

My Dreamy Old Husband

Chapter 637

After going through that incident, 'Soul of Sniper' had gained more players, leaving 'Medal of Sniper' behind. While Raytheon was caught in lawsuits, their peers had taken advantage of the situation and poached their employees. As a result, the company was in a slump.

According to rumors, Richard had been removed from his management position due to his miscalculations. He had a lot on his plate so naturally, he didn't have time to bother about Sophia.

And so, this battle was concluded with Richard's defeat. His father was having an affair with Xyla, who was pregnant with an illegitimate child, and waiting for him to pick up the scraps.

Was he willing to?

Of course, he was not, but if he didn't, Xyla would not let him go.

Mr. Harper would not let him off the hook either.

Before this, he had taken Natasha's money and swore to destroy Sophia. But now, instead of destroying Sophia, he was the one who fell first and lost everything.

Natasha would not let him go too.

It was late, and Richard was wandering around Bayside City like a lost puppy as he did not want to go home. His shirt was dirty and greasy and it shined under the streetlights, and he was holding a bottle of beer. On top of that, his face was unshaven, which made him look like a shabby homeless man.

He stopped walking and sat down on some steps which were dirty. Chugging a mouthful of watered-down beer, he looked around and saw that the hotpot restaurant across the street had an outdoor theatre. It was packed with people.

The movie that was playing was 'War Dragon'. Currently, the movie was so popular that it was being played everywhere. Taylor Murray could be seen everywhere.

Taylor Murray, huh...

Drunk, Richard slept on the street while another homeless man took the opportunity to steal his shirt, mobile phone and wallet.

Unable to stop him, he had flashbacks of when he was still the proud son of the Harper Family before he turned out this way...

Meanwhile, Stanley had learned about Richard's current situation.

Tsk tsk, how pitiful! Stanley thought.

Not only was his wife pregnant with his brother and he had to take responsibility, but he also had no career anymore. He was completely under the grips of his father and Xyla. If it weren't for his shares in Harper Group, he would not even be able to feed himself.

For the average person, having shares in Harper Group meant that he would not have to worry about money for the rest of his life and might even be considered rich, but for the once proud and arrogant Richard, this was more miserable than death itself!

He was once a billionaire, but he was scammed and was only left with a million now. Even though he might still be a millionaire, he would rather die. Most people would not be able to accept the huge difference.

Some people could learn from the pain and start from the bottom, while others just fell apart and accepted their fate. Once, Richard used to belong to the former group, but now, after failing many times, he belonged to the latter group.

“Aunt, I heard your ex is now taking drugs, drinking, relying on his family to provide for him and a father to a child that’s not his. How pitiful!” Stanley sighed.

When they met Richard for the first time, he was so high-spirited. After all, he was Harper Group’s young shareholder who was worth billions and the future owner of the company!

With his superiority and extravagance, he looked down on everyone.

What a pity as he had brought this upon himself by provoking Sophia!

Now, he was as good as nothing!

Upon hearing this, Sophie chuckled coldly.

She had wanted him in utter misery, just like this.

She would be coming for those who had hurt her back then one after another.

For now, she would leave Xyla alone. As long as the Harper Group was still standing, she would not move on.

Currently, her company had hired over two hundred employees. As the vacant positions were taken up, the company had added new departments. They had also successfully raised funds and received venture capital from one investor after another, which was how they acquired a smaller but experienced game development company. Thus, a brand new company was formed.

First, they had to rename the company.

At that moment, everyone was caught up in a dispute over renaming the company.

Sarah believed that since the company's initial mission was to get more women to play games, the company's new name should be cute, such as Meow Tech.

Meanwhile, Sean thought that since the company would be focusing on large-scale 3D male-oriented online games from now, the name should be manlier, such as War Dragon Technology. With this name, they could also lift their reputation, not to mention that this name was still available for them to register with.

On the other hand, Stanley felt that since the players up till the programmers were young men & women, their name should sound young. For example, since Judge was the mascot of the company, they should name it Judge Co.

However, Sophia thought the company's new name should be more down-to-earth and catchy, such as Plum Technology.

For the sake of the naming rights, the four of them almost broke out in a fight with their own reasons.

Finally, Stanley sneakily suggested, "How about we listen to whoever wins a physical fight?"

Upon hearing this, Sarah stared at Stanley huffily while Sean shook his head helplessly. Among them, Stanley was the strongest. Of course he would win in a fight!

Glancing at Sean and Sarah who had surrendered, Sophia then turned to face Stanley and nodded. “Okay, no problem.”

Stanley giggled before rolling up his sleeves. “Don’t worry, I’ll be gentle!”

Sophia calmly chuckled before stepping aside and Michael, who had been standing by the door, entered.

“I heard you guys were fighting over the company’s new name?”

Seeing Michael, Stanley was instantly stunned. “N-No, there is no such thing...”

*F*ck, no one can beat Michael!* Stanley thought.

Michael approached Stanley with a dangerous smile on his face. “I think I heard you want to name the company—”

“Plum! Plum Technology!”

Every time Michael took a step closer to him, Stanley would take a step back. His smile was forced, and he looked like he had seen a ghost.

He couldn’t possibly beat Michael. If they were to be in a fight, Michael wouldn’t go soft on him!

Still, Michael closely followed him. Scared, Stanley screamed and ran away.

Everyone couldn’t help but burst out laughing.

And so, the company’s new name was decided—Plum Technology.

The day after the name was decided, the advertising company sent over a designer to design a logo for them. Meanwhile, there was an unexpected guest at the reception.

“Our company has another celebrity guest!” someone shouted loudly, causing everyone who was working to go to the reception desk one after another to spy on the celebrity who had come today.

A lot of celebrity guests had been visiting the company recently. Who could it be this time?

At the reception area sat a beautiful and classy woman. She was sitting up straight and gracefully, and one could tell immediately that she was different from other celebrities.

Instantly, everyone recognized her. “It’s Irene Weber!”

Naturally, everyone knew Irene. Every New Year Dinner Gala, she would always perform solo. As the most well-known military singer, she was undoubtedly the most eye-catching star.

However, why was she here?

Immediately, an employee who gossiped a lot said, “Hey, don’t you know? Irene is Taylor’s ex-fiancée!”

Everyone was stunned. So, she was their boss’s ex?

What was the boss’s ex doing here?

Curiously, everyone carefully watched every movement at the reception.

“Our boss’s ex is here!”

This news had also reached Sophia.