

Time Travel to Become Your Sweetheart Chapter 16

Chapter 16 A Warm-up for the Divorce

However, disputes between couples shouldn't affect children.

Dayton had long eyelashes. He blinked his eyes, looking like a smaller version of William. It was painful for Jane to see Dayton want to cry but bite his lips and hold back his tears. She wanted to get off the bed and wrap Dayton in her arms to comfort him.

Jane couldn't move, so she opened her arms, signaling Dayton to hug her.

"Dayton."

"Mommy!"

Dayton's expression changed from sadness to joy. He smiled brightly while running into Jane's arms. He knew that Jane had been kidnapped and injured by a bad person, so he tried to be gentle.

'Mommy was so soft and smelled nice. It felt great to hug mommy!'

Jane could feel how much Dayton loved her. She touched Dayton's soft hair with her hand and smiled gently.

Women liked adorable creatures, and Jane was no exception. Besides, Dayton was an obedient and lovable child. Jane didn't know why the female lead was so ruthless that she didn't care about her own son.

Jane and Dayton were chatting. They ignored William, who was beside them. When Frederic came in and saw it, he closed his eyes, wishing that he could become invisible.

He felt cold around William. One more look could get him killed. And he also discovered something unbelievable.

"Mr. William, I heard that some reporter took pictures of our car meeting the police car. It was after you saved Madam. The pictures are a little blurry, but...."

Once the photos were leaked, the news that had been hidden with great difficulty would break, becoming something that the netizens would gossip in their daily lives. It would have an impact on the Duncan Group, and it was inconsistent with William's usual low-profile behavior.

"It doesn't matter."

William pulled his tie with impatience.

They had to go through the courts if deciding to get divorced. It was impossible to hide it from the public, so it did no harm to warm up.

He came to the hospital only to notify Jane of the divorce, and he didn't expect that Jane would disagree.

He knew that things wouldn't go well. Now Jane was trying to use her own son to get more property.

Dayton was five years old, and Jane barely hugged Dayton. He felt more disgusted when she hugged Dayton in front of him.

"Daddy, can I stay with Mommy tonight?"

His friends in kindergarten said that their dads and moms slept together. Dayton told them that his daddy and mommy had never slept together. Then, they said that Dayton's daddy didn't like his mommy.

Dayton's lips puckered, 'But Mommy was great! Daddy didn't sleep with Mommy. I could sleep with Mommy.'

Jane kissed Dayton on the cheek.

"Dayton, be good. Go home with Daddy."

Although Jane wanted to stay with Dayton for a while longer, she still refused. Seeing Dayton's disappointed face, she explained, "Mommy wants to stay with Dayton, but the hospital is not a good place. There are many germs."

It was for Dayton's sake that Jane didn't let him stay in the hospital.

The doctor said that she had a slight concussion, so she had to stay in the hospital for observation. She could be discharged in a few days. There would be plenty of time for her to stay with Dayton.

"Mommy, I'll be good."

Hearing what Jane had said, Dayton's eyes gleamed. Nodding obediently and saying goodbye to Jane, he was taken away by Frederic.