This Time, I Will Get My Divorce, Mr Chapter 575 - 578

Chapter 575 Back to Seafield

After all, Sonia was thankful for Toby's considerate response, which made her feel respected and understood. "Thank you." She bitterly curled her lips to force a brittle smile.

Then, Toby placed her head on his shoulder once again. "Alright, that's enough. You should probably have some sleep now. Look at you—you can barely keep your eyes open."

Indeed, she felt extremely sleepy and the moment he said those words, she closed her eyes. As soon as she did that, she went out like a light shortly before he heard her steady breathing, after which he turned his attention to her face and admired her restful expression in amusement while he covered them both with the blanket. After that, he leaned on her head and closed his eyes until they landed in Seafield a few hours later.

Upon their arrival, Sonia yawned as she followed Toby out of the airport. Tom was already waiting for them outside the airport. When he saw the both of them, he quickly headed over and greeted, "Good day, President Fuller. Good day, Miss Reed."

"Likewise, Tom." Sonia nodded and returned the greeting.

Soon, Toby passed the luggage to Tom and shifted his gaze to the woman beside him. "Where are you going later? Paradigm Co. or Bayside Residence?"

"I think I'll return to Bayside Residence first," she replied after a brief hesitation.

Toby bobbed his head. "Alright, I'll give you a ride there."

"There's no need for that." Sonia waved her hand. "I drove here two days ago and my car is in the car park. What am I going to do with my car if you give me a lift? So, I guess it's better for me to drive home by myself." She turned around to walk away when she finished her sentence.

"Then, you can give me a ride there," Toby suggested as he seized her hand.

"Wait, what?" Sonia was stunned. "Did you just say that you want me to give you a ride?"

He nodded again. "I did."

She seemed surprised by his words. "If I'm going to give you a ride, what are you going to do with your car?"

"Tom can follow behind us." Toby shot a gaze at his assistant.

Tom adjusted his glasses as he answered solemnly, "Alright, President Fuller. I'll get the car now." Then, he opened the door and got into the vehicle.

On the other hand, Sonia's lips curled upward as she felt amused at the sight of the man's insistence to be her passenger. "Okay then, get into the car." She reached for her car keys and pushed the unlock button, whereupon the short alarm of a red Benz could be heard from not far away.

As soon as both of them reached the car, Toby chivalrously opened the car door for her before Sonia bent over and sat inside. Then, the man circled around the car and entered the vehicle to sit on the front passenger seat. In a matter of minutes, the red car was followed by another black one as both vehicles left the airport and traveled in the direction of Bayside Residence.

She glimpsed at the man beside her and asked, "Why are you doing this? We live on opposite ends of town, so it'll probably take you more than an hour of driving back to your place."

"It's okay." Toby looked at her with a smile. "Nothing matters as long as I can be by your side."

A helpless Sonia shook her head. "Suit yourself then. You're only going to tire yourself this way."

While he replied with an affirmative hum, she shook her head and ignored him to concentrate on the road. An hour later, they arrived at Bayside Residence shortly before a black Maybach pulled up as well.

Sonia unfastened her seatbelt and gazed at the man who was doing the same thing. "Alright, I have to get inside, so you should head home now. Stay safe on the road!"

"I will." Toby nodded.

As soon as both of them stepped out of Sonia's car, she looked at him and puckered her lips. "See you."

"See you," he replied.

Then, she grabbed her purse and headed toward the building while he kept his eyes on her and continued to do so without any intention to leave even after she was out of sight.

At the same time, Tom opened the car door and stood beside Toby. "President Fuller, it seems that you've made some positive progress with Miss Reed, haven't you?"

"Hmm?" Toby raised his eyebrows. "Why do you say so?"

Tom faked a cough before answering, "Well, it seems to me that you've definitely grown closer with Miss Reed while she certainly doesn't treat you as cold as she used to. Furthermore, she didn't resist you when you touched her, which is why I think you both are back on good terms. Am I right?"

Toby's lips curled upward. "That's some keen observation, but you're right. Things between me and Sonia seemed to have taken a turn for the better. She knows that we've mutual feelings for each other and she doesn't resist me when I get close to her. Speaking of good terms, though, I think we still have a long way to go."

"Why?" Tom expressed his bewilderment, wondering why they hadn't decided to take a step forward since it was natural for them both to begin a relationship now that they were both aware of their feelings for each other.

As if he had seemingly sensed something, Toby looked up and trained his gaze on the building that towered over him. Then, when he saw Sonia appearing on the balcony, his smile widened as he raised his right arm to wave at her.

Sonia was initially intending to peek to see whether Toby had left, only to realize that he was still around and even noticed her. For the next few seconds, she stood there in a trance before she subconsciously raised her right hand and waved at him.

