

The Ace at the Apex by Nine Linked Rings Chapter 655 ReadOnline

Chapter 655 How Could You Do Such a Thing? Jennie turned around to look at Javier, hoping she would be able to read his emotions.

Unfortunately, she could not read anything from his serene expression.

She could not tell what Javier wanted from her, which left her feeling slightly uneasy.

Still, she probed by asking, "I'll pay your company a sum of money as a fee. Moreover, I'll pay whatever fees are necessary for the royalty of using your company name. We're all in this business for the sake of earning more money instead of tarnishing your company's reputation. So, you stand nothing to lose here." Javier nodded and said, "Sure. Go ahead and strip yourself naked. I'll pay you 30 dollars after I'm done looking at you." Jennie was furious at the ridiculousness of Javier's concept.

However, Javier did not think it to be ridiculous. "I think this is a very common thing since you're gorgeous and have got a nice physique. So, I just want to see how sexy and enchanting you are to satisfy my curiosity and desires. "Meanwhile, you won't suffer any actual losses. Plus, you'll be able to receive 30 dollars for doing nothing.

"It's exactly what you just said. We're all in this business to earn more money. Since I'm not going to be tarnishing you, you stand nothing to lose." Although Jennie was a strong debater, she was now rendered speechless after Javier used her point of view to retaliate.

Indeed, what Javier said may have been a little crude and lewd, but its logic was the same as hers.

Jennie remained silent for a while as she sat on the front passenger's seat. Finally, she asked, "What do you want then?"

Javier replied, "It's simple. I'm going to sue you all and get compensated." Jennie instantly shook her head. "You mustn't sue us! Please, you can't!" Of course, she could not allow this to happen. If Reivaj Construction were to get sued, compensating Reivaj Group would be the least of their problems when their reputation would be severely affected.

Should their clients realize they weren't affiliated with Reivaj Group, they would want to get to the bottom of having someone take responsibility and revoke all of their partnerships. The entire company Jennie had built and pioneered would be finished when this happened! At that moment, the Cullinan arrived at an abandoned storehouse in the suburbs with no one to be seen.

Javier stopped the car and looked at Jennie. "Tell me then...How will we resolve this if I shouldn't sue you?"

Jennie pondered for a while and still felt it would be better if they could pay Reivaj Group a certain amount of money and continue using their name.

However, Javier waved his hand. "That's never going to happen, so forget it.

"If you can't come up with any ideas, I can help you suggest one.

"Take your legal team with you and your relevant contracts and documents to my company's headquarters. After that, look for Chad and talk about an acquisition.

"After Chad gives you a contract to sign on, your troubles will be solved, and you will officially be on the right side."

Jennie wanted to laugh when she heard this, but all she could do was curl her lips into a smile.

She was well aware that the price they would be acquired at was going to be pitifully low since they were the ones who offended Reivaj Group first.

Even if Reivaj Group did not have any evidence to prove that Reivaj Construction was an impostor, the group itself would be able to eliminate Reivaj Construction easily. Because of this, Jennie genuinely could not bring herself to smile. All of her petty tricks were no longer useful in this situation.

After thinking about it for a long time, she still remained silent, not knowing how she could resolve this issue.

Meanwhile, Javier was not interested in letting her remain silent for much longer, so he turned around to look at her.

"I think this is the better option for you. I believe you understand very well what kind of people Jackson and his father are, and neither is a decent man.

"I've already looked into it and found that you're the person legally registered to the company, while Jackson and his father are the financial directors. This means you'll be the one to be prosecuted the moment the company gets in trouble, but those two will keep all the money.

"You seem to be a pretty smart woman, so I'm sure you know what's happening, don't you?"

Jennie mockingly smiled. "You're the chairman of your company, yet you're resorting to petty tricks like trying to drive a wedge between us? Are you being serious right now?"

Javier was smiling inside. "Me? Driving a wedge between you lot? Oh, my sweet Jennie, you really are an intriguing woman. Let me ask you this then, would I have to use this trick in order to bring Reivaj Construction down to the ground?"

Jennie was instantly stunned at that question.

She had to admit that Javier would not need to use any trick whatsoever if he wanted to wipe Reivaj Construction out of existence.

Would a lion need to disguise itself to hunt a lamb? Of course not!

Suddenly, Jennie sensed Javier might be doing all this...for her own good.

Javier took some documents and hurled them against Jennie's skin-tone stockings that covered her slender legs.

Jennie took a look through the documents, turning increasingly furious the more she read them.

The documents consisted of photos of Jackson and his biological mother together. Most importantly, the photos were recent and showed how loving his biological mother and father were together, seeming like a normal family.

"You thought he got a divorce to marry you in the same year, but that's far from the truth.

"In reality, you're just a scapegoat who's been included in their scheme to take the fall. Once I expose your company, the only ending for you is to be sent to prison. Still, you're being considerate toward the Linwoods despite knowing all this. You're such a nice woman!"

Javier may have only said a few sentences, but every one of them pierced through Jennie's heart like a stake. She had always thought that her husband was a wonderful man who would never have ulterior motives.

Frankly speaking, her husband was s*xually incompetent, so it was only natural that Jennie was not with him for this aspect. Instead, she loved him because she thought he genuinely loved her back and admired her.

She had never been with a man before, so she did not know what it would feel like. On the contrary, she had been under the impression that her current life with her husband was pretty carefree and relaxed.

On top of that, thanks to her intelligence, her stepson, Jackson, was especially obedient toward her, or so she thought...All of this contributed to why she felt happy and content with her life at the time.

