

My Dreamy Old Husband Chapter 1406

Finally, Sophia secretly met up with Tiffany.

It had been a month since Betsy passed away, and Tiffany seemed to have recovered from the grief of losing her daughter. Protected by Cooper and her confidants, she stayed in a bungalow in the outskirts of town for recuperation.

At four months pregnant, Tiffany's belly had not started showing yet. Looking in the pink, she appeared to be in good spirits and was hopeful about the future.

She would be able to turn the corner as long as the child was safely born.

Meanwhile, Sophia had revealed her motive straight away.

"Abort this child."

She stared deadly at Tiffany's belly while saying that. It was as if she could look through the skin and see the 4-month-old fetus gradually being formed. His small, tender limbs were no different from other ordinary fetuses.

The blood flowing in this child was from Tiffany and Cooper.

He was an offspring of the lineage of the Adams Family and Michel Family, and he would be born as the successor to his parents' wealth. This child who came along to Cooper in his autumn years would become an opportunity to help Tiffany soar again.

Tiffany had chased after Cooper for twenty years yet he remained moved, so he would not possibly have a child with her.

The source of the unborn child's gene was unknown. However, according to Bailey's intelligence, the child was Cooper's.

Sophia stared fiercely at Tiffany's belly with a combination of disgust, hatred and jealousy in her eyes.

She failed to conceive a child, yet this old woman had succeeded.

What was worse, that was her father's child!

If the child was born, Sophia would have a brother. The thought of it already ticked her off. She found it rather acceptable if Anna was her little brother's mother because after all, Cooper and Anna loved each other.

But what the heck was Tiffany's child?

He was merely a tool used by Tiffany to tie Cooper up and to return to the Adams Family.

Stunned, Tiffany had not expected Sophia to be aware of the truth.

Nevertheless, she continued acting dumb. "Abort this child? Why should I?"

Sophia did not beat around the bush either and cut straight to the point.

"I dislike the child in your stomach, and I won't allow him to be born. If you refuse to give him up voluntarily, I'll help you to get rid of him in person."

With that, she stood up and left without saying a word more to Tiffany.

Leaving aside how Tiffany obtained Cooper's gene, Sophia would definitely not allow the child to be born into this world. Things would only get more complicated if she was to dig into it.

She was well aware of Tiffany's personality. If the child was born, he might grow up to be a second Betsy and would even rob her of Cooper's heritage and favor.

At the thought of Cooper being the father to Tiffany's child, Sophia felt disgusted as if she had swallowed a dead fly as she could picture someone like Betsy sticking around Cooper and calling him 'dad'.

Watching Sophia taking her leave resolutely, Tiffany pondered who could have leaked out the news.

It seems like Sophia knows something.

She had conducted everything in utmost secrecy, and by right, no one would be aware of it besides that few people.

Truth was, her unborn child belonged to Cooper.

She had frozen her ovum twenty years ago, whereas Jordan had provided the sperm. He had stolen Cooper's sperm from the cryobank at which Cooper had stored at a younger age.

Cooper's gene had been given by Jordan to Tiffany as a present.

Tiffany knew Jordan wouldn't be this kind and merely made use of her to destroy Cooper and Anna's relationship.

Obviously, Jordan knew Anna was two-timing him, but because he was crazily in love with her, he still gritted his teeth hoping that she would change her mind though he knew she had betrayed him.

If a child of Cooper and Tiffany was born at this moment, Anna would certainly give up on Cooper.

On the other hand, Tiffany would achieve her motive too by making use of this child to approach Cooper. Cooper was already in his forties and he loved children. As such, he would surely dote on this child and Tiffany.

There was a Cethosian saying which went, 'if you truly loved someone, you would love everything related to them'. Now that Tiffany was pregnant with Cooper's child, it was likely that she would become even more important to Cooper.

However, Tiffany dared not to tell Cooper because she couldn't guarantee that Cooper wouldn't ask her to abort the child upon knowing the truth.

Even if Cooper had no intention of doing so, many others would have—for instance, Sophia and Linus because the birth of this child would pose a threat to them. So, Tiffany didn't dare to reveal the truth. As long as the child was born into this world, there would be no reason for Cooper to not love him and protect him, and with that, Cooper would naturally care more for Tiffany too.

Likewise, Sophia would not bring up the matter to Cooper too regardless of how the secret was made known to her because she shared the same concern as Tiffany—she couldn't predict Cooper's reaction.

