Alice searched Joshua's hotel room for an hour and even sifted through every single piece of paper in his briefcase, but still could not find anything.

The divorce agreement papers seemingly vanished into thin air without even a single trace.

An hour later, she heard someone knock on the door, followed by Lucas' low voice. "Sir, it's time to go to Larson Group for your meeting."

"Sir?" After waiting for a long time but heard no response, Lucas frowned and fished out the backup keys in his pocket. Then, he shoved it in the keyhole, about to open the door.

Alice immediately panicked when she heard the sound of keys jangling outside and exclaimed, " Don't come in! Joshua and I are in the room together! "

Lucas immediately stopped in his tracks. "Ma'am, it's time for Sir to attend his meeting. Everyone from Larson Group is waiting for him."

Alice frantically put everything back in their place. " Alright! " With that, she quickly walked over to Joshua and rocked him awake, calling his name in a gentle voice, "Joshua? Joshua? Why did you fall asleep?"

It took a while for Joshua to wake up, slowly opening his eyes at last. "What happened?"

Alice gave him a faint smile. "It's time for your meeting at Larson Group. Lucas has been waiting for you for a long time now."

Joshua yawned and immediately stood up, grabbing his jacket before he strode out the door.

Seeing how Joshua did not seem suspicious, Alice sighed in relief and slumped onto the sofa.

Outside the hotel room.

Joshua strolled into the elevator, still clutching his jacket. As soon as the elevator doors closed, he narrowed his eyes and said, "Lucas, prepare some medicine for me."

Lucas froze. "What medicine?" "Alice is trying to drug me."

Lucas' eyes widened upon hearing this. "Why would Ma'am want to drug you?"

"I don't know yet." Joshua stared straight in front of him with a steely gaze. "From its effects, I'm guessing that it's a kind of sedative. Prepare some antidotes for me."

Joshua was curious to see what Alice was up to, seeing that she had come all the way to Sea City just to drug him...

"Oh, and also..." Joshua furrowed his brows as he watched the numbers above the elevator door decrease. "Help me track down all the girls in Sea City that are the same age as Gwen and played 'Lost' the same time she did."

As soon as she got back to her hotel, Luna fell into a deep slumber, not bothering to eat even as the sun began to set.

When evening rolled around, she heard someone knock on her room door.

Luna crawled out of bed in a daze and asked, "Who is it?"

"It's me..." Gwen's timid voice rang out from the other side of the door. "Luna, are you still angry at me? Can you let me in?"

The confused Luna opened the door.

Gwen was in her wheelchair, and the nurse from the hospital stood behind her.

"Luna. " Gwen's face was a little red, and tears still clung on the edge of her eyes. "I thought you wouldn't want to see me again..."

Luna felt a little puzzled by this. She let out a yawn and opened the door wider so Gwen could enter the room.

As soon as she closed the room door, Luna turned around and disappeared into the bathroom to wash her face.

Once she wiped her face dry, she asked, " Why would I be angry at you?"

Gwen's jaw dropped open. "But... I called and texted you so many times in the afternoon, and you didn't reply to me at all... I had no choice but to ask Luke for permission to come out and visit you with a nurse."

Luna paused before she glanced at her phone on the nightstand. There were more than ten missed calls and messages.

Luna put her towel back in the bathroom and gave Gwen a sheepish smile. "I was sleeping so soundly that I didn't hear my phone at all."

Gwen pursed her lip and let out a sigh. "So...you're not mad at me for what happened today, right?"

Gwen knew fully well that the wedding she was invited to was Ben and Clover's.

She had been in love with Ben for so long that she had to see him marrying another woman with her own eyes to give up and move on from him.

However, Luke banned her from attending the wedding altogether, refusing to let her go in fear she would feel humiliated.

Therefore, she had no choice but to ask Luna to go on her behalf.

Luna shrugged. "I'm fine with it."

Gwen lowered her head and said, "Luna, sometimes I really admire you... You moved on from Joshua entirely, and even though you spend a lot of time with him now, you can still maintain indifference..."

She sighed and lifted her head to gaze at Luna. "Don't you even feel agitated whenever you look at Joshua? Don't you feel like getting back together with him?"