Unfortunately, all of this was far from the truth. Jennie was not that intelligent of a woman as her stepson was not being obedient to her, and her husband was definitely a scheming person. The entire family had played her for a fool or a scapegoat, in Javier's own words... At that thought, Jennie was so furious that she was in tears. "How could they do this to me!?"

Jennie may not have understood why, but Javier did. "Why shouldn't they do this to you?"

"We now live in a society where personal benefits trump everything. Everyone, even friends, has ulterior motives that are inclined toward benefits. A friend may buy you a drink, but they expect you to buy them a meal in return. Go ahead and try letting them buy you meals three times consecutively and see if there will be a fourth. "So, if even relationships between friends are like this, imagine what relationships with others would be like!"

Thus, there was no reason at all for the Linwoods to treat Jennie so kindly...Unless they had an ulterior motive!

After being furious, Jennie turned around to look at Javier. "Why are you telling me all this? What do you want out of this?" Javier said nothing and cast his gaze directly toward Jennie.

Chapter 655 How Could You Do Such a Thing?

He looked at her voluptuous chest, long legs, and slender waist... 'I think I will get a huge rush if I hold her in my arms as we do something about it...'

The Ace at the Apex by Nine Linked Rings Chapter 656 ReadOnline

Chapter 656 How Dare You Ruin My Plans!? "W-What are you doing!?" Jennie felt frightened when she looked at Javier's fiery and passionate gaze. In the next instant, Javier suddenly shifted his gaze toward the glove box in front of Jennie and reached out.

Jennie was shocked and thought Javier would do something to her, so she hurriedly opened the door and fled.

It was not until she had gotten out that she realized... "Javier was only planning on opening his glove box!" Javier opened up the glove box, which contained a bank card and two flight tickets. "There are 3 million dollars in the card, and these flight tickets are to Sammius.

"I've looked into your background and found that your mother's illness isn't terminal. Instead, the Linwoods have never intended on curing her, so there's no need for you to think about how well they've been treating you all this time. On the contrary, they've been taking advantage of you countless times." Jennie was shocked upon listening to this. She never thought that Javier would investigate her so thoroughly.

Javier continued. "I've already contacted the hospital for you. Take this money and fly over to Sammius with your mother to have her cured. After that's done, give me a phone call, and I'll help you arrange for a new job. "You're still a capable leader up to a certain extent, so you shouldn't worry about work because it'll be enough to allow you and your mother to live a wonderful life."

Jennie was momentarily stunned after hearing all this before asking, "What do you want then? Are you doing all this just to sleep with me once?"

Javier scoffed. "Do you see yourself being worth that much money?"

Javier's straightforwardness left Jennie feeling embarrassed, but it was a fact that she had overthought her value.

She did not even think she was worth 3 million dollars for a single night.

After that, Javier said, "Have your legal representative's name changed to Doug Leigh. I've already arranged for him to fly over here from Reivaj Group. He'll be your liaison for matters like this. I don't want you to say anything about the company, nor are you to tell anyone else anything

"Meanwhile, Doug will be fully in charge of taking over the company's assets, so that's nothing for you to worry about."

Jennie thought about it for a long time before finally agreeing to do it. She wholeheartedly agreed with the path Javier had paved for her, which was indeed the most suitable path for her to take at that moment. Hence, she said, "Okay, I'll proceed as you've instructed." Jennie reached out to grab the bank card and flight tickets in the glove box, which proved her decisiveness.

Chapter 656 How Dare You Ruin My Plans!?

But right at that moment, a car's honks resounded. Jackson had brought more than 30 men with him, but Javier merely snickered without feeling worried in the slightest. Javier got out of his car and took his mechanical jack out of the trunk. "What the f*ck? Why the h*ll are you bringing that out? Do you think I've come here to ask you to repair my car, you f*cker?" Jackson brought his men forward as he rushed and cursed, while Javier held the jack that was close to 20 pounds in his hand and closed the trunk

Did Javier need to wield a weapon to go up against vermin? Of course not! Javier brought out the mechanical jack because he would feel a bigger kick out of the fight with it!

"You dare bring your men right up to my doorstep, eh? I'm going to beat the living lights out of you all!" 'I-Is he a monster!?' Jackson had always thought he was the descendant of a monster, the kind that would wander around with its bloodied mouth wide open.

However, this was the very day he realized that he was far from being a monster in the face of someone like Javier.

Javier had smashed his steel jack that was close to 20 pounds at someone's nose in an instant, which caused the man to bleed out profusely. The man's facial features were no longer distinguishable now that his entire face was covered in blood.

After that, Javier smashed his jack on the man's chin, which sent a very crisp and clear cracking noise from his bones being shattered...

The Ace at the Apex by Nine Linked Rings Chapter 657 ReadOnline

Chapter 657 Is This Still My Home? After approximately two minutes, all 30 men were lying on the floor, each one of them bloodied. In fact, those with minor injuries were those who had sustained knee or shoulder fractures.

Jackson just stood on the spot with his legs trembling throughout the entire fight, unlike how menacing he had seemed a moment ago. He wanted to flee, but his legs refused to listen to his commands and remained stiff. Most importantly, Jackson ended up wetting himself when Javier walked toward him. 'Did he just wet himself? Did I manage to scare him sh*tless!?' "H-H-Help me! Help me!!!" Jackson yelled at the top of his lungs, but nobody was around to answer his cries for help.

It was not until Javier had gotten close to him that he reacted. Javier slammed his jack directly at Jackson's neck

After a while, Jackson's mouth was still open, but instead of crying for help, he could only spurt out blood.

