

Chapter 482

Please Be Mindful of Your Behavior Javier had never heard of the name Audrey Mendez before, but he had heard of a person called Audrey Bitoni. Audrey Bitoni is a pornstar ranked somewhere around the top 100 in the world. Javier sniffed his palm after shaking Audrey's hand and said, "Yup, you're quite fragrant like your name."

Audrey was startled for a moment but quickly revealed a smile. Javier had just teased her, and other ordinary women would probably be feeling frustrated at that moment, if not furious.

However, Audrey felt no such thing. After all, she had been running the hotel for a long time, so it was only natural for her to have come across all kinds of people. She had even heard vulgar words in the past, so Javier's words meant nothing to her.

Instead, she smiled and asked, "How many rooms would you like to book, Mr. Kersey? What sort of requirements do you have?" Since they were now discussing business, Javier recollected his flirty emotions and put on a serious expression. "Let's begin from your best rooms. I want 100 rooms in total, starting from your best."

Javier's sudden seriousness actually left Audrey feeling a little surprised. There were only a total of a little over 100 rooms in Hotel Garcia, so Javier would basically be buying them all out.

In fact, Javier only seemed to be in his mid-twenties, so Audrey was left wondering how he could afford so much money and why he needed so many rooms.

However, as a woman who had gone through many years of experience in her line of business, Audrey knew not to make decisions based on her initial judgments decisively.

She maintained the smile on her face and said, "Mr. Kersey, if you require that many rooms, I'm going to need you to book us beforehand and pay a deposit. After all, I can't just send all my customers away if you say you'd like to move in today, can I?" Audrey's answer was very professional, and Javier immediately understood. Hence, he nodded and said, "Sure, I can pay the deposit for all the rooms. That won't be a problem. All I need from you is to arrange the rooms as quickly as possible so that I can house my guests."

Audrey was instantly startled. She never expected Javier to be serious about booking her hotel rooms.

"He's trying to book 100 rooms, which is almost everything I have to offer! After running this place for five years, I've never come across such a huge amount of business!"

Still suspicious, Audrey asked Javier to give her a moment while she gave her reception desk a phone call. After a moment, someone from the reception arrived with a POS in her hands. Javier immediately understood what was happening and took out his banking card. Without even asking how much deposit he needed to pay, he directly made an upfront payment of 80 thousand dollars.

A room in Hotel Garcia was not that cheap, with a standard room priced at 65 dollars minimum. At that price, 100 rooms would cost 6,500 dollars per night. Hence, the 80 thousand dollars Javier was paying was not actually that much.

However, just this amount alone was enough to leave Audrey in shock

She wholeheartedly assumed that Javier did not have the money, but who knew he would end up paying 80 thousand dollars as a deposit?

Even the lady from the reception was shocked. She had never seen someone paying a deposit for that many rooms before!

>

>

After Audrey called out to the lady, she regained her senses and hurriedly printed out the receipt, stamped it, and handed it over to Javier. When she left, Javier chuckled and asked, "Do you now believe that I'm not messing around?" Audrey felt slightly embarrassed at the fact that her thoughts had been read. However, she did not show it on her expression but politely smiled and said, "Surely you jest, Mr. Kersey. You're a customer of mine, so how could I possibly think of you like that? By the way, when are your guests going to arrive?" "The earlier, the better."

Audrey nodded. "I understand. I've checked through our system just now, and the customer who will be checking out the latest is tomorrow, so I'll have all 100 rooms you've paid for ready by tomorrow afternoon for your guests to check-in."

Everything was completed quickly since Javier had made the payment at the corresponding speed, so it all proceeded smoothly.

Now that their official business was over, Javier's flirty mood returned and began acting up again. Audrey was very beautiful, after all. She had silver high-heeled shoes on with black transparent stockings, which revealed her fair skin beneath them. Seeing this, Javier could not help but feel an urge rising inside of him. Hence, he walked up to Audrey and lustfully said, "Now then, Miss Mendez...Seeing how I've booked so many rooms in one go, don't you think you should give me some kind of benefit?" Audrey had been courted and teased before but never had anyone flirted with her with such relentless eyes.

Even she could tell that the benefit Javier was referring to was none other than herself, which left her feeling slightly annoyed.

Nevertheless, since Javier was an esteemed guest, she could only force a smile and say, "You're our esteemed guest, Mr. Kersey, so of course, we'll be providing you with the best services possible. Don't worry, I'll give you a 20% discount and give you our VIP card. So long as Hotel Garcia is still in operation, you will be able to eat and stay here for free."

She's rather good at doing business, but that's not what I want.' Javier took another step closer, leaving Audrey with her back against her desk and nowhere to retreat. In fact, as Javier approached closer and closer, she leaned her back further behind so that her face was not anywhere close to Javier's range of attack. She felt embarrassed but mostly frustrated. Her expression was now filled with anger. She then gnashed her teeth, and her eyes almost spewed fire. "Please be mindful of your behavior, Mr. Kersey!"

Javier merely shook his head. "Sorry, I can't be mindful because of how sexy you are. You're so charming that the moment I laid eyes upon you, I couldn't help but think about how I'd have you in my arms as we did it.

“Please forgive me for being so direct, but it’s because I got seduced by another woman so badly, but she wouldn’t let me have her. However, I can’t force my way onto her because of how much I like her. As such, I can only target you to release this burning urge of mine.”

Javier had been very cultural with his words, but his tone was very rough and relentless.

Audrey was so frustrated that she almost flipped. She reached out her hands to try and push Javier away, but the moment she raised them, Javier ended up holding on to them and locking fingers with her hands as though they were both passionately in love. Without allowing Audrey to respond, Javier deliberately rubbed his body against hers until Audrey felt her body burning up. Her beautiful face instantly turned bright red, so much that it probably could have bled out. “Won’t you let me have some benefit, Miss Mendez? I really want it very much.” Javier had leaned in very close to Audrey as he spoke, enraging her. “Let go of me, you *sshole! Otherwise, I’m calling the police!” Audrey thought that she could break free with the police as her leverage, but Javier did not seem to care in the slightest.. “I won’t stop you if you want to report to the police, but before that, I hope you’ll be able to calm down and enjoy our time together.” After that, Javier did not even give Audrey a chance to refuse as he directly pressed her against her desk.