter 125

Frank's mind was in a whirl the entire previous night. He woke up at the crack of dawn, eager to look for William.

He had thrown away the business card that William gave him the day before. It was nowhere to be seen.

Just as he was in a daze, he received a call from Elizabeth.

Hearing that William was in her company, every cell in Frank's body became excited at once.

It was William!

Divine Doctor Lu!

"I have to beg Dr. Lu to treat me, no matter what!" Frank mumbled.

He hung up the phone in a hurry and headed towards Lunanica Media.

After making the call, Elizabeth sighed in relief.

She took a deep breath, raised her head, and looked at the sign, "Lunanica".

Once upon a time, companies such as Lunanica Media was only a dream for second-stringers like her.

She was always worried and uneasy during her days in Lunanica.

At this moment, she felt relieved; she had ended her ties with Lunanica Media.

Lunanica Media!

"You guys have disrespected me, to begin with! Don't blame me for getting my revenge!" Elizabeth thought in rage.

And that b*stard William!

Elizabeth hissed, "How dare he humiliate me!"

Her savior, Frank, was on his way!

She knew that Lunanica Media needed a favor from Frank.

Later, Elizabeth will make Lunanica Media...

And, William...

Plead and beg to her!

And ask for her forgiveness!

Let's see who would have the final laugh!

At that moment, in the conference room, William was sitting in the middle.

Janet sat next to him.

The rest of the staff members sat on both sides of the table based on their positions.

There were around ten staff members present.

William looked around and asked, "Is anyone not here yet?"

Everyone looked at each other with awkwardness. Then, a middle-aged man broke the silence. "I've informed Sister Koo, but her schedule is occupied with other commitments. Hence, she can't make it."

"Sister Koo?"

William frowned.

That person immediately explained, "It's Laura Koo."

Laura Koo.

This name did not sound unfamiliar to William.

She should be one of the most famous local celebrities.

She was also the top celebrity of Lunanica Media.

In the past, she was the brightest star out there but seemed to have faded from the spotlight recently.

The executives started to whisper among themselves.

"What's wrong with Sister Koo? She should be here welcoming Director Lu."

"I don't think she cares much. I've heard that she has some strong ties," another voice added.

"I think only Mr. Wang could make her come," an executive stated.

"I heard she is most likely to play the leading actress in a blockbuster sponsored by Henderson Media due to her ties. With that cast, she'll be a hit again. No one would dare to provoke her!" one of the executives said.

William listened to them gossiping.

He did not make any sound.

William shifted his gaze to Janet.

Janet understood his hint immediately. "As we can see, Mr. William Lu is the new company director. On behalf of Mr. Wang, I will convey two of his messages."

"Firstly, Mr. William's appointment is a special one. Hence, Mr. Wang hopes that Mr. William's identity will remain undisclosed."

Everyone was stunned.

They could not disclose William's identity?

What was going on?

Why did it have to be so secretive?

Janet continued, "Secondly, Director Lu will work in our company for a year. In the meantime, I hope that everyone can work together and reach greater heights."

After hearing this, everyone's face was plastered with a strange expression.

Just a year...

Why was there such a weird arrangement?

However, some had already made assumptions on why William's identity couldn't be revealed.

"Could William be incompetent?" someone whispered.

"He must have bribed Mr. Wang to become the director of Lunanica Media for a year," a man added.

"Otherwise, Mr. Wang would have made this appointment known to the public. Instead, we're told to remain silent."

That should be it!

Everyone was just here trying to make a living, so it was unsurprising for them to learn this news.

Thinking of this, Martin secretly glanced at William with disdain again.

"I thought he was a big shot. He turns out to be a clown that Mr. Wang isn't willing to introduce to the general public," Martin scoffed inwardly.

A year!

William was just a fool who had no idea where he would be in one year.

How could Martin be fooled by William a while ago?

"D*mn, a year, isn't it?" Martin thought to himself.

"My subordinates and I will not work with you throughout this one year."

Martin rubbed his palms together and sneered, "Even if a year has passed, by that time, you'll leave in disgrace, and we'll have our sweet revenge."

An insincere smile spread across on his face.

It seemed like all odds were on his side.

"Alright, all of you don't have to report the company's daily routine to me. I'll get my updates from Miss Ching. What is the biggest news in the company recently?" William asked casually.

At that moment, Janet looked at William in astoundment.

This kid had some swagger.

And quite a character!

She was Mr. Wang's secretary!

Did he just expect to summon her at any time?

And did he think it was right to do so?

But in front of so many people, Janet did not make her complaint on the spot.

Martin immediately answered William's question. "Director Lu, the company's biggest deal recently should be the one where we're engaging with Henderson Media and Director Frank Chien. We are preparing to collaborate on a blockbuster. Now, we are still negotiating the terms of this collaboration."

Henderson Media?

Wasn't this the company that Flavia was under, the company of that fatty, Frank?

Thinking of this, William closed his eyes, his mind filling with different thoughts.

Martin continued his report, and when he saw that William actually closed his eyes, he nearly chuckled.

"It is too complex for him to understand, isn't it?" Martin scoffed inwardly.

"It would be so much fun from now on."

Martin swore to make William's miserable!

At that moment, Elizabeth, who was anxiously waiting at the entrance of Lunanica finally saw Frank, who was panting as he ran towards her.

She stepped forward, took Frank's arm, and muttered intimately, "Frank, you're finally here."

"Where is William? Take me to him!" Frank took a deep breath, his face flushed red.

Seeing that Frank couldn't wait to meet William and serve justice for her, Elizabeth's heart was filled with joy!

This fatty had finally come to some use!

"Mr. William, it seems like you will suffer quite a bit later!" Elizabeth murmured inwardly.

"He is in the company. Let's go." Elizabeth took Frank's hand.

Frank made a stride and suddenly withdrew his steps. He looked at the signboard with the word "Lunatica" on it, mumbling in a low voice, "I'm in the most vital stage negotiation with them recently. With my identity, I'm afraid it's inappropriate for me to enter this building. Well, you go and get William on my behalf. Just tell him that I'm waiting at the door."

Elizabeth gave it some thoughts and nodded.

"Frank had come all the way here for her. She had nothing to fear."

After all, she was a domineering lady!

Elizabeth puffed up her chest as she trotted towards the conference room with an arrogant demeanor and stomped the door open ferociously!