After that, Jackson got on his knees and begged Javier to spare his life by trying to make some sound, but nothing would come out.

Javier held onto his jack and knelt in front of Jackson. The latter was terrified out of his wits when Javier reached out his hand toward him, but it only ended up with Javier wiping the blood on his jack against Jackson's shirt. After that, Javier returned to his Cullinan and drove off. Jackson heaved a long sigh of relief and spitefully glared at the Cullinan as he rubbed his neck. "I'm definitely going to kill you, I swear! Otherwise, I will never be able to live this down!" But immediately after that, he suddenly heard... "Nobody's going to be able to lay their hands on my boss." Jackson jumped in fear and was about to turn his head around. Instead, he suddenly realized that the world was spinning before his eyes which lasted for about three seconds before it calmed down.

After that, he saw someone holding a machete as he stood in front of a headless body. In fact, the man had swung his machete so quickly that no blood was spurting from the corpse yet...

Someone had once experimented to determine how long a severed head would remain conscious after being chopped off.

That person was a prisoner sentenced to death, so he had a chat with his executioner before his sentence was met.

"Once my head lands on the ground, I will blink at you as a signal. Each blink represents one Coapter 557 t. Tha Still My Home?

second, so I want you to see how many times I blinked."

The man's executioner agreed to this request and counted 11 blinks after beheading the man. This meant that a severed head would still be able to remain conscious for 11 seconds. However, Herschel had no idea what Jackson was thinking about before he truly died, nor was he interested in finding out. He only wanted to clean up the mess of bodies in front of him before someone noticed...

Meanwhile, Javier was driving with Jennie by his side as they headed for Dahlia's residence. Obviously, Jennie did not know about this and merely thought it was a house Javier was renting.

Hence, under Javier's flirtatious movements, she could not stop herself from...

Coincidentally, Dahlia had gotten off work and returned home, only to sniff the intense mood in the atmosphere the moment she opened the door.

She was a mother herself, so she was very sensitive to whatever was happening, especially when she had remained lonely for six years. Immediately after that, she even heard moans and groans that made her face turn red and feel shocked.

She subconsciously thought that her daughter was doing something with the man, so she hurriedly rushed into the bedroom, only to find out that it wasn't her daughter but Jennie from Reivaj Construction!

Dahlia was shell-shocked and confused about the entire situation.

After about six seconds, she finally saw Javier holding onto Jennie's slender waist. At the same time, he was giving Dahlia an eye gesture, asking her to join in and enjoy the moment together. This enraged Dahlia. "Javier! You f*cking shameless *sshole!" She then slammed the door shut while Jennie was left feeling extremely embarrassed. Jennie and Dahlia were both business rivals, yet the former had stumbled upon the latter doing something so private. Javier thought nothing of it. "Why the frightened expression? I'll do it with her in front of you as well so that you both get fair treatment, okay?" Jennie was infuriated the moment she heard this. 'He's clearly with me right now, yet he's thinking about doing it with another woman? Seriously!?'

Jennie could not stop herself from revealing an embittered smile at that thought. 'Who am I to feel angry at him? I'm not his woman, I'm just a plaything, so I'm not allowed to be angry...' Javier and Jennie went to the bathroom together without even putting on their clothes when they finished. Naturally, Javier had forbidden Jennie from putting on hers.

Dahlia, sitting in the living room, was stunned and subconsciously asked, "I – Is this even still my house!?"

Javier replied, "Of course it is. Come and join us for a shower together. This way, you'll be able to feel a family's warmth."

The Ace at the Apex by Nine Linked Rings Chapter 658 ReadOnline

Chapter 658 Why Are You Looking at Me? Jennie left after not being able to contain her embarrassment, which was far from being as fearless as Javier.

Meanwhile, Dahlia did not join Javier in his shower either. Even if she wanted to, it would be with a knife in hand to kill him.

*D*mn that shameless man to h*11!

Javier was not going to bother himself with such trivial matters as he leisurely entered the bathroom to get a shower. Dahlia was still sitting on the sofa when he got out, filled with frustration. Leaving her alone with her emotions, Javier headed into the kitchen very shortly and returned with some food he had bought from the restaurant earlier that afternoon.

“I know you must be tired from the entire day’s work, so I bought you some food when I was out eating this afternoon. Don’t worry, these aren’t leftovers.” After placing the food on the table in front of Dahlia, Javier sat by the side and gave Doug a phone call.

“Doug, I want you to fly here and make the arrangements to take over from Jennie...”

Dahlia was very curious and could not understand how Javier had managed to win Jennie over within a single day. She spoke her mind when Javier was done with his phone call. The latter smiled and replied, “I r*ped Jennie, and she found it very enjoyable in the end. So, she eagerly agreed to all of my conditions all for the sake of being able to continue her relationship with me. Seems like she can’t bear to pull herself away from the pleasure...”

Javier was still going on and on, but Dahlia had already turned her head around. Not because she could not stand Javier’s nonsense, but because she hated herself for asking a question she already knew the answer to. ‘Why the h*ll did I ask him that question when I clearly know he will spew out some kind of nonsense!?’

However, Dahlia did feel a slither of warmth when Javier brought food for her.

Over the years, not even her own daughter had shown any concern for her after an entire day’s worth of hard work, let alone someone unrelated to her.

Instead, Javier, a shameless and unruly man, ended up showing concern toward her in such detail.

Still, it would be nonsense for Dahlia to fall for Javier only because of this. As she ate, she spitefully gnashed her teeth as though she was gnawing on Javier’s flesh. “This tastes pretty good, plus I feel quite relaxed right now...”

Patr658 Why Are You Looking at Me?

