Let me go, Mr. Hill Author: Shallow South Chapter 2770

Chapter 2770

10 minutes later, only five senior managers showed up in the conference room.

When the secretary, Layla, called the rest, they said they were resigning and not working anymore. They did not even want their salary for that month.

The senior manager of the finance department said, " Stop calling them. I can guess the reason why they aren't coming. Someone called me last night and said they would give me half a million dollars if I was willing to switch companies. They'd even introduce me to another company where I'd have a more promising future. If it weren't for me being attached to Neeson Corporation after working here for over 10 years, I would've left too."

"I received that call too. The distributors must've been instigated by those people too," the planning department manager said, she regretted it too.

Senior managers of the company's most important marketing, sales, and public relations departments had all been headhunted. The remaining departments were in a mess too. How could the company continue to survive?

Actually, charity could guess the person who did all of this.

She did not expect the Patterson family to aim for her company immediately.

"If they've left, then so be it. People who can't stay won't be loyal to the company anyway. As long as the company has money, there's no need to worry about it not being able to operate." charity said to the human resource department employee, "It's graduation season soon. You guys can go to universities and hold recruitments. We can increase the salary and benefits we offer. Those university students have just joined the society. They're passionate and have creative ideas. I'll give them a platform to fulfill their dreams. After this, I'll deposit 200 million dollars to the company's account."

The mention of 200 million dollars put the senior managers' hearts at ease. "What about the distributors? Without the distributors, the company won't be able to operate at all."

"The previous distributors couldn't sell our stock when they were with US anyway. The most important thing is to find a suitable endorser, when the products are advertised, good distributors will come to us naturally."

Charity was not hasty at all.

She had money. She did not need to be anxious.

However, she was very frustrated over the matter of the endorser.

After returning to the office, she gave Levi a call.

"Eliza, I've helped you to ask around about this. There were many Olympic gold medallists last year, but they've already signed several endorsement contracts. Those gold medallists are different from the celebrities in the entertainment industry. They usually have training sessions and don't have much time to film commercials unless they're willing to risk their identities as athletes."

"Alright. I'll think of a way." Charity put down her phone. She had a bad headache.

She had taken over Neeson Corporation at the worst possible time.

"President Robbins, Josh Turner's manager is here at our company, she said Josh can sign a contract with us." Layla suddenly walked in and said excitedly, " She's just at the door."

Charity was stunned. "Let her in."

Soon, a slightly obese woman over 40 years old entered the office. "Nice to meet you, President Robbins. I'm Lambert."

"Nice to meet you, Miss Lambert." charity had the secretary serve coffee. "I just heard that Josh is willing to work with US, but our company has contacted you before..."

Miss Lambert smiled resignedly. "Yes. Neeson Corporation hasn't been doing well these few years. Logically speaking, there's no way Josh will be your endorser. However, Josh's mom had a lung tumor a few years ago. It was Doctor Chester Jewell who conducted the surgery that saved Josh's mom's life back then. Josh has owed Doctor Jewell a favor ever since."

Charity figured it out. "So... it was Chester who asked you to come?"

Miss Lambert nodded.

Eliza and Chester's issue had become well-known some time ago.

Everyone thought Chester would get his revenge on Eliza, but things were unclear at that moment.

"Actually, many doctors can treat a lung tumor. However, Doctor Jewell's skills are the best in the medical industry. It's said that the surgeries he takes on will have a success rate of 90 percent no matter how hard it is. Many patients with severe illnesses beg him to perform their surgery, but he's very busy. Josh begged him for a long time back then..."

Miss Lambert sighed and said, "Doctor Jewell eventually said he would perform the surgery for Josh's mother. He hoped Josh would train properly and get a gold medal for the country in the future. Josh could only train in peace because his mom was safe. He won two gold medals this year."

Charity was astonished.

She did not think a cold-blooded and heartless person like Chester would have such patriotic sentiments.

However, as a doctor, his skills were indeed undeniable.

Miss Lambert sighed. "Initially, we really didn't want to work with Neeson Corporation. After all, Neeson Corporation isn't doing well. Our athletes are very particular about choosing endorsements. Money isn't of utmost importance. Mainly, the product has to be good. To be honest, Neeson Corporation's sports products over these years aren't amazing. However, we have to return a big favor like this."

"I deeply apologize."

Charity said sincerely, "We treasure the athletes' talents too. If we get Josh to be our endorser, we'll surely launch our newly developed products."

Currently, we've invested 300 million dollars to specifically research products to achieve a breakthrough. The products this time will surely not be criticized by the public."

"Alright. We'll wait and see."

Miss Lambert was reassured after listening to Charity's words. "President Robbins, I didn't expect you to be doing pretty well after switching industries from filming to business."

"I just know one logic. If a brand wants to reach greater heights, its products and quality must be topnotch," Charity said seriously.

"Let's have a pleasant cooperation. You can inform Josh to come over to shoot commercials after your new products are done."