While Sophia was worried that Cooper would want to keep this child, Tiffany was worried that Cooper would want to abort this child.

Hence, Sophia wished to get rid of the child before Cooper became aware of the truth, whereas Tiffany too wanted to give birth to this child before Cooper discovered it.

Sure enough, Sophia did not mention anything to Cooper after coming home.

She was certain that Cooper would agree to keep this child due to various reasons.

She was displeased and didn't like how things looked at the moment.

Sophia had always been the apple of her father's eyes. Nevertheless, she was selfish and wicked. Besides detesting Betsy, she hated Tiffany who had raised Betsy to become who she was, and she hated the child of Tiffany and Cooper even more.

Though the child was innocent, Sophia was dying to kill the child in person as the evil side of her expanded infinitely.

She had always been a beautiful lady with dark personalities.

"Mommy!"

Dressed in a new outfit, Carmen suddenly popped out from nowhere. Giving off a sweet aura, the little girl looked extremely adorable with her kitten ears headband.

Displaying her new dress, she asked, "Look at me. Am I pretty?"

Sophia gazed at her from head to toe and praised, "Absolutely. My darling looks gorgeous!"

Carmen nodded in contentment. "Daddy got this dress specially for me. Grandpa and I are going to shoot again tomorrow. Mommy, you have to come visit us, okay?"

It was only then that Sophia was reminded that the shooting for 'My Grandpa In Shining Armor' had not ended yet. Earlier on, they had agreed to be cast in several episodes, and the shooting and broadcasting of the show had been proceeding on and off. Aired on the military channel, the show had received high popularity.

Although Carmen was supposed to concentrate on school, every year, she would still make some cameo appearances occasionally. For instance, she had taken up a cameo role in 'I Am The Village Chief (Season 5)', and she would make a cameo appearance in the series together with her father.

In fact, Michael too had not expected the village romance series produced by an amateur filming crew, in which he played a cameo role on a whim back then, to achieve such outstanding results today. It had broken the box office records and became one of the most conventional themes. The series was a great hit and even the fifth season was in production now.

Previously, Michael would play a cameo role in every season and now, Carmen would be joining him.

Carmen's happiest moment was every time when she knew she was going to appear on the TV again.

Having starred in 'I Am The Village Chief (Season 5)' and 'My Grandpa In Shining Armor' recently, Carmen felt she was the luckiest child to have both her father and grandfather taking turns to appear on-screen with her.

It would be perfect if Sophia could star in 'Where Are We Going, Mom?' with her.

"Mommy, I'll be staying with the filming crew for a few days. Don't miss me, okay? I'm going to earn some money and buy you candies."

Looking at Carmen's joyful appearance, Sophia had mixed feelings.

Every child was a darling to their parents.

Her child was precious, and so was Tiffany's child.

Not only did she just kill Betsy, but she was even going after Tiffany's unborn child now.

Sophia felt as though she was a demon.

How then was she different from people like Jordan?

There would be a reckoning...

My Dreamy Old Husband Chapter 1407

Wearing a matching outfit with Carmen, Michael looked at Carmen delightedly as she chattered like a joyful lark. However, he turned around to find Sophia wearing a long face.

“Are you okay?” Michael asked concernedly.

Sophia forced a rueful smile and said, “I’m fine.”

She had not brought up the matter to Michael because she didn’t want him to become aware of it, nor did she want Carmen and the other family members to discover it.

However, she had told Sean about it.

“Are you sure you want to do this?”

Sean furrowed his brows upon hearing her plan.

Sophia would always come to Sean whenever she had a problem. He was like a walking encyclopedia for emotional issues. He would be able to provide extraordinary solutions and clear analysis for all kinds of troubles including relationship disputes, psychological issues or even irregular menstruation. Even so, there was no progress between him and Stanley yet.

“Yes, I’ve made up my mind,” Sophia answered determinedly.

Sean heaved a sigh. It seemed like neither were there other solutions at the moment.

Actually, it was better to get rid of the child earlier since things might get more complicated if the child was born. Sean even provided Sophia with counselling services.

“It’s okay. The Cethosian Law does not acknowledge fetal rights. Technically speaking, it is still a fetus now. Killing a fetus does not count as murder. I’ll help you.”

The plan to destroy Tiffany’s unborn child became much easier with Sean’s assistance. At least, Sophia had overcome the emotional hurdle.

