Chapter 1886

Inside Theo's painting, a graceful and scholarly-looking woman stood amid a field of yellow flowers.

Both Theo and Bonnie lifted their heads as soon as Luna walked in.

"You're back."

"Yes, I am." Luna sat on the edge of the bed and glanced at Theo's drawing. "This woman looks a little familiar."

Theo let out a somewhat weak chuckle. "Roanne got in touch with me this morning, and she wanted me to paint a picture of her and gift it to her the next time we meet."

As he said this, he pointed at the painting and asked, "She was dressed in white when we saw her yesterday, so I drew her in the same clothes. Does this painting look like her?"

Luna glanced at the painting, frowning, then shook her head. "No, it doesn't, it looks more like..."

Like Dr. Rachel.

Of course, Luna did not say this aloud.

"Is that so?" Theo stood up and quickly tidied up his things. "Well, if that's the case, I'll go ask Joshua if he has any photos or further information about Roanne so that I can get inspired."

"Please excuse me."

With that, he turned and left the room.

The door closed behind him.

Bonnie glanced at the unfinished IV drip hanging next to the bed and sighed. "Joshua told me that he has arranged the servants to get a room upstairs ready for me and that as soon as my IV drip runs out, I'll be able to go upstairs."

With that, she turned and glanced solemnly at Luna. "How's Gwen?"

Staring at Bonnie's pale face, Luna grabbed hold of her uninjured hand and replied, "She didn't manage to escape and was captured by Luke."

She let out a sigh and fixated her gaze on Bonnie's face. "Does it...still hurt?"

As soon as she heard this, Bonnie lowered her head and could not stop the tears from falling anymore. She glanced at her tightly-wrapped finger and said in a choked, nasally voice, "Actually, it doesn't hurt that much anymore."

"This is nothing compared to the emotional pain I'm going through."

Bonnie lifted her head and fixed her tear-rimmed eyes on Luna's face. "When Christopher brought me to the hospital this morning...we ran into Jim."

She sniffed as tears soundlessly slid down her cheek. "His arm was around Charlotte, and he didn't even give me a second glance."

"After that, Christopher went to the pharmacy to retrieve my medications and let me wait in the garden. A creep snuck up on me and tried to take advantage of me, so I chased him away by telling him I was pregnant."

"Do you know what Jim said to me as soon as that creep ran off?"

Bonnie wiped the tears from her face and said in a choked voice, "He called me a slut for sleeping around" with other men even while pregnant.”

She lifted her head to stare at Luna. “Do you think that I’m the person that matters the least in this world t

Jim?

“How could he still remember many other things after losing his memory but can’t recall even a single detail about me?

“If I matter so little to him...I think there’s no reason for me to continue staying in Merchant City anymore. Since he likes Charlotte so much, I should grant them a lifetime of happiness together.

Luna bit her lip and gripped Bonnie’s wrist tightly when she saw the despair in her eyes. “If you have no right to compete with her, no one else has.” She handed Bonnie the medical report. “You’re pregnant.”

The entire room fell silent.

Bonnie stared blankly at Luna’s face, her entire body frozen in shock.

A split second later, her face twitched, and she curled her lips into a bitter smile. “How is that even possible...”

How could she have gotten pregnant?

When she had gotten a checkup at the hospital, the doctor had told her that because of some complications while giving birth six years ago, she had lost most of her reproductive ability and only had less than a ten-percent chance of getting pregnant naturally.

Because of this low probability, Bonnie had assumed that she was infertile.

Because of this, she was extremely fond of Jim's two children and treated them like her own.

She thought that Jim must have loved kids, considering he had two even before getting married.

Ironically, she became infertile.

Despite this, she still naively thought that as long as she treated Jim's children well enough, it would make up for the fact that she could not bear him a child of their own.

Therefore, she did not believe a word that Luna had said about her being pregnant.

Seeing the puzzled look in Bonnie's eyes, Luna frowned and handed her the report that Dr. Laura had written. "Look at this yourself."

