Chapter 1639

Chapter 1639

He wasn't expecting to find out that Julianna had been locked up in the black market. He was well aware of what kind of place the black market was. If news of his daughter being there was leaked, her future would be ruined.

He was going to make a police report when his assistant brought over a flash drive. "Sir, someone asked to hand this to you."

Joshua took it and waved for his assistant to leave. He hesitated before plugging it into his computer. It was surveillance footage. It clearly showed how the people from the black market had caught his daughter, and his face turned dark.

At that moment, in the car parked not too far away from Julianna's home, Nollace looked out the window.

Edison got into the car and looked into the mirror. "Sir, I've handed the flash drive."

Nollace looked back in and rolled up the window. "Did she leak the news about Julianna in the black market?"

'She' was referring to Lisa.

Edison nodded. "After she escaped, I found out that she went to a hotel and withdrew $800. I checked her bank account. Someone has been sending money to her in the past few years."

Nollace rested his head on his hand. "I guess the person who was behind her had always been in contact with her."

Edison couldn't believe that such a young lady would have so much planned.

She had become part of the Knowles just by saving Tristan, and if Nollace hadn't been careful with her, she would have gotten her way.

After escaping from the black market, she spread the news about Julianna and tried to ruin her reputation.

Julianna's father would definitely look into it, and Lisa might even get a chance to turn things around because of that.

Fortunately, Nollace turned this to his advantage and disrupted her plan and handed the footage to Joshua, showing him who was behind his daughter falling into the hands of those people.

Suddenly, Nollace got a message from Freyja. He read it, and his face dropped immediately. The anonymous post made Daisie the talk of the town. Everyone learned about what Julianna had gone through in the black market and thought Daisie was behind it.

Everyone in Daisie's class looked at her with hostility, as if she had committed a crime.

Since the students weren't willing to perform with Daisie, the professor had to get her to stop attending classes until it blew over. Daisie walked out of the hall and bumped into Nollace at the door.

She paused. "You... heard?"

He stopped in front of her and pulled her into his arms. His voice came from above her head. "I'm sorry." His eyes were cold because he should have realized Lisa was coming for Daisie. She ruined Julianna's reputation so she couldn't go to school and pinned it on Daisie. As long as Julianna didn't show up, Daisie wouldn't be able to explain herself. It looked like Lisa had gotten away with things easy the previous time. Daisie was curious. "Why are you apologizing?"

Nollace snapped back and rubbed his chin on her head. "As your boyfriend, letting you get into this sort of trouble would be my fault."

Daisie pressed her lips together, and after a long while, she looked at him. "But Julianna..." "She's fine." Daisie was surprised. "Fine?"

But wasn't she...

Seeing Daisie's expression, Nollace ran his fingers over her cheeks. "Nothing happened to her in the black market. She was just locked up for a few days, but someone took the chance to spread a rumor."

Daisie looked at him. "How did you know?"

Nollace didn't answer.

If he told Daisy he was behind it, he was afraid she might be afraid of him and might stay away.

He only showed Daisy the positive side and kept the cruel side for the rest of the world. He never wanted to let Daisy know his dark side or the tactics he used.

But the way Daisy looked at him, her clear eyes were so pure he didn't dare look into them. He was afraid that he would see his actual self through them.

He raised his hand and covered her eyes. "Don't look at me that way." Daisy pushed him away. "Why not?" Nollace leaned in and joked. "If you continue staring, I'll kiss you." That worked. Daisy stopped staring while she blushed. After sending Daisy back to the dormitory and when Nollace was leaving, someone stared at him from afar. Nollace walked over. "How long have you been standing here, Mr. Goldmann?" Colton crossed his arms and coldly said, "How did you let Lisa that disaster out? Why didn't you tie her up properly?" He knew when something happened to his sister. He had found the anonymous post, and it was posted by one of Lisa's accounts. Nollace loosened his watch. "Lisa no longer lives with us." Colton frowned but didn't speak.

"I'll settle the matter with Lisa, but there's something I need your help with." Nollace walked closer and whispered something to him.

Coleman paused, then smirked. "I'm not helping you." Nollace smiled. "It's all for Daisy."

The next day, the school posted a new post.

There was a new shocking video. In the video, it wasn't Julianna but another girl. Someone recognized the girl from the video. "Isn't that the adopted girl of the Knowles?" Poh that's disgusting! How could she do that?"

I

do nas treniawathad bato the clawroom walls everyone was waxching the video. They were shocked by the content of the video.

Freyja showed Daisy the video on her phone. "Do you want to watch?" Daisy took over the phone suspiciously. "What am I watching?" What she saw repulsed her. She pushed the phone away. "Why did you show me that!" Freyja suddenly laughed. "You know the girl in the video." Daisy hesitantly took another look after hearing that and was stunned. "That's..."

Lisa! Freyja sat in her seat. "Nothing happened to Julianna in the black market. It was Lisa, and it has been cleared." Seeing how Daisy was still stunned, she put her chin on her hand. "Why? Do you feel sorry for Lisa?" Daisy didn't speak Freyja continued. "There's nothing to feel sorry about. She asked Julianna to save her but betrayed her when she was in trouble and caused Julianna to be caught. She even spread a rumor about Julianna to ruin her reputation and pinned it on you!

"This might have been you, but Julianna was too dumb."

Lisa had set the trap for Daisy. She thought that if she lied to Julianna and let her confront Daisy, the latter would feel guilty.