In order to eliminate all feelings of guilt, that very night, Sophia traveled to Reverie Mountain where Daniel Levine was to offer incense, donate some money, and fast. Thereafter, she quickly went home to get down to business.

However, she had not expected Tiffany to have made a move before her.

Rushing back from Reverie Mountain, she spotted Carmen playing in the yard even before she entered the house. "The old lady with big boobs is here again. She's crying to Grandpa in the house and Grandpa sent me out," Carmen muttered in a displeased manner.

The old lady with big boobs?

Tiffany the b*tch has come to our place!

The door was closed. Sophia gently pushed it open and heard Tiffany wailing miserably in the living room.

"Cooper, I know you detest this child, but he is my only offspring now. Your daughter has already killed Betsy. Are you going to kill my second child now?"

Tiffany had actually confessed to Cooper first to gain the upper hand!

It seemed like Sophia had to burn her bridges now to go after Tiffany's unborn child.

A cold shiver ran down Sophia's spine but the next second, she boiled with rage.

What a shameless b*tch!

Tiffany was kneeling in front of Cooper in the living room. Holding tightly onto his thigh, she cried her eyes out in despair as she begged Cooper in a low voice while sobbing incessantly.

"I'm already forty-something this year. I've taken out all my frozen ovum from the bank and this is the only one that was fertilized successfully. Cooper, do you know how much I've suffered to get this child? And do you know how risky it was for me to conceive this child?"

"You know you're the only one in my heart and I've been waiting for you all these years! Though I was married a few times, I didn't want to bear children for any other men because my only wish is for you to be the father of my next child. I had no choice but to turn to this last resort after waiting for so many years."

“How could you be so heartless? Your daughter already killed my daughter, yet you want to kill our child next? He is innocent!”

Sure enough, Cooper was put in a difficult position upon knowing the truth about Tiffany’s pregnancy.

His greatest worry had eventually come to pass.

His genes had fallen into the hands of Jordan, and Jordan had actually given it to Tiffany.

And now, Tiffany was pregnant with his child.

Back then, Jordan had sent someone who perfectly imitated Annabel to seduce Cooper, and Cooper had been acting along with the woman to lure her into exposing information about Annabel. In order to put on a seamless act, he even had to sleep with the woman.

Cooper had been extra vigilant every night to prevent the impostor from getting pregnant with his child. He would use hypnotic fragrance together with a high-tech instrument which could manipulate human’s brain waves to induce hallucination upon the impostor. As such, the impostor thought she had already slept with Cooper and even pretended to have conceived his child so that she could threaten him.

Cooper would definitely not harm children. Every child was an angel and innocent, but how could he accept that Tiffany was pregnant with his child?

What would Anna think of this child?

As a result of technological advancement, the development of organ transplantation, test tube babies, and even clones had gradually emerged. Such technologies constantly challenged human’s ethical principles and so, there would always be a group of scholars protesting outside the headquarter of Michel Group from time to time. They would remonstrate against issues such as the company’s overly innovative robots, their engagement in cloning technology research, and their unduly advancement in artificial intelligence technology which was causing the degeneration of the human race.

Cooper had not expected the repercussions to hit him this soon.

He wasn’t the one who got her pregnant, but the child was indeed his.

Was he really going to kill his own child?

No, he couldn't bear to. Though the child was still a fetus now, he was part of him.

Later, this fetus would grow into a child of Cooper's.

Moreover, it was a fact that Sophia had killed Betsy. Even if Cooper could find thousands of excuses to run away from his responsibility, the fact would not change.

Meanwhile, Theo and his three children stayed away from the living room as they had no intention to meddle with Cooper's affairs, though they still peeked at him out of curiosity. On the other hand, the bunch of dogs had actually gathered around to watch the scene. Subconsciously, Cooper glanced toward Sophia who had just entered the house and Linus who had rushed back home too.

The two siblings stared at Cooper with mixed emotions as they awaited his response.

Looking downward at Tiffany who was crying in despair and thereafter gazing toward Sophia and Linus, Cooper felt extremely conflicted.

Sophia and Linus would undoubtedly still be his most precious children, but Tiffany's unborn baby was his child too. How could he bear to annihilate the child when he was already a four-month-old fetus?

Tiffany was still weeping. "Bailey won't allow my child to be born. Cooper, I've once had the thought of using this child to tie you down. However, now that Betsy is gone, I've lost all my kin. All I want is this child and nothing else."

