

Remarriage His Billionaire Ex-Wife By H. D. Cynthia Chapter 127

Chapter 127

Jessica heard Olivia's stomach making a noise. She froze at first, and then covered her mouth with a napkin and chuckled.

Jessica said. "It seems that Miss Thomas doesn't like the dishes I ordered. Should I add a few more dishes for you?"

The Thomas and the Hall families were both rich and powerful families, so Olivia obviously knew that making such noises in public was very inelegant

Olivia blushed, yet the pain in her belly occupied her full attention.

"Sorry, but I have to use the restroom" Olivia whispered with a bent head.

She then hurriedly left her seat and ran towards the restroom

After Olivia left, only Jessica and Lucas were left at the table.

Jessica put down the tableware, took a sip of water, and looked at Lucas.

"Mr. Thomas, are you done eating? Can we start the point now?"

Miss Hall, I invited you to dinner today just to apologize to you." Lucas nodded. =

"Is that so? Now that we have done with the food, can you start apologizing? Or should we wait for Miss Thomas to come back?"

Jessica crossed her arms and looked at Lucas calmly.

"We don't have to. As her elder brother, I should be the one apologizing." Lucas folded his hands on the table and said, "I'm sorry, Olivia has done a lot of wrong things recently.":

Jessica raised her eyebrows. She snorted and said, "Only Miss Thomas?"

Lucas looked up and gazed at Jessica with his deep golden eyes.

Jessica knew Lucas quite well. He was reserved and had a strong sense of self-esteem.

During their three years of marriage, Jessica had never seen Lucas apologize to anyone.'

As for Olivia's apology, Jessica had heard it too many times and got bored. It was more interesting to see Olivia embarrass herself than to hear her apologize.

Lucas was not irritated as Jessica had expected. Instead, he said indifferently, “Yes, I have also done many wrong things. I should apologize to you, too. Sorry, Jessica.”

Lucas was not only apologizing for the trouble that he had brought to Jessica recently, but he was also apologizing for the three years they spent as a couple.

Three years ago, Lucas should have done a thorough investigation so that he would have known that Jessica was also the victim.

Jessica froze at Lucas’ apology. So did Olivia, who had just come back from the restroom.

Both Jessica and Olivia couldn’t believe that Lucas had apologized.

Olivia suddenly realized that Lucas must feel different about Jessica now. Moreover, Lucas’ change in attitude towards Jessica was not because Jessica turned out to be Miss Hall, but probably because Lucas had fallen for Jessica.

Jessica only recovered from her shock when she saw Olivia return, “I accept your apology, but I will never forgive Miss Thomas.” Jessica quickly pulled herself together and said lightly, “If Miss Thomas can appear less in front of me in the future, I think we will have a lot less trouble.”

With that, Jessica stood up, took her bag, and left directly.

Jessica did not believe that three days of punishment would make Olivia a brand new person. Thus, Jessica chose not to forgive Olivia

For the sake of future cooperation between the two families, Jessica let Olivia get away. But if Olivia dared to make a fuss again, Jessica wouldn’t be this merciful.

Jessica stood at the entrance of the restaurant, only to recall that it was Wendy who drove her over today. She wanted to call Wendy and ask Wendy to pick her up when Lucas walked out.

Miss Hall, perhaps I may send you,” said Lucas after he glanced at the sky and realized it was already late.

What? Lucas, how should I go back then?” Olivia’s eyes lingered between Lucas and Jessica. She hoped that Jessica would quickly refuse. However, to Olivia's surprise, Jessica smiled. She put her phone back into her bag and nodded at Lucas. "Sure. Thank you, Mr. Thomas" Lucas nodded and glanced at Olivia before he left, "Wait here for the driver to pick you up."

By the time Olivia realized that she had not brought her cell phone with her, Lucas and Jessica had already boarded the car and left. Olivia's belly hurt again.

Remarriage His Billionaire Ex-Wife By H. D. Cynthia Chapter 128

Chapter 128

Lucas drove "teadily on the road. The two of them remained silent, and there was only the sound of breathing in the car.

The air conditioner kind of bothered Joggio# She gave a quiet oough. Then, Jessica saw lucan turn off the air conditioner and lower the window on her side,

The night breeze blew in. Jessica took a deep breath and felt relaxed, Jessica, I heard from Miss Howell that you've had feelings for me since a long time ago?" Lucas suddenly asked as Jessica was about to close her eyes and take a rest

Jessica could not help but chuckle when she heard that. "Is my answer important to you, Mr. Thomas? I have to remind you again that we have divorced."

The marriage between the two had come to an end. Thus, Jessica found Lucas' question pointless,

"In the past, it wasn't, but now, it is," said Lucas.

Jessica could feel a ripple in her heart. She wasn't sure what Lucas meant by that.

Before Jessica could figure it out, Lucas continued, "I thought about it hard and even asked Hari, but I still can't recall how you met me over a decade ago. Jessica, can you please tell me what happened back then?"

When Hannah came to Lucas that day, she accidentally slipped up. But what Hannah said shocked Lucas, Lucas knew that Jessica had been in love with him, but he didn't know that love had lasted for such a long time. Jessica was only in her twenties now. If her love for Lucas started over a decade ago, she had been loving him for half of her life, Yet Lucas treated Jessica so poorly. He couldn't even recall when he first met her. That was why Lucas was eager to know what had happened back then.

Jessica did not know what was on Lucas' mind. She didn't mind Lucas knowing about her teenage crush on him, but she couldn't bear it when Lucas mentioned it repeatedly to remind her how terrible their romantic relationship had been.

"Mr. Thomas, I think I have to remind you again that we have already divorced. I have zero interest in talking about the past. If you want to prove your personal charm, you may turn to Miss Cheek." Jessica turned her head and said coldly.

orary.

"You got me wrong." The traffic light turned red, so Lucas slowly stopped the car. He then reached out to the back seat and handed a file to Jessica. Lucas said, "Here's the report of Vincent's investigation."

Lucas saw the traffic light turn green, so he turned his head and started the car again.

Jessica opened the report, which contained the result of what had happened between the two in the hotel four years ago.

"And what's the point of this?" Jessica looked at Lucas and asked

"It was my fault. Four years ago, I didn't look into it. I thought it was you who drugged me."

"Was that why you never cared about me and let your family bully me?"

Jessica spoke over Lucas. She sneered and said, "Mr. Thomas, even if you had known that I was not the one who drugged you back then, you would still marry me, right? Because your goal was always to protect Luna."

Lucas didn't know what to say. If he had known that Jessica was also drugged four years ago, he would still marry Jessica, but he would perhaps treat her better and less indifferently,

"Lucas, I don't hate you for not loving me, I hate you because you used my love against me and deceived me. Please pull over. Jessica unfastened her seat belt. She did not want to be with Lucas anymore. Lucas pursed his lips. For the first time, he felt lost for words. He stopped the car on the side of the road, and as soon as he stopped, Jessica opened the door and got out. Tve let you down." That was all Lucas could say.

"Mr. Thomas, you should know that I don't have to forgive you when you apologize." Jessica then left with her purse.

Lucas sat there and did not start the car. He stayed for a long time. He tossed a glance at the report and felt bothered by a mixed feeling.

Lucas did not know why he had brought up this topic. He just wanted Jessica to know that there was some misunderstanding between them. Lucas wanted to tell Jessica that he didn't love Luna, but Jessica didn't give him the chance.