

When His Eyes Opened Chapter 943

Chapter 943 Elliot was afraid that his daughter would be bullied at school and felt worried even though he knew that there was only a very slim chance of that happening. His daughter was very beautiful and had a very assertive character. Everything would be fine and dandy if no one provoked her, but if someone pushed her buttons, she would definitely fight back even though she could not win against them! As a result, he had a word with the school in private.

"You're such an awesome father." Avery teased him.

"I know what I have done is far from enough, but I'll continue to try my best."

Avery looked at Layla and explained, "Your brother will be back a bit later today. Your father was out the whole day to pick Aunt Tammy up and just came back. It was a pretty long day for him, so I left some food for him."

"Oh," Layla answered after hearing the explanation. Since there was a reasonable explanation, she put away the attitude she had shown Elliot earlier. "Mommy, I like my magic wand!" Layla took Avery's hand and walked toward the dining room. "I'm going to be the most beautiful little princess tomorrow."

Avery said, "You'll always be the most beautiful little princess to me."

Layla's face blushed after being praised and she said energetically, "Mommy, let me tell you a secret!" Having said that, Layla turned her head to look at Elliot. The girl seemed worried that he would hear it, but at the same time, worried that he would not hear it.

In the end, Layla said the secret in a voice that only Avery and Elliot could hear. "Hayden took Tiggie apart last night!" Avery had an embarrassed expression and glanced apologetically at Elliot. Elliot said magnanimously, "It's fine. The gift is for him. It's his to do whatever he wants with it."

Layla then continued, "Harden said that Tiggie is too stupid. He can't stand such a stupid thing in the room, so he wants to dismantle Tiggie and make Tiggieed smarter."

Avery and Elliot were both speechless. It turned out that Hayden was upgrading Tiggie instead of destroying²⁷ it. Mrs. Cooper brought the food to the table and took Robert from Elliot's arms. As he looked at the sumptuous dinner on the table, Elliot found it rather depressing that Robert could only drink milk and felt pity all of a sudden. "When can Robert start eating solid food? Can I give him some meat?" Avery explained, "For now, he can only eat baby cereal, vegetable puree, and fruit puree."

"Can you eat meat puree⁵² then?" "Why do you insist on feeding your children meat?" Avery looked at him in puzzlement. "Do you think eating meat can make him grow faster and smarter? You know what, it doesn't matter what you think. He still can't eat meat yet." Elliot explained his reasoning, "I just think meat is delicious." "You should eat more then if it's that delicious." Avery placed a plate of spare ribs in front of him.

"We shouldn't be arguing in front of the children, Avery. It won't be a good influence on them."

Avery asked Layla, "Do you think Mommy and Daddy are arguing, Layla?" Layla blinked her beautiful eyes. "How is this arguing? Mommy is obviously lecturing Daddy." Avery gave her daughter a piece of meat and told her to close her mouth. After having a satisfying dinner, Elliot did not stay too long because he was afraid that Hayden would come back anytime and sulk after seeing him. Avery walked him to the door after seeing how tactful he was. "Thank you for picking Tammy up today." She thanked him with some hesitation. "You're welcome." He looked at her awkward little expression and said hoarsely, "See you tomorrow."

"Okay." She lowered her eyes, turned around immediately, and closed the door before returning to the living room. The driver drove the car over and opened the car door for him. He shifted his gaze away from the closed villa door and got into the car. Half an hour later, the black Rolls-Roice drove through the driveway leading up to the villa.

A sneaky and extremely suspicious black figure was spotted outside the villa fence. Elliot immediately lowered the car window to try and see the person's face.

When His Eyes Opened Chapter 944

Chapter 944 Elliot thought that lowering the car window would startle the man. He thought that the man would lower his head or turn around. Surprisingly, the man raised his head and looked at Elliot after the latter lowered the car window. Elliot frowned almost instantly and glared back at the man! In stark contrast to Elliot's angry emotions, the man grinned and smiled at him!

A cold sweat broke out on Elliot's back, not because he was scared, but because the person was just simply bizarre.

No one ever dared to roam near his villa, much less glance at him so boldly!

Since it was difficult to see clearly at night, he could only vaguely make out the man's silhouette. It was a tall and slightly chubby middle-aged man. Elliot could confirm that he had never seen that man before!

Why would someone like that appear outside his villa at night?

The car drove immediately into the front yard. Elliot got out of the car and gave his bodyguard some instructions before walking into the villa.

After a while, the bodyguard came into the living room and reported the situation to him, "I didn't see any middle-aged man like you mentioned, Mr. Foster, but I saw a black car driving away. I'm guessing that person you mentioned was probably inside it." "Check the surveillance footage and find out what time he came." The picture of that middle aged man's grin appeared in Elliot's mind and he clenched his hands into a fist.

He wanted to deem that man as a mentally-ill individual because normal people would not dare to be so cheeky in front of him!

However, a voice in his mind was telling him that the man was not mentally ill.

The bodyguard said earlier that a black car had driven off. If that person really was mentally ill, he ought to be wandering around blindly on the road instead of driving away.

Elsewhere, Tammy and Jun returned home to discover that the house was brightly lit and the door was open.

Jun's parents were sitting on the living room sofa and there was some freshly brewed tea on the coffee table.

When the two of them saw Jun returning with Tammy, they kept quiet but looked right at Tammy's face.

The stir that Tammy created in Rosacus City was all over the internet and the video had gone viral. Eventually, all the Hertz's relatives and friends forwarded the video to Jun's parents. Although the Hertz's were not on the same level as the Fosters, they were also among Avosville's rich and powerful. Never in their family's history had they ever been associated with such a shameful incident.

Although Tammy and Jun were divorced, they had gotten back together again and were going to remarry to each other. Everyone already regarded Tammy as the Hertz's daughter-in-law.

"Dad, Mom, why are you here?" Jun was afraid that his parents would blame Tammy, so he immediately said, "Tammy did do some impulsive things today, but I don't think it's serious. I don't think it's necessary for you to reprimand her." Jun's mother, Hilda, sneered. "You're going to marry into her family, so of course you think her behavior is not a big deal. After all, she didn't really kill Chelsea, right?" Jun's father, Harold, held his wife's hand and hinted at her to speak a little less.

"Jun, your mother and I have taken these couple of days to calm down. About you and Tammy, we've already accepted reality and we're not responsible for you anymore. Since you've already made your decision, we'll respect your choice." Harold said in a serious tone.

Tammy thought they came there to scold her and was surprised that they did not. However, it made her a bit awkward and uneasy. Jun said in bewilderment, "Are you sure you're okay with me staying with Tammy's family?! Don't you think that's really shallow of you? You said that I'm the only third-generation heir in our family and that I'm your most precious son! Guess that's all a big fat joke, huh! Is this how you treat your precious son?" He felt stung by how easily his parents gave up on him. To him, Tammy and his parents could never be mutually exclusive. In the past, the only reason Jun dared to shoot his mouth off at the wedding was because he was confident that his parents would compromise.'
