

When His Eyes Opened Chapter 1451 - 1455

Chapter 1451

Tammy won't be angry no matter how Jun scolds her.

But when Jun scolded her mother, she instantly exploded. She raised her hand and slapped him in the face.

"Jun, did you forget that when you were socializing before, you often came home drunk and vomited all over the house. Did I scold your mother? You b*stard. You have no right to scold me. And you have no right to scold my mother. Even if I drink, so what? I said that I want to prepare for pregnancy but I didn't say that I must prepare for pregnancy now. Can't I postpone the preparation for work?"

A public slap in the face, swept away with dignity.

And what Jun meant just now didn't say that her mother was out drinking, but that her mother didn't socialize outside like her, and she didn't have to.

Tammy misinterpreted his meaning and beat him.

Jun's chest rose and fell rapidly, his mind was a mess, and then he stopped.

In order not to make this quarrel irreparable, Jun forcibly suppressed the anger in his heart.

Jun opened the door, got into the car, and slammed the door shut. He stepped on the accelerator and drove the car out.

The moment the car drove out, Jun looked at Tammy's figure in the rearview mirror.

Tammy didn't look at him. She found the car keys in her bag, unlocked the car, opened the door, and got in the car. After she got into the car, she slowed down to see where Jun was going.

As a result, she drove in the opposite direction back to their house.

Jun suddenly panicked. He immediately stopped the car and called Tammy.

Tammy quickly answered the phone: "What?"

"Where are you going?" Jun suppressed his anger.

Tammy: "I'm going back to my house. Jun, let's calm down."

Jun took a deep breath and said indifferently, "Okay! Then calm down."

Tammy didn't speak, so Jun also didn't speak.

Both of them were angry now, and neither of them would bow their heads. They often quarreled like this before, but this was the first time after their remarriage.

Tammy listened to the beeping sound of disconnection, tears welling in her eyes.

—It's obviously a very small matter, why are they arguing like this?

While crying, Tammy drove the car forward until the car stopped at the gate of Lynch's house.

When the two elders of the Lynch family saw their daughter coming back, they asked in astonishment.

Turning a deaf ear to their questions, she went straight upstairs to her room and locked the door.

Tammy's father, Thiago Lynch said, "It must be another quarrel about the child."

Tammy's mother, Mary Lynch said, "It's not about the children...it must be about Tammy's work. Tammy sent me a message and told me that Jun wanted her to stay at home and not go out to socialize."

Thiago said, "Surely Jun wanted the property of our Lynch family?"

Mary frowned, "Okay, keep your voice down. When I married you, didn't you let me quit too work? You men are all virtuous. You have nothing to blame."

Thiago said, "Our daughter has been wronged, why do you still speak for outsiders?"

Mary frowned, "They should solve their problems themselves. Tammy's situation, it's very rare to be able to dislike it."

Thiago said angrily, "How can you say that? Even if your daughter is single for life, it's better than being despised by others. Our Lynch family is not without money, so why should we suffer from that?"

"I'm wronged." Mary sighed.

In the room.

Tammy hugged the pillow and lay on the bed. She took the mobile phone, found Avery's number in the address book, and dialed it.

After a while, the phone was connected.

"Avery, I quarreled with Jun. I think it was a mistake for me to remarry him." Tammy choked, "Men can socialize outside every day, why can't I?"

"Tammy, don't cry. Please communicate this matter well, there must be a compromise solution." Avery comforted.

"I've told him many times. I said that I've been busy for a month or two, so I won't socialize often after that. He promised well but today he lost his temper. He even scolded my mother. I couldn't bear it, so I beat him." Tammy said as she raised her hand to wipe her tears.

Avery: "Why would Jun scold Auntie? He's not such a person."

Tammy: "I heard it with my own ears."

Avery: "What did he say?"

Tammy: "...I forgot. Because I was too angry. I didn't remember too clearly. Avery, if you were me, what would you do? I'm so confused right now."

Avery: "If Jun really scolds Auntie, it will definitely be unbearable. But I suggest you to ask clearly, what he said may not be what you think."

Tammy replied in a hoarse voice. she change the topic: "Have you seen Elliot?"

"Well. He was seriously injured. He is still in a coma." Avery was in the ward, escorting Elliot, "but it's not life-threatening, it's just that it takes a lot of effort to recover."

Tammy: "How could this happen? Was it made by the Jobin family? This Rebecca is really incompetent."