"I need this child. He is my only hope to stay alive and I can't afford to lose him! For the sake of our many years of friendship, please, I'm begging you to save my child and I."

Feeling extremely afflicted, Cooper closed his eyes.

He knew whatever he said now would be useless because he couldn't possibly ignore the child after he was born. After all, the child was his offspring too, just like Sophia and Linus. Though it was not a fruit of love between him and the woman he loved, it did not change the fact that the child belonged to him. He couldn't remain apathetic.

Tiffany's sobbing mixed with the sound of Celine munching on sunflower seeds and watermelon was making the atmosphere in the living room become increasingly bizarre.

My Dreamy Old Husband Chapter 1408

"Welcome home."

Michael came home early today and saw that Sophia had arrived home too. "How was the trip to the temple on the mountain?" he asked.

Michael walked up to hold Sophia's hands but realized that her hands were extraordinarily cold.

He wrapped his big hands around hers, hoping to bring her warmth.

He could totally understand Sophia's feelings.

Back then when he first found out that Quinton was his younger brother, he couldn't accept it too even though it wasn't Theo's fault. At that time, Tanya had abducted Theo back to her drug nest and tortured and insulted him in every way possible. She even drugged and r*ped him in order to make him surrender. Theo could have gritted his teeth and fought back, but he had chosen to endure so that his identity would not be exposed.

So, he played along, pretending to have no power to resist and surrendered. At the same time, he secretly passed on information about the drug nest and arranged tactical plans. With that, he eventually demolished the drug nest and put an end to the turmoil in Golden Triangle which had lasted for a few decades. Now, the citizens in that area stayed away from drugs and were living a peaceful life.

Theo was not to be blamed for the incident which happened at that time. Nevertheless, Michael's feeling upon discovering the existence of a younger brother was indeed indescribable.

And now, Sophia was going through exactly what he had experienced before.

However, Cooper's case was more exceptional than Quinton's.

Who would have expected Tiffany to have gotten Cooper's gene and used it for herself?

Michael had never seen such a shameless woman.

In fact, his father-in-law was the most distressed because he was innocent. He had merely stored his sperm, yet it had been stolen. Now, someone was pregnant with his child and had come to pester him.

"Everything will be fine," Michael cooed at Sophia in a low voice.

With a complicated look, he glanced toward Cooper.

According to his understanding toward his father-in-law, it was very likely that...

"Get well soon, Tiffany. We'll talk about the rest later on."

Eventually, Cooper heaved a sigh and said, "I'll protect you and the child."

With that, Cooper plodded up the stairs and went into his room. Wiping off her tears, Tiffany stood up, thereafter staggered toward the door under her bodyguard's support.

She seemed to not have noticed Sophia when she passed by her at the entrance. Sobbing and sniffing, Tiffany got into the car and left under the bodyguards' extensive protection.

Nevertheless, Sophia knew that Tiffany was extremely elated.

She would be able to tie Cooper down once the child was born.

This b*tch has indeed gone all-in. She even forced herself to conceive a child at this age.

At that moment, Sophia's thoughts were extremely dark and evil.

Michael too had noticed that her hands were getting increasingly cold.

Michael shared Sophia's stance and they were of the same opinion.

This child can never come to this world.

It was not just a matter of a fight over Cooper's heritage and love. If that was the case, Michael would be pleased to see his father-in-law having more children, especially daughters, because then he would not devote all his attention to Sophia all the time, and Michael would be less pressured as his son-in-law.

But the problem was that the child's mother was Tiffany, who was someone as wicked as Quinton. After the child was born, she would surely strive for more wealth on behalf of him, and might even go after Sophia and Linus.

At the moment, the family was pretty harmonious. Though there were often some minor disputes between Michael and Cooper, generally, the home environment was very decent. Cooper treated his son well, Linus and Sophia were close with each other, and there were neither intrigues nor conflicts of interest within the family. However, things would be different once Tiffany's child was born.

Since Cooper is soft-hearted and can't bear to get rid of the child himself, as his son-in-law, I should give him a hand!

And so, Michael secretly made a call to Anna.

The call had caught Anna off guard because she rarely crossed paths with Michael and only knew him mainly through his movies. She was aware of this son-in-law's backgrounds and achievements. As a mother-in-law, she was extremely satisfied with him.

Anna remained silent for a moment after Michael had finished narrating, and then answered, "I believe Cooper will handle this matter well."

"What if he fails?" Michael asked.