Meanwhile, Tom felt like rolling his eyes at them when he witnessed their interaction. Oh, man! Both of them have really taken things to a whole new level. They're both in love with each other, so why do they still have to act like they're bidding farewell to each other with a heavy heart? They should probably just be together so that they won't ever have to leave each other. Despite his thoughts, he restrained himself from vocalizing his thoughts and acted as if nothing happened.

At this moment, Toby felt his phone vibrating as he reached for it and saw Sonia's text. So, he naturally looked up before he realized that she was waving at him with her phone in her hand as a gesture to tell him to check out his phone.

Toby nodded and viewed the message that she sent him. 'I'm already home, so you should leave as well. Don't continue waiting there; it'll only make you silly doing that.' 'Silly? Am I? He stroked his chin and replied to her message. 'Alright, I'll make a move now. See you tomorrow.'

Sonia tilted her head in confusion, wondering why they were meeting again the next day. Is there anything necessary for us to meet up tomorrow? Despite her perplexity, she proceeded to give Toby an affirmative reply. 'Alright.'

As soon as he saw that reply, he chuckled softly and kept his phone away happily. After that, he looked up at Sonia on the balcony, whereupon he decided to return to his car. Meanwhile, Tom quickly followed behind and started the car. It wasn't until they traveled a few miles away from Sonia's residence that Toby began to answer the question that his assistant had asked him. "Sonia still struggles to find her faith in me, but when she does, we'll naturally be together and that day will be soon."

"Really? In that case, I should congratulate you in advance, President Fuller." Tom ingratiated himself with Toby.

"Claim some extra bonus from the finance department later." Toby lifted his chin while his words exposed his favor toward Tom's flattery in the process.

In the meantime, Tom, who knew that his flattery was working, grinned from ear to ear. "Thank you so much, President Fuller."

On the other hand, Sonia remained at the balcony as she fixed her eyes on Toby's Maybach as her smile was replaced with calmness. Deep down, she wasn't sure whether she was treating Toby the way she should be since they were socializing well with each other like lovers despite her reluctance to accept him.

Therefore, she feared that she would cave into the temptation of accepting him if the situation persisted, which led to ponder on the question of whether she would be happy in a life with him. Are we really going to pick up where we left off? Is this going to work?

The moment she had that thought, Sonia was in a dazed state.

This Time, I Will Get My Divorce, Mr Chapter 576

Chapter 576 Tim's Revelation

The next day, Sonia received a call from Tim, who informed her to collect her medicine from the hospital. Ever since Carl's poison had affected her uterus, she had been taking medication to fully recover from the impact. Now that she had already been taking the same type of medicine and undergone the same treatment a few times, Tim notified her that it was time to proceed to the next stage of the treatment, which would also require a change of medication.

"Yup, I'm aware of that. I'll come over in the afternoon," Sonia replied to Tim, who was on the other end of the call, before she kept her phone away, whereupon she headed for Paradigm Co. from home.

"President Reed." Daphne stood outside Sonia's office and when she saw Sonia stepping out of the elevator, Daphne bowed at her. "Welcome back."

"Thank you." Sonia smiled as Daphne opened the door for her and extended an arm to invite her inside.

When Sonia was about to enter the office, she suddenly stopped in her tracks as if she had just seen something. While fixing her eyes on Daphne's face, she asked in a concerned manner, "Daphne, didn't you have a good rest in the past two days? You look haggard. Are you okay?"

Daphne rubbed her own face with bitterness that flashed across before it disappeared. Then, she curled her lips upward and replied, "Thanks for your concern, President Reed. Something came up in the past two days, so I didn't really have a good rest."

"What was it? Do you need help with it?" Sonia asked again.

"Oh, it's nothing big." Daphne shook her head. "It's fine. I can handle it myself." President Reed mustn't know what has happened between me and President Lane.

When she noticed her secretary's insistence, Sonia decided not to press on and instead nodded. "Alright, if you need anything, please let me know."

"Sure, President Reed." A grateful Daphne smiled.

Then, Sonia walked into her office with Daphne right behind her as Daphne reported about her schedule for the day. When she heard that she had to attend a meeting about alternative energy at the Fuller Group, Sonia paused in surprise. "Did you just say that I have a meeting to attend at the Fuller Group?" She raised an eyebrow as she skeptically tried to confirm what she had just heard.

"Yes, President Reed." Daphne adjusted her glasses.

"Now I get it. That's where you'll wait for me." Sonia curled her lips upward, finally catching up to what Toby meant when he said that they would meet again the next day. No wonder Toby said at that time he will see me tomorrow. Well, it looks like he arranged this meeting quite a while ago.

"What do you mean, President Reed?" Daphne had no idea what was on Sonia's mind, so she was confused when she heard what Sonia had said.

Sonia responded by rubbing her temples. "Oh, it's nothing. Did the higher-ups mention the theme that will be discussed later in the meeting?"