"Don't mention Rebecca." Avery glanced at Rebecca lying on the bed with her.

The ward was very large, and in addition to the hospital bed, there was an accompanying bed.

During Elliot's hospitalization, Rebecca stayed in an escort bed every night.

Tonight, Avery will either go back to the hotel or sleep on the table in the ward. She didn't want to go back to the hotel. She was afraid that after returning to the hotel, Rebecca would not let herself come to the hospital tomorrow.

But she didn't want to sleep on the table either.

At about 10:00 p.m., her sleepy eyelids were fighting, and she glanced at Elliot who was motionless on the hospital bed. She thought for a few seconds, then walked to the side of the hospital bed and lay down carefully.

"Avery! What are you doing?" Seeing Avery go to squeeze the hospital bed with Elliot, Rebecca immediately got up from the escort bed.

Avery innocently said, "I'm sleeping. You took up the escort bed, I can only squeeze with Elliot."

Rebecca's scalp was numb, she said, "Come down quickly and don't touch Elliot's wound."

Avery: "I can come down, you can let me sleep in the escort bed."

Rebecca: "You.."

Avery got off the hospital bed and walked in front of Rebecca, and said, "Rebecca, pregnant women should not get angry too often. Otherwise, it's not good for the fetus. Also, if you don't have a good rest here, aren't you afraid that the child will be miscarried by you?"

Rebecca: "Don't stay there. Curse me! My child will be fine!"

Avery ignored her and went to lie down on the escort bed, occupying a seat.

Rebecca felt angry when she saw her brazenly occupying her own bed, but there was nothing she could do.

Unlike Avery, she couldn't squeeze a hospital bed with Elliot.

After standing in the ward for a while, she walked to the bed and saw that Elliot showed no sign of waking up, so she left the ward indignantly.

Hearing the door of the ward closed, Avery opened her eyes. She was very sleepy just now, but as soon as Rebecca left, she lost sleep.

She got up and got out of bed, walked to the bedside, and gently held Elliot's large palm wrapped in gauze in her hand. "Elliot, wake up soon. I'll take you home."

The phone rang, Avery immediately took out her phone and saw the video call from Layla. When she went abroad, she promised Layla that she would make video call with her every day.

She hesitated and took the video call.

"Mom! Where are you?" Seeing the background behind Avery, Layla seemed to be in the hospital, so her voice suddenly rose.

"Mom is in the hospital. Do you want to see Dad?" Avery hesitated just now, just wondering whether to let her daughter see Elliot as she is now.

After a brief hesitation, Avery felt that her daughter should now be able to withstand such a realistic shock.

"Yes!" Layla replied without hesitation.

Avery took a deep breath and pointed the camera at Elliot on the hospital bed.

Layla opened her eyes wide, and when she saw that the person on the bed was her dad, she suddenly exclaimed: "Is this my dad? Mom! How could my dad become like this?"

Avery retracted the camera and aimed Self: "Your dad is sick. Not only did he not wake up, but he couldn't speak. What Rebecca told you before was all false."

The expression on Layla's face seemed to be relieved, but also as if her brows tightened even more.

—What Rebecca said was false. Dad was not such a merciless person.

—But her dad is so sick now that she can't even speak, she is so worried.

“Mom, can you cure dad?” Layla asked in a nasal voice after being silent for a few seconds.

“Your dad is not a very complicated illness. It just takes a long time to recover.” Avery comforted softly, “You don’t have to worry about him, he can be hospitalized in a month at most.”

Layla: “Oh... Mom, show me him again.”

After her daughter’s request, Avery turned the camera on Elliot again.

Layla looked at Elliot’s bloodless pale face, and remembered the picture of her dad being kind to her, and tears rolled down immediately.

Listening to her daughter’s sobbing, Avery turned the camera back and said, “Layla, don’t cry. Your dad will be fine.”

“Mom, I secretly spoke ill of dad. I shouldn’t have spoken ill of him.” Layla rubbed her red eyes with her hands, blaming herself. .

Avery: “Mom knows you care about him.”

Layla: “When dad is healed, will you be able to bring dad back?”

“Well. When he can be discharged from the hospital, Mom will take him home immediately. Don’t let him leave us.”

When Avery said this, Elliot’s fingers moved slightly on the hospital bed.

After talking about the video call, Avery adjusted his emotions, then turned around and looked at Elliot on the hospital bed.