Smiling faintly, Anna said, "Then he doesn't deserve my love."

With that, Michael was rendered speechless.

Then, they made some small talk before hanging up.

He wondered how his father-in-law would settle the issue this time. In fact, many relationship issues between men and women were self-induced as a result of their indecisiveness and ambivalence, and there was no one else to blame.

If there were any ambiguities at all, then the cause would either be that the love between the two wasn't genuine, or that one party was deliberately running away from problems. An illustration was that there would always be an ignorant man behind every bad relationship between his mother and wife.

There were never any ambiguities between him and Sophia even though they had been separated in the past, and they had encountered exes who sought to stir up trouble too.

It would be disappointing if Cooper still remained indecisive this time round. This kind of matters must be handled in a firm and accurate manner, or else the consequences would be dire. Irene Weber was the perfect example. Back then, Michael failed to settle with her as soon as possible and it had nearly caused Sophia to be harmed.

No one had an idea about how Cooper would handle this matter. Nevertheless, Cooper seemed to have not changed since Tiffany's visit. He worked from home every day and would stay in his study room until late night. After dinner, he would spend some time with the family watching TV, fight over the TV remote control, and have a chat with Theo. Besides, he would sternly exhort Sophia to quickly get rid of the dogs at home, yet still joyfully walked the dogs the next morning.

On the other hand, Sophia had been racking her brains thinking of ways to get rid of Tiffany's unborn child.

Cooper was determined to keep Tiffany's unborn child, and Tiffany too had been extra vigilant since this was her only chance to turn the corner. As such, it was not an easy task to kill the child.

Michael watched as Sophia diligently prepared a proposal.

Plan A: Drug her. The pros are simple execution and high effectiveness whereas the cons is that we might get caught.

Plan B: Lure her out and beat her up.

Plan C: Hire an assassin. P.S. Quinton will not take up the task but he can be the middleman to refer other assassins to us. He'll earn a 20% commission.

Plan D: Bribe Tiffany's private doctor to cause a medical accident.

Michael became speechless.

She actually placed the proposal blatantly on the bedside table. Isn't she afraid of being exposed?

Sophia had secretly taken action too besides writing the proposal.

Tiffany stayed in a bungalow arranged by Cooper in the outskirts of town. He had sent a dozen staff including chauffeurs, chefs, servants, and bodyguards to look after Tiffany. As such, Tiffany was well-protected, and her diets were strictly controlled.

It was indeed arduous to defeat her. Since Cooper was having Tiffany's back, the child would definitely be safe unless Tiffany decided to give up the child.

Cheesed off, Sophia even wrote curses about Tiffany's child in her room and placed her writings at the common area visible to Cooper.

Though Cooper knew Sophia detested the child, he pretended to not have seen the curses.

Failing to cause Tiffany to have a miscarriage, Sophia complained about having chest tightness these few days so Michael accompanied her to the hospital for a checkup, and they dropped by to visit the gynecologist.

She was experiencing breast swelling but was still not pregnant. Truth was, her health had been severely affected in the early years and it was already a great blessing to have been able to conceive her first child.

Upon recognizing that it was hard for Sophia to get pregnant, both Sophia and Michael were disappointed. However, they did not expect that they would bump into Tiffany, who was here for a prenatal checkup, as they walked out from the hospital distraughtly.

Tiffany's face was glowing. Looking at Tiffany's belly which had barely increased in size, Sophia became extremely jealous at that instant. Not only is she pregnant, but she is even pregnant with twins!

My Dreamy Old Husband Chapter 1409

Tiffany was four months pregnant, but her belly had not started showing yet. Arriving at the hospital under the bodyguards' careful protection, Tiffany was extra vigilant and did not greet Sophia and Michael even after she saw them. Any ordinary antagonist would have taken the opportunity to jeer at Sophia at such a moment.

However, Tiffany did not even spare Sophia a glance after bumping into her although she knew Sophia was looking for every possible chance to kill her unborn child. Well, I guess that's the difference between a normal antagonist and the ultimate boss, Michael marveled inwardly.

In fact, he had been looking for opportunities to harm Tiffany the past few days too but to no avail because Tiffany was extremely cautious. Besides, Copper had given her the highest level of protection, and Michael couldn't even seize a good timing to lay a hand on Tiffany though the hospital where she went for prenatal checkups was actually under his management. My old father-in-law is totally acting against his usual calm and rational persona!

