Chapter 201

Chapter 201 Kill Her A week later, on the first day of the cruise tour As the rays of sunlight burst through the morning clouds, a massive cruise ship docked at York Sea. "Get up!" At the bottom floor of the ship, the logistics manager in uniform knocked on the doors one by one and shouted in a round, and clear voice. "Don't you know what time it is?! Get the hell up! There's a lot of cleaning to do! The guests will board the ship in three hours!"

Before he could knock on the last room in the corner, the door opened from the inside. Alice stood at the door. She was neatly dressed, wearing a mask and smiling at the manager. "Good morning, sir. I've brought some home specialties for you to try. Would you like to have a taste?"

I'll be very busy over the next three days after the guests board the ship. You should have some before you start working." Alice greeted him. Although Alice's eyes were not as dazzling as Rachel's, the manager was enthralled by them when he gazed at her. He took the lunch box from her hand and snorted. "Sure, if you insist. Hurry up and get to work now." The manager then turned around and walked away. Alice's eyes twinkled with delight.

She immediately stopped him and said, "Sir, how about you open it now and have a taste right away? If you fancy the taste, I can give you a second serving." The manager held up the lunch box in his hand and weighed it. Then, he looked at Alice in confusion. He didn't pay attention to it just now, but he finally realized that the box was light and it felt like there was nothing inside. He paused for a moment and looked around him.

Chapter 202 No One Can Replace Her

Ten minutes later, they went aboard the ship. Victor arranged a suite next to his for Rachel. It had one bedroom and a living room. Afraid that she would escape, Victor also brought a maid to look after her. The maid would stay in the living room to guard Rachel while she was resting. Rachel didn't oppose.

When Rachel came out of the bathroom, she caught the maid trying to open her suitcase. "What are you doing?" she asked, frowning. The maid who was startled by her sudden question quickly stood up and faced her. "Unpacking your things for you, Miss Bennet," she explained. As if observing her, Rachel looked at her up and down.

Then, she pulled the suitcase to her side and told the maid indifferently, "I don't like other people touching my things. Leave it to me. I can manage." "Then... Miss Bennet, what can I do for you? Do you need anything?" The maid seemed overly obedient. It was because she knew how much Victor cared about Rachel.

The maid thought if she made her happy, she would have a raise. Moreover, she heard that Rachel had been very kind to her former maid, Abby. Everyone said that she treated that maid like her own sister. But now, Abby was dead. As a new maid, she needed to win Rachel's favor so she would make her stay.

Chapter 203 Fireworks (Part One)

After the video call with Quintin, Rachel went to bed. By the time she woke up, the ship had already departed from Apliaria. Suddenly, she heard a knock on the door. "Miss Bennet, are you awake?" the maid asked cautiously from the other side of the door. Rachel got up from bed and opened the door.

The moment she opened the door, she was surprised to see Victor on the sofa reading a document. The maid whispered to her, "Miss Bennet, Mr. Sullivan knew you were asleep, so he didn't wake you up. He's been waiting out here for over an hour."

The way she spoke made it sound like it was a great honor for Rachel that Victor was waiting for her. Rachel shot her a cold glance. 'An honor? I don't even want this honor. Anyone can take it for free if they want it,' she remarked inwardly. "Ivan." Victor closed the file. "Let them serve the dishes." "Yes, sir."

Ivan nodded before he left the room to inform the waiters to serve the dishes. Rachel frowned at Victor, uncertain of what he was trying to do. "Are you going to have lunch here?" she asked. "It's lunch time, isn't it? If you don't want to eat here, ~~we~~ we can go to a restaurant," Victor said, staring into her eyes. Clearly, there was nothing Rachel could do to refuse his offer. After a brief pause, she replied, "Let's just eat here."

Victor glanced at the maid and the latter immediately understood what he meant. "Miss Bennet, I'll go see if there's anything I can do to help with the food." Having said that, she left the room. Once more, the room fell into silence. Moments later, Victor said, "I was told that there will be a fireworks display at half past eight on the ship tonight." Rachel was stunned for a moment. "Huh?" she asked, looking at him in confusion.