Dahlia returned to her bedroom after she was done with dinner. When she recalled the things that had happened the night before because she had forgotten to lock the door, she immediately thought about learning from her mistakes.

In the end, Javier forcefully barged into her room before she could even shut it. Dahlia panicked and said, “You said you won’t force me into doing anything!” Javier nodded. “Yes, I did say that. Don’t worry, I’m a man of my word, but I can’t sleep on the sofa.” Dahlia felt depressed when she heard that excuse. She angrily headed out the door without any choice, thinking she might as well sleep in her daughter’s room.

However, Javier grabbed her arm and said, “I can’t sleep alone either.”

Dahlia was infuriated. "How do you have so many problems!? You're clearly up to no good right now!"

Javier nodded with a very serious expression. "That would be correct!"

Dahlia was lost for words in the face of such a shameless man.

She could not imagine how someone as shameless as Javier would exist in the world for the life of her. She was now at a loss for words to criticize him.

However, this was the least of her problems at the moment. After all, she would be sleeping in the same bed as him that night.

Of course, Dahlia did not want this to happen. Instead, Javier had pressed her against the bed, forcing her to share the same bed with him.

Javier had only made a single statement, but it ended up causing Dahlia's face to turn red as she stayed there with gnashed teeth. "I believe I've got a few documents on your husband, but I can't remember where I've left them right now. I hope it doesn't affect your daughter's life if they get leaked and the media get their hands on them."

'Is he threatening me so obviously right now?' Dahlia could neither refuse nor reason with Javier at that moment as she lay in bed with hatred and embarrassment mixed together within her.

Javier lay in bed and embraced Dahlia in his arms before shutting his eyes.

Meanwhile, Dahlia could not sleep thanks to all the wild thoughts running in her mind.

Hence, she secretly opened her eyes to look at Javier, only to find out he had shut his eyes and fallen asleep. His breathing was very equalized, his sturdy and broad chest even raising very slightly with his rhythmic breathing. Dahlia had no idea what she should do as she looked at the man sleeping next to her.

Lhapte-058 why Are You Looking at me

There was a moment when she wanted to extend both her arms and strangle him to death.

In the next instant, however, she felt it would be quite nice if time could freeze right at that moment. That way, she could lay in his arms and enjoy the warmth and security he brought forever.

Dahlia had no idea how long she had entertained those wild thoughts that eventually made her fall asleep.

The next morning, she yawned and opened up her droopy eyelids, which instantly left her feeling shocked.

This was because she saw Javier smiling away as he looked at her. Of course, this was not a problem since anyone would find it pretty shocking to find someone looking at them immediately after waking up. She anxiously asked, "W-What are you doing? Why are you looking at me like that!?" Javier replied, "I don't think the question right now should be why I'm looking at you, but where your hands are at right now."

Dahlia's face instantly turned as red as a tomato the moment she subconsciously lowered her head.

She was so embarrassed she wanted to get out of bed and run off, but she ended up being held from behind.

After that... Nothing happened at all. The reason? Doug called...

The Ace at the Apex by Nine Linked Rings Chapter 659 ReadOnline

Chapter 659 It's All Taken Care Of Doug came over and completed the legal person takeover from Jennie. Legally, Reivaj Construction belonged to Doug from today onward. That was because Javier's instruction for him was simple. Doug was to bring people from the court and finance to take over the company directly.

As Jackson's father, Jett was regularly practicing some yoga exercises in the garden, looking quite well-versed in them. He seemed seasoned in the movements, though he grew anxious and frantic the next moment. Someone in the company had called him to inform him that the legal person of Reivaj Construction had changed and that it was forcefully taken over. Jett was furious. It was f*cking impossible. The legal person was Jennie. How could that change? He had hidden the truth well from Jennie, and the latter would never notice anything wrong. Despite that, his subordinate in the company had sent him a secretly recorded video with people from the court, finance, and notary office... Jett was stunned as he watched the clip and quickly ended the call to call Jennie-only to be unable to get through to her as the automated operator's voice said that she had turned her phone off.

"B*tch, you must be the one wreaking havoc. F*cker!"

Jett called Jackson while cursing. He was going to question his son about what had happened to the company and why it was someone else's all of a sudden. After Jett pressed that call, he realized his son's phone was switched off too. He could not get through to him no matter what.

Jett was simply baffled, unable to wrap his head around what was happening.

He thought that Jennie would surely flee if she were behind this, so he quickly utilized his connections to find her. The result came back shortly. Jennie had already departed for Medb, and it had been two hours since the plane took off. There was also a direct flight ticket to Sammius that was bought in Jennie's name.

Jett felt like he could vomit blood from the rage. It had never crossed his mind that Jennie would betray him.

"You b*tch! I helped you and spent money taking care of that old trash of yours, yet you betray me!?"

He had forgotten that he had pulled Jennie over to become a scapegoat. It was just that she had trapped him before he could trap her. Thinking of these was no longer useful by now, as the priority was to snatch the company back

Jett asked his chauffeur to drive as fast as he could to reach Reivaj Construction in the shortest time possible, but when he arrived there, he was still too late. It was evident from the security guard.

The security guard flashed his baton at once and put himself in front of Jett.

s

tat 659 It's All Taken Care Of

Chapter 659 It's All Taken Care Of Doug came over and completed the legal person takeover from Jennie. Legally, Reivaj Construction belonged to Doug from today onward. That was because Javier's instruction for him was simple. Doug was to bring people from the court and finance to take over the company directly. As Jackson's father, Jett was regularly practicing some yoga exercises in the garden, looking quite well-versed in them. He seemed seasoned in the movements, though he grew anxious and frantic the next moment.

