

Life at The Top – Chapter 1444

What a joke! Colossal Investments was the world's largest investment bank.

“Y-You are crazy!” Celine said in shock.

Jasper did not feel proud at all.

He had memories from his past life. Even if he was a pig, he would dare to mortgage himself in the slaughterhouse to easily make this money. It was just a matter of the size of one's balls and the size of capital that could be leveraged.

“The 8.5 billion US Dollars is enough for the whole of Wall Street to be jealous. I now know why the three investment banks and even the Federal Reserve want to target you now.” Celine sighed.

“What about Colossal's attitude regarding this matter?” Jasper asked.

Celine shook her head and said, “You have to know that in the eyes of capitalists, there are only interests. Since you obviously cannot show them any hope of winning in this case, Colossal Investments may be inclined to side with the Federal Reserve.”

“When that happens, it will not only be Colossal, other investment banks and financial institutions in the United States will come to attack you.”

Jasper sneered.

“During this financial crisis, the retail investors in the United States were hit the hardest, followed by these financial institutions and investment banks that had heavily invested in the United States stock market.”

“They suffered heavy losses and naturally want to make it back. Therefore, it would be right up their alley if they destroy me and blame the economic system of the country for it after.”

Celine said, “It’s good that you understand this truth. Now, what are you going to do?”

“Hmm, by the way, are you able to withdraw all the funds within three days?”

Celine’s sudden question stunned Jasper.

Then, he smiled and said, “Based on what you just said, are you saying that you can hold down the entire Federal Reserve for three days?”

Celine gritted her teeth. "My family has a certain strength in the northern part of the United States. I can persuade my family and make them come forward to lobby the presidium of the Federal Reserve."

"I can even communicate with some veteran congressmen if necessary, but you can't take too long. If you can withdraw everything within three days, I will find a way to make it happen."

Jasper was really surprised this time.

The ability to hold down the entire Federal Reserve for three days was impossible even for the Laws, let alone himself. It seemed that the status of Celine's family in the United States was no lower than that of the Laws in Harbor City.

However, Jasper shook his head at the proposal.

"No..."

Celine was stunned. "Is three days not enough?"

"It's not that three days are not enough, but I don't plan to withdraw."

Jasper's expression calmed down as he continued, "The Federal Reserve wants to work with Wall Street to take action. Their actions won't be affected regardless of whether I withdraw or not. If I am still there, they will take care of me first, but if I run away, who will they vent their anger on? Who will they seek out to bear their losses?"

Celine frowned and said nothing.

Jasper proactively continued, "They will look for Somer."

"The domestic economy has just begun to develop, and we can't afford such a heavy blow." Jasper's tone was calm.

Celine said angrily, "So you're going to paint yourself as a target? Is your meaningless sacrifice necessary? Will anyone even be grateful toward you?"

"Jasper, I always thought you were a sane person. I didn't expect you to go mad!"