"If you're bored staying in the room, we can go to the deck and watch the fireworks display in the evening," Victor replied after a brief silence. "Sure," Rachel replied indifferently. Her response disappointed him and put a frown on his face.

The maid happily left the room and headed straight to the deck. As soon as she left, Rachel walked out of the room. She walked towards the stairs and tapped the earpiece in her left ear with her finger. She heard Quintin's voice in her ear. "Boss, head to basement one and go left. The fifth room is Alice's." Rachel hummed her acknowledgment. Quintin was looking at two red dots flashing on the digital blueprint of the entire ship on his tablet.

One indicated Rachel, and the other was Alice. After hesitating for a while, he said, "Boss, you have to be very careful." "Quintin, I didn't know you were such a talkative person," Rachel said as a smile curved her lips. Quintin replied, "I'm just worried..." "Don't worry. I won't let Alice see me before the plan is in action," Rachel tried to comfort Quintin, knowing what he was worried about. "Boss, you don't have to take matters into your own hands.

You only have to ask me to do it." "No! I told you that I'll avenge Abby," Rachel said firmly. By now, she had reached the basement. Quintin pursed his lips and wanted to argue, but he kept quiet when he saw the distance between the two red dots decrease on his tablet. He didn't want to say anything because he was afraid he would distract Rachel. Rachel reached the fifth room. Once again, Quintin's voice came over the earpiece.

"Boss, you only need to stick that thing on the doorknob. The moment Alice touches it to open the door, her hand will get contaminated with the powder." Rachel took out a small round packet from her pocket. Her eyes darkened, and she tore open the wrapper and stuck what was inside on the doorknob. Then, she proceeded to take a medicine bottle from her pocket and swallowed one pill.

Chapter 206 Worse Than Death

Rachel didn’t stay on the balcony for too long. Once the maid came out of the bathroom, she went to take a shower, As she soaked herself in the bathtub, she closed her eyes and rested. All of a sudden, her phone buzzed.

She raised her head, glancing at her phone. She noticed that a message had popped up on the screen. It was from Roger. “I heard that you’re on the cruise. Is it true?” Rachel clicked on the dialog box and saw that he had been sending her message almost every day for the past few days. However, she hadn’t checked the app lately, so she hadn’t noticed it.

She then scrolled up and saw every message that Roger had sent her. The first one he sent was after she got hospitalized.

But before that one, there were several removed messages. He wrote, "Rachel, are you okay?" Rachel could feel just how concerned he was for her.

The second to last of his messages was sent to her just yesterday. "Rachel, I went back to our school this morning and saw our teacher. She's about to retire in less than two months. She told me that she's been thinking about you. Do you want to grab lunch with her together some time?"

In another room, Roger's eyes were locked on his chat box with Rachel. Meanwhile, Clara had just finished washing the fruit and placed it on the table. Seeing that Roger was lost in thought, she wanted to speak to him and convince him to give up, but she couldn't. It was hard to see her brother disappointed. "Roger, stop staring at your phone and have some fruit," Clara said. "I'll eat later." Roger still locked his eyes on his phone.

Chapter 207 Please Don't Leave Me

It was then that Rachel saw the person standing outside the shower. It wasn't the maid, it was Victor! "What are you doing..."

Before she could even finish her sentence, Victor grabbed her wrist and pulled her into his arms.

The faint smell of red wine wafted into her nose.

Feeling uncomfortable because of the smell, Rachel struggled to break free from his arms. "Did you drink?" "I did."

Victor's Adam's apple bobbed up and down. He wrapped his arms around her waist, resting his jaw on her shoulder. Then, he soaked in the fragrance of her body. Rachel was always so aromatic, which was probably the scent of her body wash. And every time she took a shower, the fragrance was even more aromatic.

Almost instinctively, her body tensed up. Rachel tried to reject him. "What are you trying to pull, Victor?" "I'm not drunk." All of a sudden, Victor looked at Rachel's delicate face. His Adam's apple was bobbing up and down repeatedly. "I only drank a little." 1 Rachel pursed her lips. Right now, he didn't look as obnoxious and overbearing as he usually was, and his ears were red. Clearly, he drank more than just a little.