Luna shrugged again. "Why would I feel agitated? Why would I want to get back together with him?"

She still remembered how Joshua plotted to kill her.

No one understood her because none of them had ever gone through the pain that she had. If one had experienced such heartbreak and anguish like hers, they would know why she was able to forget about that man entirely.

"But..." Gwen pursed her lips. "Sometimes, when I see you looking at Joshua, I can tell that you still love him. You—"

"You must've been mistaken," Luna interjected coldly. "Every time I think of him, I feel like vomiting."

As soon as she said this, she felt her stomach churn, as if it had somehow sensed what she had said.

Luna felt nauseated, and all of a sudden, a bitter taste arose in her mouth.

She could not even say another word and instead stormed toward the bathroom. The next second, she was already holding onto the toilet bowl, retching. She had not eaten anything the whole day, thus nothing came out even though she tried to vomit.

All that, yet she could still feel her stomach turning.

Gwen pursed her lips when she heard Luna retching in the bathroom and wheeled herself over to the bathroom door. "Luna, are you...pregnant?"

Pregnant.

Luna felt as though a grenade had exploded in the back of her mind.

Her hands that gripped the rim of the toilet bowl started to tremble. "Could it... Could it be?"

She had longed to get pregnant and give birth to Joshua's child so she could save Nigel.

The symptoms she was experiencing did seem a lot like morning sickness.

As soon as Gwen said that, Luna felt her blood rushing to her head. In the morning, she still felt dejected, trying to find other ways to get close to Joshua, but then...

This was exceptionally good news.

"You seem like you're having morning sickness." There was a hint of excitement in Gwen's eyes. "Why don't you come with me to the hospital now and get it checked?" Then, she paused and fixated her gaze on Luna. "The baby belongs to Joshua, right?"

Luna pursed her lips slightly and nodded.

She still was not certain if she was pregnant yet, but if she was... It was Joshua's, no doubt.

"That's great news! " Gwen seemed ecstatic to hear that. "Come on now, let's not waste any more time. Get ready, and we'll go to the hospital right now, shall we? If you're really pregnant, then Nigel can be saved! "

Luna, too, felt overjoyed by this sudden news. She shot up and quickly changed into a fresh set of clothes before leaving the hotel room, pushing Gwen's wheelchair in front of her.

Just as they were waiting for the elevator, the doors slid open, and out strode Joshua.

"Are you going out?" He glanced at Luna, then at Gwen. "It seems that I came at the wrong time."

He handed Luna the document that he was holding and grabbed hold of Gwen's wheelchair. "Where are you guys going? I'll give you a ride."

"We're...going to the hospital." Gwen turned around and glanced at Luna. "Luna's sending me back to the hospital..."

Joshua nodded and strode into the elevator, pushing Gwen along in front of him as he lifted his head to glance at Luna. "This is the information that the supplier in Sea City gave me. I think there's something wrong with the data, so I wanted you to have a look at it."

Luna frowned and followed the two of them, skimming through the document Joshua had handed her.

Joshua was right. According to this document, the mineral content within the gemstones did not match up with the previous data.

Luna furrowed her brows, took out her phone, and started calculating the financial losses these discrepancies would cost the company. Then, she asked coldly, "Is this the only supplier list with problems? What about the previous ones?"

"Lucas is still comparing them. I don't think we should collaborate with this vendor again in the future, and I want to sue them for the losses that have incurred."

"Yes, I agree."

Just as they were engrossed in their discussion, the elevator stopped at the first floor, giving a lurch.

Luna was too focused on their conversation that she did not notice the elevator had arrived at their destination. When the elevator jolted violently to a halt, she could not help retching again.

She immediately grabbed hold of Joshua's arm for support.

Seeing that she did not look well, Joshua gripped her arm and asked, "Are you not feeling well?"

This was the second time in a day he saw her vomiting.

"We're headed to the hospital, anyway. We can get you checked by a doctor."

Luna's entire body stiffened at his words. She tried to suppress the nauseous feeling in her stomach and stood straight, smiling at Joshua. "There's no need. It's nothing to worry about."