Michael knew there was not much time left for him. How could he leave with a peace of mind if even Cooper was unreliable? He had originally intended to leave Sophia and Carmen in Cooper's hand.

Regarding that, Cooper had also made his statement. If Michael as Sophia's husband who was thirteen years older than her was able to take care of the two ladies for a lifetime, then him as the father who was eighteen years older than Sophia would be able to do the same too. However, Michael became perplexed at this moment. For the first time in his life, he started doubting Cooper who had always been powerful.

Meanwhile, Sophia was still annoyed after leaving the hospital, and she was cursing Tiffany non-stop on the way back. "Look at that old woman. She's so arrogant! What's so great about being pregnant? Just you wait, I'm going to do IVF and I'll get a pair of twins too!"

Michael furrowed his brows. Earlier on, he had already learned about the process of IVF. It was indeed grueling and torturing from the stage of fertilization to conception and labor. He couldn't even bear to let Sophia suffer the process though she was only in her late twenties. Yet, that old woman was seeking all these troubles when she was almost fifty years old. Does she really love Cooper so much?

Moreover, it had probably not been easy for her to get pregnant at this age, and she might miscarry anytime when Sophia started taking action.

During the weekend, Sophia secretly asked Lucy out again to the bar where they usually went. Recently, two of them would meet up for a drink from time to time. There weren't many customers at midnight. The bunny girl on the stage was singing out of tune while several drunk men lay disorderly over the tables. There were only very few who remained sober.

After two glasses of wine, Sophia gradually lost control over her emotions. "Who is that old woman to bear my dad's child? My dad's totally out of her league!"

Sipping her wine quietly, Lucy did not chime in and only spoke up after Sophia finished ranting. "According to my understanding of your father, he'll definitely not do so. He must have some other plans."

Sophia smirked and remained silent. Cooper was a calm and rational man in her opinion. Putting aside the way he treated his children and Carmen, Cooper was almost like a robot. Nonetheless, this matter concerned his offspring. Would he treat that child the same way he treated Sophia?

Back then when Virs-18 hit the country, Sophia was on the verge of death. In order to accumulate merit on behalf of Sophia so that she could quickly regain consciousness, Cooper had desperately released the cure and caused the money which he had invested over the years to go down the drain. That was the day when Cooper was the least calm and rational throughout his life.

In fact, Sophia too had reckoned that Cooper might have some other plans, but she still couldn't stand seeing Tiffany being this arrogant.

Sophia's car was parked at the same old spot outside the bar. Sitting shotgun, Michael was scrolling through his phone while occasionally lifting his head to glance at the parking lot across the street, where Lucy's car was parked.

It was still the same original model. Actually, this ex-girlfriend of his was a nostalgic person. She had been using this car for many years, and she was already using it when Michael started dating her. The car had gone under repair several times, and it was amazing that she was still using this old manual car after so many years.

In the past, Michael could always see Dana sitting in the car waiting for Lucy. But alas, now that Lucy was engaged to that toad, Dana was unlikely to appear anymore. Michael felt sorry for his ex-girlfriend for marrying such an ugly man. He couldn't imagine making out with someone who had a face as hideous as his.

Michael kept glancing toward Lucy's car. It was dark inside the car and it seemed like no one was in there, but Michael knew there was someone in the car. Perhaps he was staring at the car so frequently that even the person in the car had noticed him. The car door was opened all of a sudden, thereafter a man in black suit who looked like a bodyguard got out of the car and came to knock on Michael's car window.

"Hey dude, let's get a drink!"

Holding a bag of peanuts and Cokes, the man took off his obstructive sunglasses and revealed his face. It was Dana!

Michael had no idea why Dana was here, and they had started drinking even before Michael could realize. Sitting outside the bar, two of them had some snacks and Coke but dared not to take alcohol because they still had to drive later.

Michael did not ask Dana where she had been. Silently sipping his Coke, Michael looked toward the bar. While they were drinking, Dana gave a burp out of the blue and said, "Just stay out of Cooper's affairs."

Michael put down his can of Coke and asked in astonishment, "Even you're aware of that?" Has the news about Cooper's child traveled so far already? Even Dana who popped out from nowhere knows about that.

Smiling smugly, Dana did not answer the question.

Suddenly, Michael recalled that on the day of Lucy's engagement, Sophia came home and said that she had seen Dana at the ceremony, and that Dana was standing beside Jordaine's son, Moore. At that time, Michael thought Sophia was drunk.