Avery sat down in the chair beside the hospital bed, lightly held Elliot’s big palms with both hands, then leaned her head against the edge of the bed, and whispered softly, “Elliot, we have known each other for almost ten years. How many decades can we live? When you wake up, let’s stop arguing, let’s live a good life, okay?”

—What responded to her was a boundless and long silence.

The next day.

At 9 a.m.

Rebecca entered the ward accompanied by the nanny.

Avery glanced at Rebecca and saw that Rebecca was holding an unknown list in her hand.

“Avery, didn’t you curse me for a miscarriage last night?” Rebecca arrogantly handed the prenatal check-up form she made today to Avery, “The color ultrasound I just had, the list is still hot. My child is growing very good.”

Avery glanced at the color ultrasound sheet she handed over, then took it and glanced at it.

Avery teased, “You’re less than three months old, so what’s the hurry? In three months, you will have to check for NT, hepatitis B, syphilis, AIDS... If there is any test that fails, the child in your stomach will no longer live.”

Rebecca looks like someone has thrown a basin of cold water.

She had never been pregnant, so she didn’t know that she had to do so many tests. So she suddenly confused.

Avery stuffed her color ultrasound sheet into her hand.

“By the way, you said that the child belonged to Elliot. After three months, you’d better do a paternity test, otherwise this will not end.”

“Just do it. Whoever is afraid.” The nanny said, then strode to the bedside, “Why hasn’t Elliot lost his medicine today? Didn’t the doctor come to the ward?”

“Aren’t you going to check the time now?” Avery was in a bad mood, so her tone was very Poor, “I asked the doctor to change the medicine when the doctor came to round the room. They are going to dispense the medicine now.”

The expression on Rebecca’s face was red and white.

Avery is also a doctor, so she can make this kind of decision.

Compared with Avery, Rebecca is like a dispensable waste.

“Miss, you can’t be angry with her. Just let her accompany her in the hospital. Why should we fight her for such a hard thing? When Mr. Foster wakes up, won’t you come home with us?” The nanny coaxed her and continued, “The doctor said you need more rest, So I’ll take you home to rest.”

Rebecca was not convinced: "What if Elliot wakes up and doesn't see me?"

The nanny: "Let bodyguard stay here. If Mr. Foster wakes up, he will notify us as soon as possible."

Rebecca pursed her red lips, tangled.

"Miss, let's go. Don't you feel upset watching Avery here?" The nanny continued to persuade.

Seeing that Elliot showed no sign of waking up, it was really pointless to spend time here.

—It's the most important thing for her to raise her baby at home with peace of mind.

Thinking of this, Rebecca turned and left the ward. After She and her group left, the nurse came in with the reconstituted medicine.

Avery said to the nurse, "Give me the medicine. I'll get it for him."

The nurse smiled and said, "Doctor Tate, with you here, we won't have anything to do with it."

Avery : "Look at him."

"Well. Vice President Lewis said the same thing. But how did you let Miss Jobin go?" The nurse asked in a low voice and continued, "You don't know, she gets angry with Vice President Lewis every day and asks questions. Why isn't Mr. Foster awake yet? Our Vice President Lewis is so annoyed by her that we dare not say anything."

"You are afraid of her because you live here. I'm from Aryadelle, so I won't be bothered by her breath." Avery hung the medicine bottle, sterilized the indwelling needle in her hand, and screwed the needle on.

The nurse: "Aren't you afraid that Miss Jobin will trouble you?"

Avery: "If she dared to trouble me, she would have done it yesterday."

"Yes. Doctor Tate, our colleagues all said that Miss Jobin is not as good as you. Mr. Foster will definitely talk to you when he wakes up. You go back to Aryadelle." Seeing Avery's easy-going personality, the nurse started chatting with Avery.

Avery took this opportunity to ask the nurse, "Do you know who the father of the child in Rebecca's womb is? Rebecca said that the child belonged to Elliot, but Elliot told me not to."

The nurse looked embarrassed: "I don't know very well. Although her child was done in our hospital, it was not done in our department."

Avery nodded, expressing understanding.

"But I can go and find out for you. I have a sister in the reproductive department, and she must know the inside information." The nurse said enthusiastically.

Avery had a smile on her face: "Okay, please help me ask."

The nurse: "Well, I don't have time for work at the moment. I'll ask at noon."

"Thank you so much." Avery was in a mood and Couldn't help but got nervous.
