

Apex Chapter 500

Chapter 500 Who in the World Is He?

After Javier had given Herschel his instructions, Mackenzie suddenly gave him a phone call as well. Mackenzie had always been in charge of dealing with the less-legal affairs within the family, so he was extra sensitive about situations like these. However, he found out about what Javier had just gone through from the Whites, surprisingly

“I was originally planning on sending men to pursue the Whites, but I ended up finding you instead. The Whites are also looking into this matter.”

“The Whites are looking into this as well?”

Javier pondered for a moment and understood what was going on.

‘I’m sure the Whites are planning on finding out who we’re dealing with first. They would be paying attention to whoever this hidden force attacks and then grab onto whatever little lead they might be able to grab ahold of and beat them up first so that they won’t get targeted in the future.’

“Fine, they would actually be of great help to us if they’re willing to get involved.

Now that the Whites were added to the equation, Javier felt he needed to tweak his plans a little.

Before Running Man took action, he first brought Herschel with him to meet up with Loretta.

When they met, Javier went straight to the point. “Hello, we’re from Interpol. We’ve received word that Tony Blaine killed himself after committing arson, so we would like to speak with you to help with our investigation. If needed, we will contact border control and have you booted out of this country so that you can be sent back to your original country to help with the investigation.” Originally, Loretta was rather curious why Interpol was there to see her. But she instantly lost her mind the moment she heard that Tony was involved in arson and had killed himself.

“That’s impossible! Tony’s a really honest man. How could he possibly commit arson!?” Javier was not there to listen to Loretta’s explanation. Instead, he wanted to know the results from her.

Hence, he said, “I have no interest in arguing or explaining whatever’s going on with this case.”

After that, he reached out a hand and brought out the forged documents and information. The words written on the documents were from a foreign language that Loretta would not be able to understand. However, she could see the pictures! Based on the pictures, she could tell that Tony was the deceased and that the photos were from the actual crime scene.

Lorella W. is now in so much shock that her face turned pale, She hurriedly retreated as she w.ivod horld, “I’ve got nothing to do with this! It’s not me! It’s not me!”

J. ivier instantly understood something when he saw how nervous she was,

She obviously knows what’s going on, so it’s time to take the next step,’

“I’m from the police, not your friend or your family, I will only trust the evidence shown in front of me. You claim that you’ve got nothing to do with this matter. I want you to tell me more about it so that I can understand what’s happened.”

“Let me calm down for a moment. I’m still in shock...”

Loretta was slightly frightened, so she retreated to the side of a window. It seemed like she was trying to take in a breath of fresh air.

However, she suddenly jumped out of the window and fled.

Javier had already noticed that something was off with Loretta’s behavior when he told her about Tony’s death.

She had been too calm, as though she already knew he was going to die. Most importantly, she did not seem sad at all.

‘You’re telling me that a woman who could remain as calm as that would get frightened? You’re joking, right?’

Hence, Javier had already predicted that Loretta would try to escape. Alas, she indeed did as he had expected as she fled through the window.

However, Javier was now smiling because there were gunshots from assault rifles being fired,

The noise was clear, and Loretta could see the grass in front of her swaying across the sky, sending her into so much shock she yelled hysterically.

Javier hurriedly rolled out the window and pulled Loretta back inside the house before hiding behind a wooden table.

“Who the hell have you offended? Why have you caused those criminals to fire their guns? They’re obviously here to kill you!”

At that moment, Loretta’s expression was deathly pale. She did not want to run anymore, and that was when she recalled that Javier was from Interpol.

Interpol was a part of the police, so by being near the police, Loretta would be able to ensure her safety. In other words, there was no need for her to run. She even grabbed hold of Javier’s arm.

“You guys need to protect me! Please, you must protect me! I’ll tell you two everything I know!”

“They’ve already given me my money and let me live, so why are they still trying to kill me!? That lying, b*stard!”

Loretta was panicking, so her words made absolutely no sense.

Sull, it was apparent that the words she was uttering at that moment of panic were all the truth.

Javier looked out into the distance, where Running Man and his men had fired their guns to scare Loretta. He knew that he had succeeded.

Hence, with both him and Herschel covering her, they finally managed to “escape” from Running Man and the other criminals’ grasp. While they were escaping, Javier and Herschel even fired some shots for a moment, all aimed at stones or furniture nearby.

It looked like a very intense fight, but nobody was actually hurt since it was all just an act.

After a wild escape, Javier and Herschel brought Loretta with them to a hidden little bar.

The bar was closed for business during the day, so Javier brought Loretta there to talk. By that point, Loretta had chosen to stay by their side, discarding the idea of escaping even though nobody was guarding the exit. After calming down, she said to Javier, “I’ll tell you everything, but you must protect me!” Javier nodded. “Go ahead and tell us whatever you know.” Loretta opened up after Javier gave her his word.

According to her, she used to work as a security guard in her previous company. Later on, she met an astonishingly handsome and rich man in a bar. The middle-aged man had an outstanding temperament that made her fall deeply in love with him at that moment.

Hence, they had had a one-night stand. After that, the middle-aged man had asked Loretta for a favor—that was to look for someone within the factory to help him do something illegal. The criminal charges would not be severe, so they would only be locked up in prison for half a year if they were caught. Initially, Loretta had not wanted to do it, but she could not withstand a two-pronged attack from both the middle-aged man’s charms and the money he was offering. Plus, she would only face half a year in prison if she ended up being caught, which was why she ultimately decided to push Tony Blaine into hell with her, a man she was already having an affair with.

However, Loretta was unsure what the middle-aged man had discussed with Tony.

At the time, Tony had not seemed to be willing to get involved in this. However, Loretta had encouraged him to do so, even saying that they would receive a lot of money and live happily together. After Tony still refused to do it, the middle-aged man’s attitude toward Loretta grew cold, and he even pulled back the amount of money he had been giving her regularly. How could Loretta, a woman who had grown used to living in luxury, be able to return to her bland and normal life at that point? Hence, she had threatened Tony with his son’s life. She had given him an ultimatum—he would either get the job done, or she would drag his son down to hell. Thus, Tony had had no option but to take up the job since the middle aged man assured him it would not be a severe criminal charge and that he would be paid handsomely,

However, Loretta had no idea why Tony would end up running into the fire truck of his own accord after that. She assumed that the middle-aged man had murdered him when she received this news. She had been horrified, but the middle-aged man consoled her by saying she was safe. He had

That was as far as Loretta knew about the situation, which did not seem valuable at all.

In fact, she could not even tell Javier why Tony would choose to kill himself.

Fortunately, that was not important. Instead, what Javier wanted to know the most was who the middle-aged man who had planned all this was.

At that moment, Loretta panicked as she asked, “Who in the world is that middle-aged man who calls himself Javier?”

Javier was instantly stunned. “What did you say the middle-aged man’s name was?”

“Javier! Javier Kersey!” ‘F*ck!