Ever since Dana's incident, the Winstons had not revealed her whereabouts. Even Harry had not answered Michael when he asked him, and so Michael actually thought Dana had died. But she turned out to be alive!

In other words, the person whom Sophia suspected as Dana that night was indeed her. Is her current condition so abject that she needs to work under Moore? That's impossible! She must have approached Moore as an undercover agent.

Lost in thought, Michael reckoned Dana had actually perceived something but remained silent. It seemed like she had gotten back together with Lucy again and was helping Lucy to deal with Jordan, and the first step of her plan was to lurk around Moore.

Moore was one of the most capable sons whom Jordan loved the most. As such, Moore and his mother must have participated in many schemes of Jordan. For instance, Jordaine must have contributed to stealing Cooper's frozen sperm.

Just as Michael's thoughts were running wild, Dana stood up and said, "My bladder is having some issue and I've been urinating quite frequently."

With that, she swayed to the nearby bushes to pee. It was already midnight anyway and there was barely anyone in this remote area. A few drunkards too had come out from the bar to pee in the bushes. That explained the extraordinarily lush greenery outside the bars.

Meanwhile, Michael was roasting Dana inwardly. How can a girl just pull down her pants and pee by the roadside?

He secretly peeked at her, wondering if she would squat down. However, little did he expect to see Dana unzipping her pants and pulling out a penis. Instantly, Michael was knocked down with a feather as he stared at the huge pecker with his eyes wide open.

What a long, thick, scary d*ck!

My Dreamy Old Husband Chapter 1410

Dana's masculine mien was revealed the moment he showed his penis. The drunkards who were peeking at him in a teasing manner thinking he looked rather feminine, were instantly stunned that they even peed on their pants.

Oh my goodness, this is horrifying! We shouldn't have judged the book by its cover! This man has such a sweet appearance yet his d*ck is so freaking huge! No girls would be able to handle this!

Scared out of their wits, the drunkards had all run off the next second.

In fact, any other guys would be too embarrassed to take off their pants and show their penis in front of Dana.

Dana realized that Michael was still staring at him after he had finished peeing, and so he turned around and displayed his penis to Michael. "Surprise! It's so awesome and powerful, isn't it? I underwent the operation overseas. Though it's not an original one, it's quite handy to use," Dana exclaimed proudly.

Rendered speechless, Michael nodded silently as he felt sorry for his ex-girlfriend.

Well, it's indeed awesome and powerful... Michael thought to himself as he was green with envy.

Moments later, Sophia and Lucy walked out from the bar feeling tipsy. Meanwhile, Dana had already gone back to the car and so Sophia had not met him.

At that instance, Michael stared at Lucy with a totally different look.

A few days had passed, yet Michael still had not recovered from the shock of the tremendous penis.

Oh my Lord!

On the other hand, Quinton became aware of Dana's huge artificial penis and had specially visited Dana to take a look at it. Then he immediately went to borrow money from Michael and had even accepted the task to help Sophia kill Tiffany's child.

It seemed like Quinton wanted to save some money to get one too.

Before Michael could recover from Dana's episode, he received another shocking news—Tiffany miscarried!

This was extremely great news to Sophia.

However, it was the total opposite to Quinton. Currently, he was as poor as a church mouse. As a tutor in a university, he had yet to pass his probation and was barely scraping by with his modest salary. Yet, he would need millions to instal a gear like Dana's, and he even had to look for a man-made penis on his own.

While Michael refused to lend him money, he could not take on other assassination tasks too lest Michael rake him over the coals. Just as he was elated to receive Sophia's assignment, the target victim had already miscarried even before Sophia paid him his commission.

Sigh.

Upon receiving the news, Sophia quickly rushed to the hospital to check the scene out. According to her surface understanding of Tiffany, the woman might have deliberately put up a bluff to pretend to miscarry. Then, she would show up with her newborn child a few months later after Sophia had let down her guard, and Cooper would suddenly have another child again.

"Ouch—"

Tiffany's miserable wail emerged from the ward. Meanwhile, Sophia disguised herself as a nurse and sneaked into the emergency room.

There was blood all over Tiffany's body and her bleeding had not stopped ever since she was pushed into the emergency room. There were blood stains everywhere—the floor, the operating table, and even the doctor's scrubs.

Still, Sophia thought the scene could have been faked, so she walked up to Tiffany and lifted her patient gown to take a look while the other staff were in a chaos.

