

My Dreamy Old Husband

Chapter 641

Back then when Sophia and Michael went to play at the snow mountain, she met Snowball there, a ball of white fur which was frolicking in the snow covered ground. Since she wasn't strong, she couldn't become a service dog, so she could only be sold as a pet.

When Sophia first met her, she had run out from the puppy mill and rolled in the snow. She almost blended into the snow so she accidentally stepped on her tail, causing her to yap in pain like a weak little girl.

She had decided to buy Snowball then and there and brought her home. Since then, she grew from the size of a kitten to a size larger than Nathan.

Ring, ring!

A simple classic ringtone rang and it was from an unknown number.

Wiping away her tears, Sophia answered the call and at once, an arrogant voice travelled into her ears.

“Sophia, do you like the present that I gave?”

Natasha!

Everything made sense now.

Natasha truly wanted to finish her off and would go to extreme lengths to do so. It was indeed a 'present' that Sophia would remember forever!

Without replying to Natasha, Sophia listened to her as she swaggered about it.

"So, how do you feel? You must be exploding in anger but what can you do about it? Hahaha!"

Sophia smacked the button to end the call. Since Natasha called just to flaunt, she wouldn't listen to whatever she said.

Putting the phone aside, Sophia wiped away the tears from the corner of her eyes before she stood up and carefully removed Snowball's collar. Then, she covered her remains and instructed the staff to return Snowball's ashes to her after they cremated her. After that, she walked out of the mortuary with the blood-stained collar tightly clenched in her hand.

Michael had also been admitted to the same hospital and he was currently being treated.

When Sophia went to his ward to accompany him, she copied the video that had been sent by Nicholas to the computer and started to watch it seriously.

The video showed that when the truck drove toward them, Nicholas had detected someone shooting at the window, and that person was aiming at Nathan.

Right at that moment, Snowball seemed to have sensed something so she looked outside the window by popping her huge head out, blocking the entire window. Then, she never came back in, and it was probably then that she was shot dead by the bullet.

After that, the truck that had lost control drove toward them.

Calmly, Sophia analysed everything that Nicholas had captured and sent the video to Hale for a deeper analysis. Soon, they found the origin of the killer and his employer.

After half a day of torment and a night of rest, the drug in Michael's body finally subsided but he only woke up the next morning.

When he was awake, he felt that every part of his body was sore and he couldn't even move an inch without feeling pain. Lying on the bed, his mind was blank for a long time knowing that his reputation was truly ruined this time.

He had never imagined that this would happen to him, where he was drugged and kidnapped to a hotel room under Natasha's order.

He felt that he must be acting like a beast at that time.

He remembered that when he sensed the drug kicking in, he had hit Natasha, who had tried to offer her body to him, unconscious before he locked himself in the bathroom.

Then, he started to hallucinate and felt that everyone he saw was Sophia. After that, he saw Sophia walking toward him and when that familiar fragrance travelled into his nose, all his forbearance broke down. At that moment, all he wanted to do was comply with the drug and unleash his lust. He wanted very badly to be one with her.

Later on, everything went wild...

After lying on the bed for some time, only did he recall what had happened. His arm was still connected with an intravenous line and looking to the side, he saw Sophia sleeping on the bed beside him.

Sophia seemed to be deeply asleep. With her eyes closed, she looked as quiet and beautiful as an angel in a painting.

He gazed at her and extended his hand, but he couldn't reach her.

Sophia woke up at 6 a.m. She would have seven hours of sleep every day and would wake up at 6 a.m. sharp. When she noticed that Michael was awake, she asked him how he felt in a concerned tone.

Michael felt so sorry for Sophia for being outrageously careless, causing him to fall into someone's trap. However, Sophia didn't complain and just said, "Rest well and don't overthink. I'll settle everything."

She said that in a wise and experienced manner as if she was a professional that had done it for years. That utterly surprised Michael and he felt that she had grown wiser than the last time they met.

After accompanying Michael for breakfast, Sophia immediately went to discuss Michael's situation with the doctor.

Fortunately, it wasn't serious and wouldn't affect his fertility other than some scratches and muscle strain, which might stop him from having an erection for a month.

Meanwhile, Gemma awoke as well. Her injuries were more severe but she had passed the critical period. As long as she rested well for some time, she would be fine.

After leaving the hospital, Sophia headed toward the company. On the way there, she called the agency and the film crew to inform them about Michael's situation as he would need to rest for some time. She also requested them to announce to the public that Taylor had an accident and was severely injured when he was filming an action scene without the help of a stuntman, so he had to rest and recuperate for some time.

Not only could she sustain her husband's reputation, but she could also take the opportunity to publicise the new movie.

Then, she called Maria to send Nicholas to be repaired at Michel Group. On the way back, she even bought a Samoyed that looked exactly like Snowball from the pet shop and sent it back home to accompany Nathan. After that, she went to the company.

Everything was arranged and in order.

As soon as she stepped into the company, everyone gathered around her. The news had been announced on the internet saying that Taylor was injured while filming and was recuperating in the hospital, whereas Nathan almost died in the car accident.

“Miss Edwards!”

“Sophia...”

“Sofie!”

Sophia walked in calmly as if nothing had happened while saying, “Everything’s fine. You may go back to your post.”

She seemed completely composed like a shrewd elite of the urban workplace while walking into the office, and she started to work as usual. It seemed like nothing had happened, or it might just be the calm before the storm.

If a man’s wife was coveted by someone and was even attempted rape on several times, he wouldn’t be able to swallow his anger either.

Therefore, Sophia and Natasha’s battle was far from ending.

For the whole morning, Sophia worked. There was still a lot to be done since a few soul-stirring incidents had happened consecutively in the past 20 hours.

At 3 p.m., Sophia arranged tea for everyone and even gave them a one-hour leave so they could watch the Universal Games.

The 100-meter female freestyle swimming finals would commence this afternoon and the famous beautiful swimmer, Sandra Oak, had a huge chance of winning her second gold medal today and breaking the world record at the same time!

This competition attracted worldwide attention and the entire Cethos was paying attention to it.

Everyone looked at their own computer nervously as if they were the ones participating in the competition.

The internet media was providing live coverage for the finals and on the screen, the girl looked beautiful and lively. At that moment, the whole world was paying attention to her.

If she could win this competition today, she would break several world records and make Cethos proud!

Finally, the commentator exclaimed excitedly, “She won! Sandra won! She defeated her enemy as well as herself and won her second gold medal at the Universal Games. This meaningful gold medal not only represents a great victory in sports for Cethos, but it’s also an important milestone. Today will definitely be recorded in history!”

At that moment, the entire country cheered and rejoiced!