“Yes, they did.” Daphne opened the document in her hand and flipped to a page before giving the file to Sonia. “The alternative energy technology has been on trial in the market for quite a while now, so the meeting today is for all the investors to discuss the pros and cons that it can bring from their own companies to see whether there is any room for improvement. If there aren’t any cons, the technology will be fully launched in the market.”

“Oh, really?” Sonia stroked her chin and took the document as she began to skim through it. After that, she returned the file to Daphne and added, “Alright, I guess I’m more or less aware of what’s going on. Please gather the feedback from those in our company with regards to the trial use of the new technology. Once you have that done, compile everything and submit it to me.”

“Alright, President Reed.” Daphne turned around to step out of the office with the document.

When it was almost time for lunch, she organized and compiled everything for Sonia, who then shoved everything in her briefcase. After that, she grabbed her purse and drove away from Paradigm Co. to the hospital where she first planned to collect her medication before heading to the Fuller Group. Well, I have plenty of time anyway since the meeting starts at 2:00PM.

The moment she arrived at the First World Hospital, Sonia made her way straight to Tim’s office, where she saw him being engrossed with the writing of his medical report. Thus, she stood by the door and knocked on it.

When Tim heard the knock, he paused in his writing and looked up to greet Sonia with a smile at the sight of her. “Please come in.”

“Sure, I’ll make myself at home then.” She proceeded to head inside.

“You’re early.” Tim happened to close his pen with a lid. “Have you had lunch yet?”

“I ate a little in the car.”

“Well, I should treat you to a meal then. The food in the canteen is worth a try.” He opened his drawer and took a white card out of it to flash it at Sonia.

“haul”

Sonia waved her hand to reject Tim's kind offer. "No, thanks. I'm not hungry now. Furthermore, I still have a meeting to attend later, so I'll be running late if I were to have lunch now. Thus, please take me to collect my medication now instead."

Now that she had already said so, Tim could only give in and he inserted the card into his gown. "Alright, I'll take you to the OB-GYN for a check-up first, so that we can determine the extent of your recovery before we can determine the necessary treatment for you."

"Okay," Sonia replied with an affirmative hum.

When both of them walked toward their destination, something seemingly crossed Sonia's mind. Then, she bit her lips and asked, "Dr. Lancaster, I have a question for you since your area of expertise includes hypnosis. I want to know whether hypnosis can tamper with a person's memory."

"Why do you ask?" Tim looked at her.

Sonia blinked, but she decided to be honest. "Toby told me yesterday that he actually found out that Tina was posing as me back then, but before he could expose her, he was hypnotized to forget the part where he realized she wasn't me. For the next six years, the hypnotic effect continued to dominate his consciousness and prevented him from seeing the truth that I was the one whom he had been looking for."

Tim adjusted his glasses. "I get what you're trying to say. You want to know whether Toby is being honest, right?"

Sonia replied with an affirmative hum. "My intention exactly. After all, his words just sounded like a bolt from the blue to me and I'm not sure whether I can trust them. Since you're an expert in this area, I was hoping you could tell me whether Toby was telling me the truth."

"Well, you're right. I can indeed tell whether what he said was true."

"So—"

"It's true!"

"Wait, what?" Sonia was stunned.

Tim stopped in his tracks and looked at her. "Toby is telling the truth. He was indeed hypnotized and the person who did that to him was my senior, Miles."

Sonia's pupils dilated in surprise as it was expressed over her face. "Your senior?"

"That's right." Tim nodded. "I only came to know about this matter two months ago, though. In fact, I had no idea that Toby had been hypnotized by Miles until he was involved in an accident that significantly reduced the hypnotic effect within him. When he sensed that there was something wrong with himself, he came to me for help and learned that Miles had taken control over his mind with hypnosis."

"So, it's true!" Sonia's eyes twitched, which clearly illustrated her unease. Toby was indeed hypnotized.

Considering the fact that they didn't share a bitter history between each other, Sonia had no doubt that Tim was covering up for Toby. Furthermore, she was sure that Toby wouldn't dare to mess with Tim as she believed he knew Tim's capability as a competent doctor as he might one day require Tim's help.

On the other hand, she was also convinced that Tim had treated Toby in the same way that he was being treated because he was outclassed by Toby in terms of their social statuses. Therefore, Sonia believed Tim had the power to decide whether he wanted to accept Toby's offer if Toby had ever approached him.

Moreover, Tim was not someone who could easily be bribed because anyone who ever intended to do so would have to be ready to fork out a high price, which was usually in any form other than money since the man himself was pretty well off. At the thought of that, Sonia took a deep breath and asked, "Dr. Lancaster, what was the relationship between your senior and Tina? Why would he help Tina to hypnotize Toby?"