Sure enough, Tiffany was bleeding.

Lying on the operation table, she wailed and screamed in despair as her blood-stained hand clung tightly onto the doctor's white coat.

"Please save my children! Please!"

"Cooper, save my children!"

At last, her energy was depleted as her hands hung down weakly, thereafter she went into a coma as a result of excessive bleeding.

The intense operation was still ongoing. Sophia looked at Tiffany apathetically as the latter miscarried. Amidst the mixture of blood and water, Sophia could see two fetuses which were almost fully formed being extracted from Tiffany's body; it was a pair of twins.

Sophia was not the one who caused the miscarriage this time because all her previous plans did not work out. According to the doctor, the miscarriage was due to Tiffany's weak health status. She had merely taken a short walk and miscarried. After all, she was in her forties and it was strenuous to bear a child at that age.

After this miscarriage, Tiffany would not be able to conceive a child anymore.

In fact, her pregnancy would have failed anyway, and the risk had become even higher because she was having a pair of twins. She might even lose her life.

Meanwhile, Cooper was waiting anxiously outside the operating room. He was caught between feeling depressed and relieved upon knowing Tiffany had lost her children.

On the other hand, Sophia had sneaked out from the ward and went back home. Lying on the bed, her mind was filled with the image of the fetuses extracted from Tiffany's body and Tiffany's dreadful wail.

Filled with complicated, indescribable emotions, Sophia felt as if she was the culprit even though she wasn't the one who had caused the miscarriage.

Later, Michael came back home to find Sophia lying on the bed dressed in a nurse uniform. He quickly closed the door and rubbed his hands as he approached Sophia excitedly.

We've been married for so long, yet this woman is still seducing me in uniforms!

For the next few days, the scene of Tiffany's miscarriage kept lingering in Sophia's mind while Michael was constantly haunted by the thought of Dana's huge penis.

Struggling with their own issues, none of them had realized that Cooper had been staying out quite often.

Upon her miscarriage, Tiffany seemed to have lost her will to live. She was extremely depressed and didn't have much appetite. Because of that, Cooper had attempted to counsel her several times and even stayed by her side at the hospital for a few days.

Besides, he had promised to protect Tiffany and help her retrieve her power in the Adams Family after she had fully recovered.

Indeed, she had supported him greatly when he first entered the Michel Family, and so he couldn't turn his back on her at this moment.

Though Tiffany had miscarried, Cooper still cared for Tiffany and often came home late, which annoyed Sophia.

However, at the same time, Sophia was distressed whenever she was reminded of the dead fetuses and Tiffany's miserable cry on the operating table.

For that reason, Sophia had abstained from meat in her diet for several days, and the whole family had followed suit.

Actually, Quinton was the most distressed person of all. After seeing Dana's artificial penis, he had been desperately wanting to get one of those powerful 'weapons' which everyone else would marvel at. But alas, Michael refused to lend him money, nor did Sophia entertain him as she was fasting those few days.

Cooper and Linus were loaded, but Quinton was too embarrassed to go to them.

While Theo was penniless, Celine was too feeble-minded to manage money, so Justin was the one holding the purse strings. He had been holding a grudge against Quinton ever since Quinton caused his wife to lose her sound mind. Not only was he unwilling to lend money to Quinton, he even wished to beat him up. As such, Quinton could only turn to Nate in the end.

Though Nate was only fifteen years old, he already had a net worth of over ten million. Besides the money given by his family and relatives during festival celebrations, he himself had earned some money, and Justin too had given him some shares in the company. As such, Nate actually had a great deal of savings and was rich.

He had gladly agreed to Quinton's request with one condition, which was that Quinton had to help him teach the green-eyed goblin a lesson and snatch back Carmen's three apricot seeds.

The three apricot seeds were like three needles pricking Michael and Nate, causing them affliction. So, they had to take the seeds back!

Sure enough, Quinton readily agreed.

Actually, Quinton was a traditional person. Even eunuchs in the ancient times would bring along their most precious belongings before they died. Quinton had lost his most precious belonging ever since Stanley shot it down, and he desperately wanted to get a penis back so that he wouldn't have to die with a physical defect.

Hence, every time when Bailey came to play sports at Bayside University, Nate would call Quinton over to bully him together.

Funnily enough, not only did they fail to snatch back the three apricot seeds, but Quinton had even become Bailey's personal bodyguard after a few encounters.