Bonnie took the paper from her but did not even bother glancing at it. "The doctor must've made a mistake."

She let out a self-deprecating chuckle. "How can I possibly get pregnant so easily?"

When she ran into Jim at the hospital that morning, Jim had even taunted her for seducing other men even while pregnant.

If she was really pregnant, would Jim think that his words had come true?

Luna let out a sigh when she heard this. She grabbed hold of Bonnie's hand and said, "Dr. Laura says that you're about a month along now.

"Try to think back to a month ago. Were you and Jim..."

Bonnie furrowed her brows and tried to recall the last time she and Jim were together in Banyan City.

All of a sudden, she was reminded of something and quickly took out her handbag.

Inside her handbag was a small notebook and a tiny red gift box.

Bonnie opened the notebook with her uninjured hand.

The notebook clearly displayed details of her health condition, including the date of her last menstrual period and the dates of the nights she had spent with Jim.

After confirming that her period had been more than two weeks late, Bonnie opened the gift box with shaking hands.

To Luna's surprise, the box contained...a pregnancy test kit.

Bonnie curled her lips into a small smile when she saw Luna's surprised expression. "Jim gave this to me the last time we met."

A bitter smile spread across her face as she stared at the pregnancy kit.

Jim still had no idea that she was infertile.

The last time he had flown to Banyan City to see her, he had bought this pregnancy kit as a gift for her.

The two of them spent a whole night together, and the morning after, Jim had kissed her earlobe gently with his arms wrapped around her slender body. His low, melodic voice rang out next to her ear as he said, "Bonnie, we never used protection every time we slept together, so I think this will be useful for you.

"If we have a child of our own, we can have three kids, like Joshua and Luna."

When Bonnie took the pregnancy kit from him, her heart was filled with bittersweet emotions,

It was difficult for her to tell him the truth.

She wanted to find the right time to tell him that, in fact, she could not get pregnant

However, she could not seem to find the right time and place to do so, and she was also secretly worried that their relationship would turn sour as soon as Jim knew the truth.

Despite these concerns, Bonnie still brought this pregnancy kit with her everywhere she went, and there were even plenty of medications and supplements inside her bag.

She often thought, What if?’

What if one day, she really got pregnant with Jim’s child? If that happened, her infertility would not be an issue anymore.

Bonnie never thought that after her relationship with Jim turned sour, she would receive the news of her being pregnant

It seemed that fate had toyed with her yet again,

Luna bit her lip as she stared at the pregnancy test kit in Bonnie’s hand. “Did Jim...give you this because h e wanted you to get pregnant?”

Luna’s voice finally pulled Bonnie back to reality.

She nodded solemnly and let out a bitter smile. “Yes, but it seems that this child didn’t arrive at the right time.”

Luna bit her lip and gripped Bonnie’s hand tightly. “Maybe this child will become the key to you and Jim’s reconciliation.”

She stared earnestly at Bonnie and continued, "Even though I'm Jim's sister, I still think this decision should be up to you.

"If you want to keep this child, we'll keep it, and even if Jim doesn't treat you well in the future, I'll help look after you

"One day, he'll regain his lost memories of you.

"If..."

The glimmer in Luna's eyes disappeared as she said, "Even if you don't want to keep this child, I support your decision nevertheless. After your abortion, both me and Theo will take good care of you."

She fixed her penetrating stare on Bonnie's face. "Don't feel pressured by this."

Bonnie bit her lip when faced with Luna's earnest expression. She wanted to say something, but she could not find the words to do so..

There was nothing else she could do apart from leaping into Luna's arms and sobbing with her head on Luna's shoulder.

No matter how cheerful she usually was, Bonnie was still a sensitive, sentimental person.

Even at a time like this, she was still crying silently so as not to make too much noise.

Despite this, Luna could still understand the despair in her heart based on the tear stains on her shirt and Bonnie's sniffing.

This child did not arrive at the right time.