"Thank you. The new products will take about a month."

Charity and Miss Lambert signed the contract.

After leaving the company, Miss Lambert called Chester's secretary.

Soon, the secretary informed Chester. "President Jewell, Neeson Corporation's Eliza has signed a contract with Josh."

"Good."

Chester nodded. "Have someone keep an eye on Neeson Corporation. Report to me anytime if there are any issues."

The secretary hesitated and said, "The Patterson family seemed to have spent money to headhunt most of Neeson's Corporation's senior managers. Do we need to—"

"No need." Chester gestured to the secretary to leave.

After the door closed, Ken said puzzledly, "since you're helping her, why don't you help her till the end?"

"If I help her in everything, it won't be Eliza managing the company herself. It'll be me laying out a road for her. This definitely isn't what she wants to see. She won't accept it either."

Chester said calmly, "Actually, with her current achievements, she can solve the problem sooner or later even if I didn't help her look for Josh. It's just that she might not choose Josh. Josh is the only athlete with two gold medals in the Winter Olympics this year. Moreover, he's handsome and popular.

With such a tempting offer presented to her, she'll surely be tempted and won't reject it."

Ken understood in an instant. "It means you can lend a hand but only to a certain extent."

"That's right." Chester nodded. "Doing too much will annoy people. Not all women like to have red carpets rolled out for them."

Ken scratched the back of his head.

He found Chester surreal as if he had transformed into another person.

The phone on the table rang at that moment.

Chester saw the word 'charity'. His heart skipped a beat.

Ken left tactfully upon reading the situation.

Chester stood up. He took the phone and picked up the call. "Do you have something to say?"

"Would I have called you if I didn't?" Charity spoke coldly, "About Josh, thank you. But that's as far as it goes. Stop paying attention and meddling in my matters in the future."

Chester said hoarsely, "You could've refused Josh's endorsement if you're so desperate not to get involved with me."

" ... "

Charity choked, which was quite rare.

She knew full well that she should not accept it.

She had clearly stated that she wanted Chester to stay away from her.

However, she still accepted the endorsement that he offered.

Josh was Josh.

He was the only one who won two medals in the Olympic Winter Games this year. He was at the height of his popularity and had good looks. Everyone in the country was fond of him.

She was unable to resist such great temptation.

"Of course, I wouldn't say no to free stuff. I'm not silly." Charity said shamelessly, "But let me remind you that no matter what you do, we'll never get together. I'll never forgive you as well."

"I'm not expecting you to forgive me. I know I'm dirty and don't deserve to be with you."

Chester casually gave a chuckle. "Don't worry. I won't attempt to approach you anymore. Having said that, I'll stand behind you. When you need help, I'll be the first to appear."

Charity's head hurt, "who needs your help?"

"You can turn me down, and that's your business."

Charity breathed in. "Chester, have you been possessed by some spirit?"

"Didn't you ask me why I couldn't tolerate it when you could? Charity, I'm tolerating it. Do you understand? Only now did it hit me that liking requires seizure, whereas love requires control and suppression." Chester forced a laugh.

All of a sudden, charity did not know what to say.

The two of them were quiet for a while before Chester said with a low voice, "charity, why don't we come to an agreement? I won't approach you again, but when you need my help, I'll always be there. I won't get married or look for other women. And you...Don't get into a relationship with other men too, alright?"

If she really got together with another man, Chester knew that he would be jealous and mad. Even so, there was nothing else he could do.

Perhaps he had chosen to demean himself in order to numb himself.

Charity was dumbfounded.

It was probably because she never thought that Chester would make such a request.

She could not help but think about Max.

Max said he hoped that he would be the first person Charity looked for when she wanted to get into a relationship.

For the sake of Max, she could not accept such a ridiculous request.

“Chester, do you mean you want me to never get married, give birth, and get together with other men so that I stay single forever for your sake?” charity could not help but ask, “I hate you, yet you want me to sacrifice my life for you. Is that possible?”

Chester anxiously explained, “Charity, I’ve been making contributions and amends, when you’re lonely, I am too. As you said, you’ve only loved me in your life.”

“You’ve chosen to make contributions and amends, but that’s your business. What gives you the right to drag me down?” charity said icily, “Yes, I’ve only loved you, but that was in the past. I don’t love you anymore. I’m in my 20S, and I’m still young. I have a long way to go. I don’t have a family, so I can’t guarantee how my life will be in the future. Having said that, I’m sure I want a child.”

Chester imagined charity being a mother.

The picture hurt him deeply.

“If I accept your request, I’d be a dumb*ss.”

Charity hung up the call.

In the evening, Charity went home by car after work.

When Steven was driving, she took her phone out of boredom to play PUBG with Freya.

Steven, who was seated in front, suddenly said, “

There’s something wrong with the brake.”

Charity was momentarily stunned. “Someone has tampered with it, huh?”

“Mm. I suppose so.” Steven frowned.
