

Episode 457

I Didn't Know You Were Packing So Much Sometimes, a pause at the wrong time could indeed scare someone to death!

Just as Javier was pondering how it was possible for a headless woman to knock on his door, the person outside his door sneezed.

Then, they went on to say, "Alyssa's door is locked. Do you know where she's gone?"

Rendered absolutely speechless, Javier opened the door and realized that it was Suzanne.

Suzanne's stomach did not seem to agree with the food provided by the hotel, so she planned on asking Alyssa out to have dinner together, but the latter was nowhere to be found.

Javier replied, "Could she be in Herschel's room?"

Suzanne's face turned slightly red. She was wondering how the two of them had been able to get it on again when they'd only just reunited.

Javier then added, "How about I accompany you instead? I'm coincidentally feeling a little hungry anyway."

Initially, Suzanne did not intend on agreeing. However, she changed her mind in the end when she recalled the recent events and felt that she would be safer with Javier around.

Thus, the two of them left the hotel and took a stroll nearby. They then stopped by a restaurant and went inside.

Javier and Suzanne began talking about Alyssa during dinner.

"When did she join your team?"

Suzanne pondered it for a moment. "More than a year ago, I think. A year and a half, at least." Javier acknowledged this and then asked, "Have you noticed who she usually hangs around with?"

Suzanne looked slightly stunned before she said, "Are you suspecting that she's the one who leaked out the information?"

Javier had already experienced first-hand how intelligent Suzanne was, so he did not keep everything from her.

"To tell you the truth, Alyssa's gone missing. She disappeared the moment she entered the hotel, so I sent Herschel to investigate."

"What?"

Suzanne felt slightly surprised, not understanding why Alyssa would disappear all of a sudden. In fact, she did not think that Alyssa was the spy. Javier placed the pieces of steak he had cut up for Suzanne on her plate before cutting up his own piece.

“I think you place so much trust in Alyssa that you didn’t notice anything unreasonable about her. For example, you said that she seduced someone. Don’t you think someone would suspect you if you were the one to seduce someone instead?”

There was no need for Javier to be too direct to make his point, as he was facing a smart woman.

Suzanne immediately pondered the fact that Alyssa had claimed she had gotten hold of a cell phone through seduction. “Are you saying that she contacted you on her own because she knew that we wouldn’t be able to remain in hiding for much longer? Did she tell you of her own accord so that she could gain your trust?”

Javier waved his hand. “That’s not what I meant. It’s just a logical assumption that can’t be verified before Alyssa’s found.”

Suzanne remained silent for a moment before she suddenly asked, “Did you confine Alyssa?!”

Javier raised his head and looked at Suzanne’s beautiful eyes. “Do you think I’d hide it from you if I really had confined her?”

Suzanne then recalled the amount of power Javier had demonstrated earlier and partially understood just how powerful he was.

“I suppose you’re right. You’ve already proven that you’re powerful enough by contacting so many local military forces to come and save us, so there’s no need for you to hide anything from me.”

Javier had not explained that he was the one who had gathered these over 3,000 men, and Suzanne had thought they were local military based on how organized they were.

‘That’s an even better assumption. At least the research team wouldn’t accidentally spill the truth and cause unnecessary trouble.’ Then, the two of them carried on talking about Alyssa during dinner.

According to Suzanne, there was not much to Alyssa aside from her tendency to be a little carefree and have a lot of boyfriends.

Javier then had her think a little deeper and recall who Alyssa had been in contact with and whether there had been anyone out of the ordinary.

Suzanne suddenly felt a little frightened after thinking a little deeper.

“I have indeed been spending time with her every day, and her relationships are really messy. But...Now that I think of it, aside from Herschel, I don’t know a single one of her boyfriends... She’s been deliberately hiding them from me. From everyone...” Suzanne could think of things that could prove that there was something wrong with Alyssa, but nothing specific.

Fortunately, Javier had not placed a lot of hope on Suzanne providing him with any hints. Instead, he just treated this as casual small talk, and any leads would be a bonus, nothing more

When they were both full, they left the restaurant and walked side by side on the streets.

“I’ve already made the necessary flight arrangements. You will all be sent back to your country at 9 a.m. tomorrow.”

“But what about our passports? They’ve all been...Ow!” Someone suddenly slammed into Suzanne as she spoke, causing her to fall on Javier. The person who had slammed against her seemed like a criminal, as the police were chasing after him.

However, Javier could not be bothered to care about the criminal at that moment. Instead, he grabbed onto Suzanne after she was knocked over so that she did not fall.

And just like that, Suzanne was now tightly held in Javier’s arms. He could smell her fragrance and feel the heat coming from her curvy body.

Of course, the most sensitive part he felt was her chest pressing against his, which felt very exciting.

Javier leaned in close to Suzanne’s ear and whispered, “I didn’t know you were packing so much.”

Suzanne felt very embarrassed , especially after Javier commented on her chest right against her ear.

Realizing that Suzanne was trying to break free with a red face, Javier asked, “Why are you being so shy? You’re going to be mine sooner or later anyway.”

Suzanne immediately shot an angry glare at him. “What kind of nonsense are you on about? Stop spewing nonsense!”

Although she was angry, Suzanne seemed more and more attractive, leaving Javier with the urge to forcefully hold her in his arms and have his way with her. Very powerfully, in fact. When they returned to the hotel, Javier pushed her against her room door as soon as they arrived.

Too

Or as soon

“I want you, Suzy.” There was no pause between his words, which caused Suzanne’s face to turn bright red.

In fact, she found it hard to control herself as she felt Javier’s hurried, passionate breaths. She also had a feeling she had never felt before welling within her heart.

She could not tell what that feeling was, but it was causing her to panic and feel helpless, as she had no idea what she should do.

Meanwhile, Javier obviously did not need her to take the initiative. He was already leaning in to kiss her on the neck.

Suzanne panicked even more, not knowing what to do with her hands. On top of that, her neck was feeling extremely itchy.

Right at that moment, a sudden “beep” came from the door, signaling that it had been opened thanks to her card key accidentally being pressed against the scanner.

Suzanne instantly regained her senses and hurriedly hid inside her room, closing the door.

She leaned against the door and panted. Her fair hands were tightly pressed against her face, and she realized that her palms were really hot.

“Javier, you idiot...You *sshole!”

Suzanne was cursing Javier inside, while the latter returned to his room with a smile on his face.

He knew that Suzanne’s thoughts were now jumbled up, so he was going to progress with her extremely quickly from now on.

‘Who knows. I might just be able to succeed tomorrow.’

Javier returned to his room as he had this exciting thought.

However, the moment he returned to his room, he immediately recomposed himself and made a call in order for an investigation to be conducted

He wanted to investigate all of Nathaniel’s financial trades until five years ago, as well as Alyssa’s phone records

He wanted to investigate everything that could be investigated He wanted to uproot the entire force hiding in the darkness!