Someone in the company had called him to inform him that the legal person of Reivaj Construction had changed and that it was forcefully taken over.

Jett was furious. It was f*cking impossible. The legal person was Jennie. How could that change? He had hidden the truth well from Jennie, and the latter would never notice anything wrong. Despite that, his subordinate in the company had sent him a secretly recorded video with people from the court, finance, and notary office...

Jett was stunned as he watched the clip and quickly ended the call to call Jennie-only to be unable to get through to her as the automated operator's voice said that she had turned her phone off. "B*tch, you must be the one wreaking havoc. F*cker!" !

Jett called Jackson while cursing. He was going to question his son about what had happened to the company and why it was someone else's all of a sudden. After Jett pressed that call, he realized his son's phone was switched off too. He could not get through to him no matter what. Jett was simply baffled, unable to wrap his head around what was happening. He thought that Jennie would surely flee if she were behind this, so he quickly utilized his connections to find her. The result came back shortly. Jennie had already departed for Medb, and it had been two hours since the plane took off. There was also a direct flight ticket to Sammius that was bought in Jennie's name.

Jett felt like he could vomit blood from the rage. It had never crossed his mind that Jennie would betray him.

"You b*tch! I helped you and spent money taking care of that old trash of yours, yet you betray me!?"

He had forgotten that he had pulled Jennie over to become a scapegoat. It was just that she had trapped him before he could trap her. Thinking of these was no longer useful by now, as the priority was to snatch the company back. Jett asked his chauffeur to drive as fast as he could to reach Reivaj Construction in the shortest time possible, but when he arrived there, he was still too late. It was evident from the security guard.

The security guard flashed his baton at once and put himself in front of Jett.

It'All Taken Care of

"Old man, who are you? Do you think Reivaj Construction is yours that you can go anywhere you please?"

Well, it had been Jett's, but he had fallen face-first into someone's trap. Looking at the security guard who once had to obey him, Jett did some coaxing and pulled out 75 dollars to finally bribe the guard to relay his message of intending to meet the new company boss.

The security guard accepted the money but did not complete the task. Mr. Leigh had said,"

No!"

Jett was flummoxed, not expecting the man to ignore him. He was upset, but there was nothing he could do. After all, Jennie had given him a deep stab on the back. He had the urge to throw up blood as he looked at Reivaj Construction which now belonged to someone else...

When Jett returned home, he called Jackson again, but the latter's phone was still turned off. He asked his men to look for his son, only to be informed that Jackson had gone missing. The most they could find was someone witnessing Jackson drive off with his men to give chase after a Cullinan left. It was around that time when Jackson went missing.

The Rolls-Royce Cullinan-costing around 950 thousand dollars a unit-was glaring to the eyes, so it was not difficult to search for it.

A while later, Jett's investigation found Javier.

"No matter where you've hidden my son and whether you've done anything to him, I'll make you pay!"

Jett gnashed his teeth resentfully, wanting nothing more than to tear Javier apart and sink his teeth in him. That afternoon, he called up some thug to take care of Javier-once and for all, but he did not receive any reply even when night came.

He wanted to call and ask what was going on, but his doorbell rang just as he grabbed his phone. He could see that the one pressing his doorbell was the thug he had hired, George, through the surveillance camera at the door.

Jett was delighted. He knew that George was prompt in settling things and would never dilly dally or cause unwanted accidents. He opened the door in glee and invited George into the house.

"Have you found my son, George?" George chuckled in reply, "Yes, found him. I am here to take you to meet him!"

Jett did not understand why George was taking him to meet his son instead of bringing his son back to meet him. When he raised the question, George pulled out a dagger from the back of his hips.

"Because the grim reaper's taken your son. I can't bring him back, so I can only send you to see him!"

Before Jett could react, he was stabbed twice. The attack stupefied him. His mind failed to process the events. "I've spent money to hire you. W-Why are you killing me?"

3 It's All Taken Care Of

"Because you've offended someone you shouldn't!"

That was all George said before the rest of his actions became gory...

George met up with Herschel that night. "It's all taken care of, Mr. Lord."

Herschel nodded and patted George's shoulder without saying anything.

Javier was his boss and his life. He would rather lose his own life than lose Javier's life during critical junctures. This was Mackenzie's order as well as his duty as an underling! As for Javier, he was currently sleeping with his arms wrapped around Dahlia once again

The Ace at the Apex by Nine Linked Rings Chapter 660 ReadOnline

Chapter 660 I'll Be Promoted Soon Similarly, Javier did not do anything. Just the right amount and degree of intimacy was unavoidable, except it could not be described.

Javier officially took over the construction company here upon returning to it.

Everyone was baffled when they found out that Reivaj Construction had backed out during the routine weekly meeting. The company was their greatest enemy, and they had failed to triumph over such an enemy no matter how much they had cracked their heads over it. Yet, said enemy backed out without lasting for even three days when it came to Javier.

Everyone was simply astonished, not understanding how Javier had done it and how the formidable enemy had just backed down. Despite that, Javier would not divulge the information. He only wanted the construction efficiency here to be increased.

Dahlia supported his request, and the others quickly expressed that they would improve the construction efficiency.

Javier did not return to Dahlia's place for the following days but spent the days in and out in the company. It was more hectic since the takeover had just happened, and he needed to learn plenty of things about management.

This delighted Dahlia as she finally did not have to endure Javier's torment. Sometimes though, she could not help missing him when she lay on the bed. If... If she could have met Javier on her first time in life, she would be pretty willing because from certain aspects, even when she did not want to admit it, she had to give it to Javier for being rather impressive.

