Chapter 207

Chapter 207

“Young people sometimes may forget about manners, yet, as the elders, we have to keep them. They are young, so it’s easy for them to get turned on. I get that, so I’m not blaming them. Besides, it was Lucas’ fault. As a man, he didn’t protect Jessica well.

get the procedures done as soon as possible.

“In that case, the outsiders will only say how much they love each other instead of those harsh words. Mr. Hall, Mrs. Hall, what do you think?”

Justin was talking about Jessica and Lucas being snapped in the hotel.

May secretly spat. She almost couldn’t hold her impulse to curse.

Morgan looked solemn, too. Justin seemed to be talking for Jessica’s good, yet it annoyed Morgan.

It was normal for young couples to sleep outside. Besides, nothing really happened between Jessica and Lucas. Why did Justin picture Jessica as a slut?

“Mr. Thomas, I don’t quite agree with you. Lucas and Jessica are probably the only ones who know how they get along with each other. As elders, it is better for us to not interfere in their choices. I know you mean good for them, but young people nowadays usually have their own thoughts. Your kindness may not end up well.”

Justin’s face stiffened. “Mr. Hall, that’s a good point. But to level with you, I can tell that Lucas is indeed in love with Jessica and Jessica too. Kids from families like ours can rarely marry the one they love. As for me, I’m eager to have a grandkid.”

“I understand! We are parents, too. But my wife and I never interfere with Jessica’s choices. She can do whatever she likes. As long as she chooses what she wants, we will support her.”

Justin knew it wouldn’t be easy. Morgan interrupted him, so Justin didn’t continue. “Mr. Hall, you are right. Since they are going to start a family, they have to be cautious. Life will suffer if one makes the wrong choice.”

Morgan then managed to lead the conversation elsewhere.

When Justin left the Hall’s house, it was already eight o’clock.

As soon as Justin left, May and Morgan showed their annoyed faces.

“What the hell is wrong with this Thomas family? They used to bully my Jess and now they want Jessica to remarry Lucas? Compensation his ass!”

May was furious, and so was Morgan. “This old bastard can really do anything for benefits!”

Morgan was amazed at Justin’s attitude. In the past, Justin was always arrogant. Yet today, he managed to bear May’s sarcasm with a smile.

Justin was indeed willing to do anything to achieve his goal.

But Morgan and May felt so disgusted.

While the Halls were cursing Justin, Justin was cursing them, too.

The car gradually drove out of the villa, and the smile on Justin’s face gradually disappeared. His face then turned cold.

Dwayne saw the change on Justin’s face, but he didn’t dare to say anything.

Justin was so irritated by the Hall couple. He knocked on the ground with his walking stick hard and said, “How dare they pretend to be some big shots in front of me? I’ll see how long they can hang in there!”

With that, Dwayne knew that Justin had come up with another plan.

Dwayne pursed his lips and asked tentatively, “Mr. Thomas, you are saying...?”

“Didn’t they say that they don’t care about the rumors? Since they don’t care about it, I’d like to test where their bottom line is.”

Justin snorted. “Haven’t there been a lot of rumors about Jessica’s private life online recently?”

Dwayne thought for a moment. “Yes. It involves several families.”

“It seems that Jessica isn’t as innocent as she looks. If she weren’t Morgan’s daughter, I would never let Lucas marry her.”

“What do you mean?”

“See if we can let out some news about me visiting Jessica’s parents.”

Chapter 208

Dwayne couldn't help but ask, "But, Mr. Thomas, how will that help us?"

Justin was annoyed by Dwayne's confusion. He glared at Dwayne and said, "Didn't Morgan and his wife say that they didn't give a damn to these rumors? If we spread the news of me visiting the Hall family, the netizens will begin to gossip for sure. Let's see if Jessica's parents can really be as insouciant as they have claimed to be."

Rumors! Their power never faded.

Once the rumor was spread, any clarification from the Hall family would look like a cover story. They would not be able to prove anything.

Dwayne instantly understood. "Now I understand, Mr. Thomas."

Morgan didn't know what Justin was up to. After his anger subsided, he couldn't wait to call Jessica.

Jessica already knew that Justin had gone to New York in the morning. She could guess Justin's intention, but she didn't expect that Justin would even make up a story, saying that she and Lucas were in love.

The truth was Jessica and Lucas never even met these days.

Having heard Morgan's veiled concerns, she sneered and said, "Dad, don't worry. I won't marry into the Thomas family again."

Whether Lucas had fallen in love with Jessica didn't make any difference. As long as Olivia and Justin were there, the Thomas family was the hell that Jessica would avoid by all means.

At first, Morgan still doubted whether Jessica and Lucas had indeed gotten back together since Justin looked quite earnest.

Morgan didn't want his daughter to suffer. He was worried that Jessica might hide her relationship with Lucas from him and his wife out of embarrassment.

Yet Jessica had found out Morgan's intention. Thus, she stated clearly that she would never marry into the Thomas family again.

Still, Morgan was unable to tell whether Jessica meant it or not. He then said, "Jess, if you are really in love with him, Mom and I won't have any objections. We wish nothing but your happiness."

What Morgan said made Jessica feel guilty. Jessica had realized that love couldn't be the only criterion for her marriage now.

In the past, she married Lucas simply out of love.

However, dealing with Lucas' family was complicated. It had made her suffer a lot and even worried Morgan and May.

"No matter what you do, Jess, just remember that Mom and Dad will always be there for you."

"Thank you, Dad."

"It's getting late. Jess, go to bed now. I'll go to sleep, too."

"Okay, good night, Dad."

"Good night, Jess."

After hanging up, Jessica stood on the balcony, unable to calm down for a long time.

It was not because of Justin's shameless action, but the compromise Morgan was willing to make.

Her three-year-long marriage with Lucas had not only cast a shadow over her but also her parents.

Morgan, who had once strongly opposed her relationship with Lucas, had yielded. As long as it was Jessica's choice, Morgan wouldn't oppose it.

Jessica couldn't help but feel ashamed for making her parents worried.

She shouldn't have let that happen.

Jessica took a deep breath and dragged her thoughts to something else.

Justin seemed bent on making Jessica marry Lucas again. No wonder people worshipped money and power.

Jessica sneered, then she turned and walked back into her room.

Although Justin personally made a trip to New York to express his wish for Lucas and Jessica to remarry, he did not make any move after that.

Though Jessica and her parents were quite annoyed, Jessica couldn't do anything since Justin didn't cause any real harm.

Jessica had Wendy look into the whole thing. And Jessica learned that Trissy once went to the Thomas Group to see Thomas, But Jessica didn't know what exactly she met Lucas for.

Lucas promised that he would punish Olivia, yet Jessica didn't hear any progress at all.

Jessica felt a bit disappointed.

Jessica thought perhaps their story could end there. Yet the next day, she met Lucas again at a dinner party.

The guests at the dinner party were all big shots. The Hall Group was currently developing the land in northern LA while these guests each had a say in the procedures the development required. Even if Jessica was Morgan's daughter, she would still have to show her manners at the table.

As the only lady at the table, Jessica inevitably became the focus of other men. They seemed quite excited to urge Jessica to drink.

In less than half an hour, Jessica had already had two glasses of red wine.
