

Chapter 487

Charming Devil Suzanne certainly would not let Javier succeed. At least, not at her workplace. After all, her employees would come in to report their work. It would be outrageous if they get caught! Fortunately, Javier seemed understanding. But he still got to feel her feet a little... The next morning, Javier went to the hospital and talked to Doug about some matters. Be it the hospital, the pharmaceutical factory, or other ongoing development, Doug managed them very well.

Javier had high regard for him because of that. Doug was talented indeed. His way of working was very similar to that of Chad. It was no wonder he was Chad's secretary.

Doug lacked attention to detail, but fortunately, it was not a huge problem. After chatting with Doug for some time, the latter went to the bathroom because of an upset stomach. Javier waited in the office. After a while, the door suddenly opened, even though no one knocked. Javier thought Doug had returned, but surprisingly, it was Mikaela.

Mikaela clearly did not expect to see Javier here either. She was a little embarrassed when she saw him.

On the other hand, Javier did not really care. Since he had made up his mind not to sleep with her, he did not have any indecent thoughts. "Mr. Kersey, you came here to talk to Doug?" "Yeah. Doug went to the bathroom. I'm waiting for him." "Oh," Mikaela said. She did not say anything else. Obviously, it was slightly weird for them to be in a room filled with awkward silence. Javier started the conversation, and he talked about Oliver. Mikaela finally opened up a little more when they talked about Oliver. At least, it was not as awkward as it was. After a while, Doug came back Mikaela went out to talk to him about some private affairs. She then left after greeting Javier. Doug seemed very happy about what Mikaela said. He was beaming when he entered the room. Javier asked him with a smile, "What's up? Do you have good news?" Doug scratched his head, looking a little embarrassed. "It's amazing news indeed. I thought I'd invite you when the time came, but there's no point hiding it anymore since you asked. You know that Mikki and I registered our marriage, right? I asked her to check the dates, and she said that the sixth of next month would be a good time. "So, we decided to hold the wedding on the sixth of next month. But don't you worry, boss. I'll never let it affect my work. Absolutely not. I'll take three days off at most, and I'll arrange all the work before and after my wedding." Javier chuckled. "This is amazing news. Why are you rushing it? If you really can't do it, I can transfer someone over here to fill in for you for a month. You should take Ms. Holmes abroad. Aren't honeymoons popular now?"

Doug quickly waved his hand. "No, no, no, boss. Please don't."

Javier understood what Doug meant. "Don't worry, I won't take your title away. When you return, the business will still be yours."

Doug felt a little embarrassed that Javier had seen through his thoughts.

But still, he said, "Boss, I know you value me, and you'll always take care of me, but it really isn't necessary. I've already told Mikki that it'd be inappropriate for me to get married at such an early stage, but because we're not young anymore, so... "But don't worry, boss. I did talk to Mikki about it. Three days is enough for our wedding. Moreover, it's going to be Mikaela's second marriage. She doesn't want to make a big deal out of it, so that's quite nice. When I have time in the future, I'll travel around with Mikki then."

Since Doug insisted, Javier did not say anything anymore. After talking about some serious business, he called Herschel and asked him to help prepare gifts. His direct employee would get married after all. As the boss, he should at least gift something. Herschel happily accepted his request, but soon, he told Javier about something that made him concerned.

Herschel said on the phone, "Boss, I didn't find any dirt on Suzanne, but I found out that her social security number was fake. She stole the identity of a local woman. I'm watching that woman now. In fact, she's raising her children and herding cows!" Javier was stunned. He had helped Suzanne solve the patent matter, so he never doubted her identity. But now, he found out that Suzanne had somehow faked her identity.

He left Doug's office and lit a cigarette as he asked Herschel for more information.

"I checked all the information about Suzanne. All the information about her relatives is accurate. She's the only one that isn't. Let's just say she's using the identity of the real Suzanne Quinn, so all the information about the real Suzanna Quinn's relatives is obviously accurate,

"They are almost completely identical, except for their ID photos." Javier came to realize that the Suzanne he knew was just "smoke and mirrors". She had taken the real Suzanne's identity and information. She was an impostor who was out doing things while the real Suzanne was living deep in the mountains, raising her children and herding cows.

It was certainly very surprising, but also very interesting. Suzanne, who had been doing scientific research abroad for a long time, obviously wasn't doing it on purpose to plot against Javier. Thus, what was Suzanne plotting? And why was she using someone else's identity and information? What exactly was she trying to do? Javier could not figure everything all at once, and he had not obtained further information.. He then asked Herschel to secretly arrange for someone to go abroad to investigate where Suzanne once lived. He had to find out everything about Suzanne. He believed that no one would want to sleep beside someone who they had no idea who they truly were. That was especially for Javier, the son of a renowned family. How would he know what Suzanne's actual intentions were? After he hung up on Herschel, Suzanne called. "Hey, Suzy. What's up? Do you miss me already?" Javier remained calm and pretended not to know anything. On the other end of the phone, Suzanne said angrily, "What are you talking about? It's almost time to get off work. Didn't you say that you'd pick up my employees and take them to the hotel this afternoon? I'm just reminding you so you'll remember. If you lie to them, they're going to hate you to death!" Javier would not die from getting hated, but it would certainly break their trust. He hurriedly got up and left the hospital. He drove his custom SUV in front and personally led four buses to the R&D center. When he got there, they happened to have just gotten off work. He picked up the group of off-duty researchers. Suzanne got into Javier's car. They talked and laughed along the way. Javier still behaved as he would, flirting with Suzanne from time to time. Suzanne's pretty face would flush from all the teasing. She even got angry and pouted several times. It was strangely cute and charming. Javier was puzzled. Why exactly was Suzanne, such a charming devil, pretending to be someone else?