Chapter 208 Get Remarried

Victor slowly blinked his eyes open. The alcohol kicked in and his vision was blurry, His voice was soft as if he were talking to himself inside his dream. Rachel was taken aback, and she could feel Victor holding her tighter than before. He would usually say things in a domineering and arrogant tone. But this time, it sounded like he was whispering softly, as if almost begging. For a moment, Rachel thought that it was just her imagination.

But soon, she sneered. Whether it was true or not, it didn't matter to her anymore. His pleading had no effect on her. She desperately wished she could kill Victor to avenge Abby's death. She desperately wanted to give her justice for everything Abby had gone through. It was ridiculous, but it wasn't funny.

Seeing that Rachel was still not answering him even after waiting for a long time, Victor's eyes started to grow dim. He wanted to apologize to Rachel as soon as she came out of the operating room, but he didn't have the courage to do so. He had no idea what was bothering him. Victor wanted to tell her that she would never be allowed to leave or escape. He liked to think that he could keep her for as long as he wanted.

He didn't care even if she'd despise him even more. But there was a lingering fear in his heart. He was only tipsy, not drunk. The alcohol gave him a small push and now had the guts to come to her room and finally tell her. Victor's heart ached seeing how Rachel was keen on driving him away, saying that she was tired and wanted to get some rest. His heart ached all over and he only felt a little better when he held her in his arms.

Chapter 209 Everything

Rachel was too stunned to react. Without waiting for her answer, Victor said, "Have a good day." Then, he turned around and left. The maid was shocked by Victor's declaration. "Miss Bennet, did Mr. Sullivan say he wanted to remarry you? He did, didn't he? Did I hear it wrong?" It was only then did Rachel come back to her senses. She cast an indifferent glance at the maid without saying anything. "Miss Bennet, this is great! You are going to remarry Mr. Sullivan!

No, no, I shouldn't have called you Miss Bennet. I should call you Mrs. Sullivan." "I'm tired, I want to go back to sleep. If there's nothing important, don't wake me up." Unlike the maid who almost jumped in joy, Rachel remained expressionless. The maid noticed this. The smile on her face gradually disappeared.

She asked hesitantly, "Miss Bennet... Don't you want to remarry Mr. Sullivan?" "Why makes you think that?" Rachel asked. "It's just you don't look very happy..." "You're thinking too much," said Rachel, still void of emotions.

After saying that, she walked towards her bedroom, leaving the maid dumbfounded. 'Am I really just overthinking? But... Miss Bennet seemed to have a sarcastic sneer on her face when Mr. Sullivan said he would remarry her. Was that just an imagination?' the maid thought. "Please don't leave me."

"Let's get remarried after the cruise tour." Even in her dreams, Victor's words followed Rachel. Therefore, she couldn't sleep peacefully. Rachel opened her eyes. She checked her phone and found that it was only nine o'clock in the morning. She had only slept for less than half an hour. The sound of waves rang in her ears. Rachel couldn't go back to sleep, so she sat up, touching her belly. She still had two days to spend aboard. When Victor said he wanted to remarry her, Rachel couldn't help but smile. But it was a cold

Hearing the sound, both Rachel and Roger looked over at the water instinctively. They saw a flock of dolphins in the sea, and heard the unique sounds that could only come from them. Rachel was fascinated by these dolphins. "I never thought I would see dolphins here," she murmured in awe.

She leaned against the railing and stretched out her hand, as if trying to touch them. The dolphins splashed water as they swam, and some drops fell on the back of her hand. It was chilly, but she smiled. "An elder once told me that good things will happen to you when you meet dolphins," Roger said with a smile.

"Everything will be okay, Rachel." Rachel withdrew her hand and smiled. But her eyes remained focused on the lovely dolphins. They stayed that way for some time without saying anything. She knew that Roger was trying to comfort her and make her happy. of course, the smile on her face and how peaceful she looked at the moment relieved him.

Though his gaze remained on her, his thoughts were far away. And just like that, he asked her sincerely, "Rachel, are you really happy with him?" He had wanted to ask her this question for a long time. It had been buried in his heart for two long years. He had wanted to ask her this two years ago when Rachel married Victor.