Like business, for example, Javier would not bluff his way through if he did not know something. He would ask for an insider's guide and help wholeheartedly and then master the situation swiftly. Once he did, he would tackle any problem easily, like there was no challenge at all.

Dahlia was genuinely impressed by him about this. Javier would also care about her occasionally, like this afternoon. He bought a heating pack and left it on her table, as well as poured her a glass of warm water when he saw her hold a palm over her stomach.

A detailed concern like this warmed Dahlia's heart, and she honestly did not know how to comment on Javier. As long as the man was not lustful, she liked him-uncontrollably so...

Dahlia's daughter returned from the trip seven days later, so Dahlia did not have to worry about Javier staying at her place. This was precisely what happened. Javier did not ask to stay with her as he had checked into a hotel. He stayed in the hotel at night and returned to work in the office during the day, every day.

There was once when Dahlia could not help asking him out of curiosity, "It's so wasteful for you to stay at a hotel every day. How come you don't buy a house and live there? It'd be more worth it even if you rent!" Javier replied, "I have to clean up if I rent, and I'm not staying long enough to buy. It's sheet 660 1' Be Promoted Soon meaningless."

Dahlia did not quite understand what Javier meant. "What do you mean you're not staying long enough to buy a place?"

"Because I'll be promoted soon. I won't stay here for long," Javier answered, putting the document down.

Dahlia was rendered speechless. "I'll give it to you that you're capable, but you can't be this confident. You're already the general manager for the East China region. Another promotion could only be HQ.

"Besides, do you know how long it took for the fastest person who got promoted to HQ from your current position? Seven years, seven long years. You're only here for seven days, and you're thinking about a promotion. Aren't you overthinking?"

Javier did not go into the details with Dahlia, but his purpose was to ascend higher and find out more. Since he had already found out enough here, there was no need for him to linger.

Before that, though, he could not let Dahlia go. Her sexy figure and seductive looks were increasingly bewitching the more he looked at her. Just when Javier was going to flirt with her, his secretary opened the door to his office with a knock. "Mr. Kersey, Ms. Robins, there's an emergency!"

The Ace at the Apex by Nine Linked Rings Chapter 661 ReadOnline

Chapter 661 A True Talent The secretary informed Javier and Dahlia that they had dug out some bones at the construction site. The police had cordoned off the area and said that the bones found might not be all. There could be more around the site. That was why the place would have to be sealed off for some time, and it would cause the construction progress to halt.

Dahlia frowned at once. "HQ's watching this batch of houses, and we have a completion deadline. We already have a tight timeline to follow, and people are working overtime and overnight, yet the police are now closing the place off for some time. This," "This isn't the issue, and the issue doesn't lie here at all."

Javier had thought much further than Dahlia. He was the chairman of Reivaj Group, so it meant that he had to be far more perceptive. Dahlia had never been a chairman, however, so she would not understand what Javier was talking about.

Javier continued to say, "The issue is that word will get out once the police cordon off the site. Once the news gets out, we won't have to build the project anymore. No one will buy it when they're done. They'll ask for a refund."

The reason was simple. Who would want to stay in the land of the dead? No matter how the owners of these bones had died-even if those were the bones of deities, no one would want to stay on the land that buried them.

Nothing else in this world belonging to the dead was wanted by anyone besides antiques! Realization struck Dahlia. Javier had hit the nail right on the head from how he looked at the issue. She was still considering the construction project's progress, but Javier had already seen the most fundamental problem.

He instructed Dahlia the next moment, "There's a batch of land being put on auction recently. Check the time and information. Find out which piece of land has a decent surrounding environment and geographical location, as well as the municipal plan for it for the next five years within the shortest time. I want them all."

Dahlia nodded, knowing what Javier wanted to do. "I know that you want to look for a new location for HQ, but this isn't relevant to us. We're just a construction company, and we don't know the future of this piece of land right now. The company wouldn't just let this land stay abandoned, so..."

Javier knew that Dahlia was thinking he was fretting too much, but there was no time for him to explain it to her. After sending her off, he looked through the data immediately and called Chad to ask him to check if there was any suitable project in the field recently to slot it in there.

That noon, Dahlia fetched Javier the information for the new piece of land, and Chad returned with the required information as well. Javier stayed in the office with his nose buried in work, practically living his life there for the next three days.

He finally came up with a comprehensive proposal three days later, and there was feedback about the bones at the construction site.

After the police's investigation and verification, the land used to be a massacre spot of the intruders, where nearly 2,000 people had been secretly killed. As expected, once the news got out, the people who had purchased the property all asked for a refund.

All of them hated the intruders and felt bad for the innocent souls, but these were not reasons for them to sleep on a burial mound. Those were over 2,000 corpses, probably more than the people who would stay in the residential area once it was built. Who would dare stay there when the dead outnumbered the living?

Javier reported to HQ upon finding out. Like he had predicted, HQ ordered them to stop the construction work and asked Javier to report his findings back to them.

Javier drove to HQ that afternoon with all the information he had prepared tucked in his car. As he and his chauffeur took turns driving, they finally arrived at Maple Court's HQ the next morning. Javier and his chauffeur carried the information he had packed after they parked the car and went to the vice general manager, Robin Faye, directly. Robin was overseeing the project, and he was the one who had asked for the reporting, so of course, Javier went to him.