Just as she spoke, however, her stomach gave another heave. This time, her gags were so intense that she almost stumbled and fell. Fortunately, Joshua caught her just in time.

He frowned, looking down at the pale-faced woman in his arms. "Nothing to worry about, you say?"

With that, he hoisted Luna into his arms and strode out of the elevator, leaving the speechless Gwen — who was baffled at the sudden change—behind.

She slowly wheeled herself out of the elevator, but due to her weak strength, she did not manage to get far before her entire body broke out in a sweat.

She exhaled before she continued to wheel herself toward the hotel lobby.

Just as she was about to stop and regain her strength, a stern voice rang out from behind her, "I insisted on sending some of my men to follow you, but you refused."

At the same time, Gwen felt someone grabbing her wheelchair handles. Luke pushed her toward the lobby with an air of indifference, scolding her albeit gently, "When are you ever going to listen to me?"

Gwen pouted slightly, then extended a finger to scratch the armrest somewhat sheepishly. "I'm sorry Joshua carried Luna into his car and ordered, "Lucas, let's go."

Joshua's actions were so brisk that Luna did not even have time to react. By the time she finally came to, Lucas had already started the engine.

She furrowed her brows and said frantically, “

Where’s Gwen?”

Suddenly, Joshua’s phone chimed with a message. It was from Luke. (What a simp.)

Joshua let out a small sigh and answered, “She’s fine. She’s with Luke.”

Luna shot him a somewhat exasperated glare, then snuck a glance through the rearview mirror. When she caught sight of Luke wheeling Gwen out of the hotel entrance, she felt as though a weight had been lifted off her shoulders.

She frowned and glanced at Joshua. “I already told you I’m fine.”

Joshua’s gaze was cold and hard. “That’s up to the doctors to decide, not you. Lucas, step on it.”

Luna gripped the hem of her shirt tightly.

Although she was not certain if she was pregnant yet, what if she really was? What would Joshua think if he found out that she got pregnant with his child?

Luna gritted her teeth.

Although Joshua was unfaithful, he was still a responsible father. Even though he was not fond of Luna Gibson, he still convinced himself to treat Alice well, thinking that she was Luna Gibson, the mother of his two children.

If he found out that Luna had gotten pregnant with his child, would he...

Luna did not even dare to imagine what would happen.

She watched the scenery outside the window pass by and felt inexplicably anxious and agitated.

She could not let Joshua know about the baby...

Luna knew she had no way of convincing Joshua she was fine and that she did not have to go to the hospital. On the contrary, he might even grow suspicious if she continued to persuade him.

However, she did not dare jump out of the car for fear of hurting the fetus inside her...

Luna let out an exhale and closed her eyes. She had no choice but to take things as they came.

The car soon arrived at the hospital.

Joshua got out of the car and quickly dashed over to Luna's side. As soon as he opened her door, he put his arms around her and carried her out of her seat.

Luna let out a shriek when she felt her body suspend in mid-air. She lifted her head to gaze at Joshua, frowning. "I can walk by myself."

"Really? Or are you going to retch so hard again that you almost fell, like in the elevator? If you don't care about your own body, I care. " With that, he strode into the hospital, carrying Luna in his arms.

Luna felt a little dazed. Without even thinking twice, she immediately blurted, "What did you just say? "

Joshua furrowed his brows. "If you don't care about your own body, I care."

He then seemed to realize something was wrong, as he awkwardly coughed and added, "You're one of my most important employees ; it's only natural your health is of utmost importance."

He gently placed her down on a bed in one of the hospital's consultation rooms as he said, "She's been retching a lot the whole day. I'm concerned it might be stomach problems," he told the doctor.

The doctor nodded and scribbled something on his prescription notes. Then, she turned to look at Joshua. "Any other symptoms besides retching?"

"There's a lot more, " Luna interjected from her spot on the hospital bed.

The doctor frowned and turned around to gaze at her. "Tell me about them."

Luna let out an exhale and lifted her head to glance at Joshua. "Can you excuse us? I...want to talk to the doctor alone."

Joshua furrowed his brows when he heard this, and confusion flashed through his eyes. "What's there to talk about that I'm not allowed to hear?"

