

When His Eyes Opened by Simple Silence Chapter 1999

“Don’t be rude. I’m also afraid of my own accident! Do you know how much risk I took to come out to meet you? To put it in a bad way, I think our family is cursed.” Emilio whispered.

“Aren’t you more crow-mouthed? If I cursed you just now, then you directly cursed your whole family.” Avery glanced at his bodyguard not far away, and then said to Emilio, “Let’s talk here today. If something happens in the future, please call.”

“Avery, I forgot to say something just now.” Emilio looked at her profile and called to her, “It’s been so long since I haven’t seen you, you are still the same as before, young, beautiful and full of energy.”

Avery asked A layer of goosebumps: “I thought you were a little different from before, but now it seems that I was wrong.”

“I praise you, why are you talking about me?” Emilio didn’t understand what was wrong with what he said.

“I will be very happy when others praise me. If you praise me, I feel sick all over.” Her body reacted instinctively, and she was helpless, “If there is nothing else in the future, we will not meet again.”

After Avery got into the car, the bodyguard quickly drives away.

Emilio frowned, watching her car disappear from sight.

“Boss, this woman is so ignorant! When have you ever been so angry? If you see her again in the future, don’t pay attention to her.” The assistant complained to Emilio.

When His Eyes Opened by Simple Silence Chapter 2000

“Don’t compare Avery with other women! You don’t know how powerful Avery is, I know. My elder brother’s illness, maybe Avery can be cured.” Emilio strode into the car, The assistant followed.

“Since Avery can cure your eldest brother, why doesn’t your father ask Ms. Tate to treat your brother? Isn’t your father partial to your brother?” The assistant asked.

The corners of Emilio’s mouth rose, smiling without answering.

When Avery came home, she planned to go back to the bedroom to take a nap.

But as soon as she entered the room and saw the Jones family's information on the bedside table, she was instantly refreshed.

She took the documents to the window, sat in a chair, and looked at the bright sun outside the window.

Meeting with Emilio today made her more interested in the Jones family.

Although Emilio said that Travis Jones didn't like men, it was impossible to kidnap Elliot, but Avery wanted to read all the information before deciding whether to believe what Emilio said.

In the evening.

Mike and Hayden returned home together.

The nanny has already made dinner.

"Where's Avery?" Mike asked the nanny in confusion when he didn't see Avery.

The nanny replied with a smile, "Miss Tate went back to the room after she came back in the afternoon. She never came out. I don't know if she was resting or doing something else. I didn't dare to disturb her."

Mike went to Avery's room. Without thinking, he knocked on the door, and opened the door.

On the bay window of her room, the documents he printed for Avery were scattered.

It seemed that she had been in the room all afternoon watching gossip.

"Avery, come out to eat!" Mike said, walking to her.

Avery was looking at the notebook now, not knowing what she was looking up.

"Oh...Okay! Is Hayden back?" Avery closed the notebook and stood up from the chair.

"Mom, I'm back." Hayden stood at the door and answered Avery's question.

Avery put a smile on her face and strode to her son.

"I just saw the email that Professor Steven Lafrance sent me." Avery took his son's arm and said happily, "He praised you. He praised you in heaven and earth. He graduated there."

Hayden: "That's because he wants to retire. Now he has only me as a student."

Avery: "..."

Hayden: "Mom, let's eat first!"

Avery: "Okay."

The three sat down in the dining chairs.

Mike asked Avery, "Did you meet the second son of the Jones family, do you have any clues?"

Avery was about to answer when the bodyguard hurried in outside the door.

The bodyguard: "Boss, I have your express."

Avery looked at the express in the bodyguard's hand –

before the bodyguard delivered the express to Avery, Mike took the express in his hand and tore the seal.

Avery saw that Mike took out two photos from inside...

"Whose photos?!" Avery said alertly.

After Mike took a look at the photo, he stood up in a jiffy and exclaimed, "...Elliot!"