Before Javier came, he had investigated Robin Faye and found him to be a capable man- just a little pedantic and tactless. That caused him to have a weaker network in the company, and he had even confronted the chairman in meetings right before everyone else. Despite that, it was as much evidence that Robin was truly a principled and capable man. Therefore, Javier did not hide the truth from Robin after meeting him. Not only did he report the incident to Robin, but he also offered the proposal he had prepared.

"Since we've purchased this land, and it's ours, it'll be difficult to sell it off. In that case, why don't we turn it into a memorial square to remember the people innocently killed by the intruders during the war times?"

"The benefit of doing this is that we can add our name to the memorial square. Maple Court will build it. It'll be an indirect advertisement, and mainstream media will have a field trip reporting nonprofit charities like this

"This is a nationwide advertisement for Maple Court, and the cost will be far more worth it than investing in commercials on national TV. It'll also show that Maple Court is accountable and positive, that it's a company that's responsible to society and the people. "Next, we don't have to fund the investment of the square fully. We can apply charitable investment from the country and local government. I've gone through the requirements and policies regarding this. It's feasible.

"Lastly, this memorial square won't be built without any profiting point. We can build shops around the square, and shops sell much higher than residences. It can earn more than the fund we invested in when we purchased the land.

"As for the project that we've already had in mind, we can shift it to another location using the reason of building the memorial square. "I've selected the location, and it doesn't seem developed right now, but the local government already has plans for investment recruitment and will be setting up a new business area there within five years. Wally Group is already liaising with the local municipality as well..."

661 A True Talent

There were a lot of things that Javier told the vice general manager, Robin, about, and each of them was on the agenda of the current company general meeting, which they had yet to come to any conclusion.

It surprised Robin that Javier, as the construction company's person-in-charge, had already made such well-rounded considerations. More importantly, they hit high in feasibility and sensibility.

Even more crucially, Maple Court would not be making a lower profit because of this issue but actually a higher profit! This was far better than the pieces of trash in the company that suggested cutting the price in selling the property without giving it much thought. Robin got up and approached Javier to give his shoulder a very firm pat.

"Excellent, Javier. I thought you were just a sales prodigy, but you're obviously very perceptive in terms of strategizing as well. You've found a great breakthrough point in this issue for HQ and will basically be turning the loss into profit!

"Well done. You're the kind of young man the company needs-bold, determined, and shrewd perception. You dare think out of the box and execute it. Marvelous!

"I'll bring your suggestion up to the meeting... "No, I've decided to take you to the meeting. Since it is your plan and proposal, you're the best person to talk about it. That's it. Take a break for now. I'll send someone to inform the chairman to call for an executive meeting! "I want those b*stards in the company to have a proper look at what a true talent is!"

too. The Company Elites

The Ace at the Apex by Nine Linked Rings Chapter 662 ReadOnline

Chapter 662 The Company Elites The executive meeting was held that afternoon itself, and even those who were not around attended through a video conference.

Robin first asked everyone the solution to the matter in the meeting, and the replies were either lowering the price to sell the houses or trading the land off with a lower price. The solutions only caused the chairman, Phineas Maple, to glower.

If these were what the high-level executives could come up with, why would he need these useless people? For the size of their heads and bellies? Was it all sh*t in there? While Phineas fumed silently, Robin spoke up to introduce Javier. "This is Javier Kersey. I believe everyone here knows him. He used to be the sales exemplar our company has openly promoted and is now the head of the construction company for the East China region, as well as the person-in-charge for the land with the current issue.

"Of course, Javier isn't to be blamed for the land's issue since no one could know what's there underneath, so my purpose of asking him over today isn't to criticize him. I think Mr. Kersey's thoughts and opinions are excellent, and I would like everyone to have a listen. We can also discuss it in the meeting to see if it works."

As Robin spoke, the vice director of Maple Court, Kaiden Johnstone, who had always been against Robin, slammed his cup on the table.

"Does Mr. Faye mean that anyone who has a suggestion from now on can bring it up for discussion in the company's executive meeting so a group of elites like us can play with a low level pest like him, is that the case?"

Kaiden did not mince his words. Slighting Javier was simply a passing remark in his main goal to attack Robin.

Javier did not take it lightly because he knew who Kaiden was. Kaiden's secretary was Jayden Kempfer! He had yet to take care of that fellow, and now there was a Kaiden Johnstone.

Javier retorted curtly, "If you're an elite, Mr. Johnstone, I don't know how to consider one a sc *m."

Not only was it curt, but it was almost like he was pointing a finger at Kaiden's nose and scolding him.

Kaiden was enraged. "Who the f*ck do you think you are? How dare you insult me! Do you want to get sacked!?"

Javier threw his proposal on the table at once. "If the company executives are all pieces of trash like you, I'd rather not work here! "Also, my proposal's patented. Try and copy it. I'll sue you all the way 'till the end!" Javier was brazen. He had not prepared to be humble when he came today. He wanted to act audaciously to attract attention. Most importantly, it was to attract the chairman, Phineas' attention, so he had to be arrogant over his talent.

Charter 662 The Company Eltes

In fact, Phineas was intrigued by Javier. He was curious why the latter was so brazen. Just when Kaiden was about to say something, Phineas waved him off and looked at Javier.

"Mr. Kersey, I've heard about you. You're capable, that's great. The company needs capable, talented people like you. But what happens this time isn't a regular case. It involves investment over hundreds of millions of dollars, so I'll need a secure plan."

Javier was here because of Robin, so the latter was certainly on his side. "Mr. Maple, I've looked at Mr. Kersey's proposal. It's a suitable fit. That's why I'm bringing it up to the meeting."