He was Luna's immediate superior and the one who had sent her to the hospital to get checked. Why did she want to talk to the doctor in private? What other symptoms could she possibly have to hide from him?

She had been reluctant to see the doctor ever since they got into the car, and she was unwilling to let him know the rest of her symptoms...

What was she trying to hide?

The doctor could tell that Luna was uncomfortable, so she smiled. "This is doctor-patient confidentiality." She shoved Joshua out of the room and said, "Don't worry, I'll take good care of her. "

Having been forced out of the room against his will, Joshua stared at the closed door before him and narrowed his eyes. Meanwhile, the doctor leaned against the door impassively and swept a deadpan glance across Luna. "You're pregnant, right? And the baby belongs to the man that I just kicked out, yes?"

Luna paused, then let out a sigh and glanced at the doctor. "I'm not sure yet. It's just a suspicion."

"Are you planning to abort the fetus if you're pregnant?"

Luna shook her head. "I want to...give birth to it without him knowing."

The doctor nodded, then scribbled something else on her notes, her brows furrowed. "So I take it that you want to do a blood test and test your hormone levels? If you don't want him to find out, I suggest we do some other checkups just to throw him off the scent."

Luna nodded and smiled at the doctor before her. "

Thank you."

The doctor beamed at her. "It's no big deal." Then, she glanced at Luna and asked, "Are you friends with Gwen Larson?"

Luna froze, then nodded. "Yes, I am."

"You two are an interesting pair. One can't afford to have an abortion but still insists on it, and the other can but chooses to keep the baby instead. It'd be perfect if you two could switch." The doctor tore the prescription note out and could not help adding, " She's a lucky woman to have someone like Luke Jones be at her beck and call all day.”

Luna gave her a bitter smile and took the prescription note from her. “She’s had it rough, too.”

“All women have it rough, ” the doctor said with a wink before leaving the room.

A few moments later, a nurse entered the room to draw Luna’s blood and conduct a series of tests.

It did not take long for the blood test results to come out. When the nurse finished the final body checkup, she had already received the results and handed Luna the lab report.

Luna took the report from her and, seeing that no one was around, snuck into the bathroom to have a look.

Luna sat down on the toilet bowl in one of the cubicles and flipped open the report.

She was pregnant.

The blood test showed that her hormone levels were indicative of early stages of pregnancy. According to the hormonal assay, this fetus...was almost three months old now.

Luna’s hand that held the report started to tremble at what she read.

She recalled the last time she had been with Joshua, which was when they were staying in the hotel next to the amusement park.

The timing matched up!

It turned out that she had gotten knocked up at that time.

Surprise, euphoria, and relief filled Luna's heart. She was so delighted by this news that she could not stop herself from crying tears of joy.

Finally... She could finally cure Nigel! Nigel was saved!

Luna could not stop her tears from falling as soon as she thought of her son she had not seen in a long time.

She would never have left him alone if it were not for the fact that she had to get pregnant with Joshua's child to cure Nigel.

Even though he was mature and wise beyond his age, Nigel was still a six-year-old child...

This was good news. She was pregnant.

Everything finally came to an end.

Luna could finally get away from Joshua and Alice the moment everything that happened to Gwen blew over.

Fortunately, Theo was with Neil and Nellie. When she was ready to leave, she could ask Malcolm's men to contact Theo so he could bring her two children home.

In the future, when Nigel had recovered, the four of them... No, the five of them could live happily ever after.

Luna would do everything in her power to give this new baby a good home, considering it had saved its eldest brother.

Still sitting on the toilet bowl, Luna immediately took out her phone. She wanted to call her two children, but Luna guessed they were probably already asleep, considering the time difference.

She wanted to call Anne to tell her this good news, but she did not want to intrude on her, in case she was on a date with John.

Luna contemplated for a while, then finally decided to share this good news with Gwen. She let out an exhale and walked out of the bathroom.

Because she had left her backpack and jacket in the consultation room, Luna had to go back to retrieve them.

Before the nurse had come in to conduct the tests, Joshua was still standing outside the room, talking on his phone.

Half an hour later, by the time she finished doing all the necessary checkups, Joshua was nowhere to be found.

The only person left standing outside the room was Lucas.