"Luna, I want to keep this baby." After Bonnie stopped crying, she let out an exhale and said with much determination and courage, "I want to give birth to this baby and raise it as my own."

This was not for Jim's sake, but most importantly, this was for herself.

She had already lost a child six years ago, and since then, she never thought she would get pregnant again.

God had gifted her this baby this time, and she would love it with all her heart, even if it had not arrived at the right time.

Bonnie was willing to believe that this was God's way of compensating her for the misery she had gone through

Not only that, but this was a reminder to her that there was still another child out there for her to find.

Seeing the determined look in Bonnie's eyes, Luna nodded. Just as she was about to say something to comfort her, Luna's phone rang.

She took out her phone and glanced at it.

It was Charlotte.

Luna frowned and suddenly recalled that she had promised Charlotte that she would go to Landry Mansion in the afternoon to sign a contract with Jim.

Luna let out an exhale, and just as she was about to go out into the hallway to take this phone call, she suddenly recalled that Joshua was in the living room,

She did not want him to overhear her conversation with Charlotte because she did not want to let him know that Jim and Charlotte were taking advantage of her again.

After contemplating for a moment, Luna picked up the call in the room.

"Luna" Charlotte's voice sounded impassive as she said, "Don't forget our appointment at 2 p.m.

"I'll allow you to bring your camera to Landry Mansion to commemorate your last day as CEO of Landry Group and record down the memories of the fortune that once belonged to you."

Luna furrowed her brows and hung up the phone without even bothering to answer.

Chapter 1889

“But from the way you look now...” Luna could not help frowning as she glanced at Bonnie’s fully-bandaged finger. “I think you’d better stay home and rest.”

Bonnie had yet to recover from her abdomen injury, and she had even suffered a fracture in her finger.

Judging from the severity of her wounds, Bonnie should indeed stay home and rest.

Bonnie, however, shook her head. “I’m fine. Dr. Laura gave me some medicine before she left, so I’m feeling much better now.”

With that, she pointed at the empty IV drip hanging above her head and offered her hand to Luna. “Since this kid belongs to Jim... I want to give it one last try, for the baby’s sake.”

She watched Luna as she removed the cannula from her hand and smiled weakly. “Maybe I can give the child a proper home.”

Luna furrowed her brows. “But...”

Bonnie herself had said that Jim’s attitude toward her had been poor ever since their encounter at the hospital that morning.

Therefore, even if Bonnie had followed her to Landry Mansion that afternoon, it would not change Jim’s attitude toward her at all.

Despite Luna thinking this, however, she could not help letting out a sigh when faced with Bonnie’s hopeful gaze. “Alright then, but you have to promise me that no matter what happens, you can't get into any conflict with Charlotte there, Bonnie. You're not allowed to get too close to Jim.

"You have to stay with me and not step out of my sight whatsoever."

Bonnie pursed her lips and agreed to Luna's terms.

Finally, she let out a bitter smile and glanced at Luna. "You're like a nagging mother."

Luna rolled her eyes. "It's all because of you guys."

Luna had already felt guilty over what happened with Gwen that morning, so she could not possibly allow anything to go wrong with Bonnie.

By the time the two women finished discussing their visit to Landry Mansion, it was already noon.

A short while later, Lucas knocked on their door. "Ma'am, Ms. Craig, it's time for lunch."

Luna frowned and replied as she helped Bonnie out of bed, "Please call me Ms. Luna.

"Your memory has been getting worse lately, Lucas. You've clearly forgotten that there's no Mrs. Lynch in this house."

Both Lucas and Joshua, who were sitting at the dining table, froze when they heard this.

A split second later, Lucas let out an awkward smile as he walked over to help Luna. "It's just a title, so please don't take it to heart."

Luna glanced coldly at the man sitting at the table.

He was as tall and slender as always, and his presence emanated an aura of arrogance and haughtiness.

Luna sneered. "I'm not the one taking it to heart; it's your beloved Mr. Lynch.

