

My Dreamy Old Husband Chapter 819

It was really cute to see a little girl sitting among the big dogs.

The dogs at home were always given baths. Other than making sure there weren't any insects and mites on them, Carmen needed to wash her hands whenever she was done playing with them.

Carmen then brought out a pile of clothes to put on the dogs because she was afraid that the dogs would have no clothes to wear after she left, while Sophia recorded a video of her to show her in the future.

Perhaps braiding was a physical activity that wasted a lot of energy. After playing happily for a while, she started dozing off. Sitting on the ground, her tiny head bobbed for a while before she leaned against one of the dogs and fell asleep. Sophia couldn't help but laugh. Then, she put down her phone and washed Carmen's hands and face before she placed her on the bed.

Later, Sophia lay on the bed and scrolled on her phone, taking the time to post Judge's silly picture onto the twitter account made for him. She also posted a series of professional shots of Judge wearing Pouri products to create buzz for Pouri's new product launch.

Even though Judge usually looked silly, his photos from the studio looked great. After all, they were shot in a professional studio with good lighting, and they were heavily edited...

Early next morning, Carmen woke up at dawn. She jumped out of bed, went to find her mother and pestered her to bring her to the studio. Michael came over early to pick her up and also joined them for breakfast. After breakfast, the whole family got in the car and drove to the airport outside the city. Later, they took Michael's plane to the film studio outside the city.

They were afraid that Carmen might feel lonely without a dog by her side, so they brought Bubbles with them. After they got off the plane, Sophia felt drowsy but Carmen was extremely energetic. Carrying her small doggy backpack, she walked around excitedly. Even though Michael really loved Carmen, he didn't always spoil her. Ever since she was young, he already cultivated her independence and taught her to do everything she could, such as carrying her own bag.

"Daddy, where shall we go after we finish filming?"

"Let's go and see pandas!"

"Yay!"

Carmen walked happily ahead, her little hand holding onto Michael's big hand as she chatted with him excitedly. Meanwhile, Sophia yawned and walked behind, holding Bubbles with a leash. Then, she freed one hand to turn on her phone and logged into Judge's Twitter to check his status.

Tsk, tsk. It seems like this dog is getting famous.

In the past, Sophia only received at most one thousand replies in one tweet. However, the reshares, comments and likes for the video she posted yesterday were more than 60,000.

This dog is even more famous than most humans.

However, after she clicked into the comment section, she realized that the people seemed to have their attention elsewhere.

'Judge still looks handsome even with pigtails!'

'Oh my god! That little girl is so cute! Is her name Carmen?'

'Is that the little owner of Judge and Corrado?'

'She's so pretty and cute!'

Sophia clicked on the video and found out that she forgot to cut Carmen out from the video she posted last night. The look of Carmen trying hard to braid the dogs while she slowly dozed off was recorded and her cute appearance immediately attracted a lot of people. She soon made the list of the weekly hot topics, and the popularity of 'Cute Girl Braids Dogs' was only second to 'Taylor Murray Faked His Death'.

Oh...

Many people had sent private messages to ask about Carmen, hoping that they could see more of her photos. There were even many verified agency accounts that asked for her contact number so that they could make Carmen a star.

Faced with the huge attention, Sophia felt a little panicked and she hurriedly discussed it with Michael.

Michael only found out about the video after getting off the plane. He didn't expect that his daughter would get famous for saying a few words in a childish tone and braiding the dogs. Moreover, her popularity was still rising and she was about to overtake him.

He patted Sophia's shoulder and said, "Just go with the flow. You don't have to respond to any of the messages."

However, Sophia was still at a loss. On one hand, it was inevitable that Carmen would be in the public eye because she wanted to be an actress. On the other hand, she thought that it wasn't healthy to expose a child to the media at such an early age.

They soon arrived at the studio. Because Carmen's scenes were supplementary shots, there weren't many other actors, and most of the people on set were staff.

Carmen ran into the set and greeted each staff member. Before we came, daddy told me that only sweet children are welcomed and I cannot offend the director. Otherwise, he won't let me play the role. Furthermore, I can't offend the makeup artists and the stylists, or else they will make me look ugly.

As soon as Carmen entered the set, she greeted every staff member politely and they really liked her. Some people even recognized her as the cute girl from the video that went viral today. Judge was the model for Pouri and the founder of Pouri was Taylor's wife, Sophia, so naturally, the little girl that lived with Judge was related to Taylor.

They didn't expect Taylor to have a daughter.

Soon, Carmen changed into her costume, put on makeup, and stood in front of the camera confidently, preparing for her first shoot.

Her scene today was really simple. The background of the scene was the enemy besieging the city as she stood at the side of the street, watching everything but not understanding what was going on.

It was like a scene from Cethos's past. The gates of the country were blasted open by the enemy's cannon, and at that moment, their dream of being the strongest country in the world shattered in one night. Everyone was at a loss and nobody knew what their future would be.

Michael had written the plot for Carmen: More than a hundred years ago in Bayside City, the people lived happily in their land, not knowing that a catastrophe was about to happen. On a stage along the streets of Bayside City, an opera singer was singing sonorously while a little girl dressed in plain clothes tried to sing along. The public surrounded them and were enjoying the show. All of a sudden, sounds of cannons could be heard and it shocked the city. Realizing that the enemy was besieging the city, the crowd scattered and the singer ran away. However, the little girl didn't know what was happening so she turned to look at the gates. Among the smoke and fire, she saw that the enemy had entered the city center, but she didn't know that a massacre was about to come.

The opera singer was naturally going to be played by Michael. In order to help his daughter debut, he went all out. Soon, the opera singer, the extras, and the little girl were in place. As soon as the director yelled action, everybody started acting their role. The opera singer took a deep breath and started singing. Seeing this, the little girl sang along with the opera singer and did a good job.

Carmen's acting in this scene was great as she had practiced a lot with her father at home. Whenever her father sang, she would sing along, so her performance was perfect. Almost all of the shots passed with one take.

She sure is Taylor Murray's daughter! The director was ecstatic. Her confidence and spirit is amazing. She was born to be in movies! Seeing that the scene was done in one take, the director excitedly yelled cut and watched the replay.

"Amazing! It's perfect!" The director was elated and as he watched the replay, he couldn't help but praise Carmen.

Michael carried Carmen over to watch the replay and he was really satisfied with how it turned out.

Not bad. If there weren't so many family businesses for her to inherit, Carmen really can consider an acting career after she turns eighteen. However, with me, her mother, and her grandfather's fortune, I don't think she'll have the time to act in movies.

Because the shooting of the first scene had gone smoothly, Carmen was really excited. She urged the director to start shooting the second scene before she skipped away to prepare for it. Seeing this, Michael hurriedly went to make preparations for the next scene too.

However, Cooper, who had been silent the whole time, suddenly stepped forward and placed his hand on the director's shoulder. In a cold voice, he said, "For the second scene, get a few more takes."