“Mr. Lynch has already made it clear that he’s single now, and there’s no Mrs. Lynch around, so you should get your titles straight. Otherwise, this mistake might cost your master a chance to find a new wife, and are you prepared to take responsibility for this?”

Thud!

As soon as Luna finished his sentence, Joshua slammed his cutlery forcefully against the table.

The cold metal let out a deafening clatter as it hit the hard marble tabletop.

Theo, who was sitting across from Joshua, furrowed his brows and glanced at him, signaling him to keep his temper in control. “Joshua, let’s eat.” Joshua glanced coldly in Luna’s direction, then at Theo.

“You eat; I’m done with my food.”

With that, Joshua stood up and left.

As he brushed past Luna, Joshua’s shoulder bumped forcefully against Luna’s and almost forced her onto the ground.

However, he did not even turn around and instead stomped upstairs as though he could not feel this.

Luna remained motionless, glaring at Joshua’s retreating figure as she clutched her aching shoulder.

What was he mad about? Had he not said these exact words to Lucas that morning?

“Why did you talk to him like that?” Theo shot Luna a helpless glance, then looked at the food on the table, which Joshua had barely even touched. “He had lost his appetite this morning because of his fight with you, and now he’s refusing to eat...”

“If this goes on any longer, his body won’t be able to take it.”

Luna pursed her lips slightly and, after helping Bonnie settle down, plopped down into her own seat. “I hadn’t even done anything to irk him, yet he got on my nerves this morning and even blamed me for it!”

The more she thought about it, the angrier Luna got. She could not believe how outrageous this man was behaving!

He was the one who had lost his temper for no reason and even ratted on Gwen.

How dare this man even have the audacity to strike out and throw a tantrum by refusing to eat?

As soon as she thought of this, Luna picked up her fork and stabbed it into her meatloaf.” Well, since he doesn’t want to eat, I assume it’s because he’s not hungry! So be it that his body gives up on him; what does it have to do with me?”

Joshua, who was standing at the second-floor railing, narrowed his eyes when he heard this.

He glanced at Luna with a dark expression before finally turning and going into his room.

Theo had already noticed that Joshua was lurking at the second-floor railing, which was why he had deliberately told Luna about Joshua skipping his meals.

However, to his surprise, Luna’s answer was not one of sympathy but of spite.

Glancing at Joshua’s retreating figure, Theo let out a sigh and continued eating his food.

Watching this exchange, Bonnie finally could not help putting some food into an empty plate.

“Luna, you should bring this up to Joshua later after our meal.”

Luna rolled her eyes. "I don't want to."

She did not do anything wrong, so why was she the one supposed to coax Joshua?

Everything she had said had come out of his own mouth that morning. Since he could say such hurtful words, why was she not allowed to use them against him?

What kind of rule was this?

Bonnie shot Luna a helpless look, then glanced at Theo.

It was not easy having to deal with arguing couples.

As soon as he met Bonnie's helpless gaze, Theo furrowed his brows and suddenly remembered something

He lifted his head to stare earnestly at Bonnie. "Just now, Luna said that Joshua had lost his temper for no reason, but that wasn't the case at all.

"I had asked Joshua about this just now, and he told me that he had stumbled upon you and Luna's messages when he was trying to do something on Luna's phone..."

"What did you say to her last night?"

Both Bonnie and Luna froze when they heard this.

A split second later, Bonnie smacked her forehead in sudden realization.

"Last night... I asked Luna if she would rekindle her relationship with Joshua...after the vengeance between the Landry and Lynch families ceased to exist."

She still remembered that when she sent this message, Luna had replied no.

After that, she had tried to ask Luna for her reason, but Luna did not respond until an hour later.

At that time, Bonnie had even complained to Christopher about Luna's slow response and that she must have fallen asleep halfway through their conversation.

As soon as she thought of this, Bonnie turned to stare blankly at Luna. "Could Joshua have... seen the message that you sent about not wanting to get back together with him, even if your vengeances were dissolved?"