Phineas was aware of Robin's capability. Otherwise, he would not have allowed someone who slammed the table at him to take the place of the vice general manager. His curiosity was thus piqued when he heard that Robin approved of Javier's proposal.

"Alright, tell us about it then!"

Everyone could only listen, even if they were reluctant since Phineas had spoken. As for Javier, he picked up his proposal and distributed it to everyone after Robin eyed him.

When he gave it to Kaiden, the latter snorted and crumpled it into a ball before tossing it into the trash can. That was a bold move, so Javier said after distributing the document, "Everything's stated on the proposal. Have a look first. I'll explain it if you have anything you don't understand after going through it."

Javier had initially wanted to brief about the proposal, but he decided against briefing them since Kaiden had thrown it away. The others did not mind as they had one copy in their hands and browsed it on the spot. They did not feel much in the beginning. Javier was in sales, so how could he know anything about business strategy? It would be nonsense. However, when their eyes were on the proposal, they could not shift their gazes away.

The proposal was clearly written, even more so than when Javier had reported to Robin. The memorial square, for example, had the company's annual advertising expenditure, the number of potential clients, how much profit would be made, and more marked in numbers.

Thus, one could know the returns of the memorial square at a glance. Therefore, everyone widened their eyes when they went through the proposal, and occasionally, there were exclamations.

“We can do it like this? Why didn’t I think of it!?”

“Whoa, amazing! This is how you do it. Mr. Kersey, what’s in your mind? This proposal is a godsend!”

Even Phineas, the chairman, could not conceal his smile after browsing the proposal.

“Well done, this is the plan I want. This is a true elite!”

After he praised Javier and his proposal, he looked at Kaiden.

“Come on, Mr. Johnstone. Please express your view on this proposal as the company elite!”

“Uh...” Kaiden stood up and stuttered. What could he have known? He had already crumpled

Chroter 662 The Company filter

the proposal into a ball and tossed it in the trash can. He knew nothing. He had made up his mind earlier. When everyone called out Javier for making up a lousy proposal, he would add, “I knew it’s trash”, but the reality was obviously different from his expectation. Javier’s proposal was not lousy at all. It was great, tremendous! That was why when Phineas asked him to express his opinion on the proposal, he could only mutter in a low tone, “I didn’t see it.” “You tossed it in the trash when you haven’t taken a look? This is what you do as an elite?”

“If this proposal came to you, would you toss it in the trash without even having a look? Who’ll bear the loss of our company then? Tell me, will it be you!?” What would Kaiden bear the loss of hundreds of millions of dollars with? He could not even afford it. He could only duck his head due to Phineas’ reprimanding and go through the trash can to pick up the crumpled proposal he had tossed. When he smoothed it out, he realized there was some phlegm attached to the bottom of it and recalled that he was the one who had spat earlier. It was disgusting as his hands came in contact with it...

Javier ignored the sc*m and talked about his proposal and the expectations with the executives there. After explaining everything in detail, Phineas slammed a palm on the table.

“Great! Great, great!”

Three repeated “great”-that was the proof of Phineas’ current thrill and joy. It had never crossed his mind that the project that looked like a certain loss would take a turn and make a profit simply with Javier’s idea. Were it not inappropriate, Phineas would have really wanted to tell the executives in the room, “You so-called company elites are all freaking sc*ms!”

The Ace at the Apex by Nine Linked Rings Chapter 663 ReadOnline

Chapter 663 That’s How Brazen He Is After the executive meeting, Kaiden returned to his company, glowering. Javier had called him a sc*m in front of so many high-level executives, and he was even proven wrong after that. It disgruntled him as he felt like he was embarrassed. If the chairman had not taken Javier’s side, he would have beaten the latter up-that was, if he had the guts.

That did not stop Kaiden from fuming inwardly, though, nor did it stop him from kicking his table and chair when he returned to his office.

As his secretary, Jayden was fast to appease him. “Mr. Johnstone, what’s the matter? Who angered you? Don’t be mad.” As he coaxed the man, he was slapped, stunning him. “No, wait. Mr. Johnstone, why are you slapping me?” “Why am I slapping you? A slap is already a light one. I want to fire you!” Kaiden snarled, “If it weren’t for you, would Javier have picked on me in front of everyone? “I listened to you and transferred him to East China Construction, making it an open promotion but an implicit demotion. In the end? In the end, he called me a sc*m in front of the company executives! Tell me, would he be against me if it weren’t because he held a grudge!?” Kaiden was not a fool. He could figure out why Javier had picked on him. It was impossible that a low-level employee would pick on his superior for no reason. The superior must have done something to upset the employee, and Kaiden had recognized the reason right away, so he gave Jayden a well-deserved slap... While Jayden was slapped and scolded, Javier was showered with praises by Robin. The latter had disliked Kaiden for a long time as Kaiden was basically useless. He was delighted that Javier had managed to rebuke Kaiden in front of all the company executives this time. Still, he was happier at the fact that a talented person like Javier was undoubtedly on his side now after what happened.

After Robin complimented Javier, he told Javier, “Alright, go back to East China Construction and take care of the matter first. You’ll be in charge of auctioning the land and making sure you bid on it no matter what.

“Once that’s done, you come over and be my secretary.

“You wouldn’t feel wronged in becoming a secretary from where you are as a general manager, would you?”

Of course, Javier did not feel wronged. Why would he? The position seemed to have a narrow field of authority, but it was beneficial to his future. This meant that he had begun to step into the executive level of Maple Court. He would learn even more and have a greater room for improvement once he got into HQ!

Thanking Robin for his accolade, Javier went back to his car. Since he had not slept for almost a day, he told the chauffeur to drive and find a hotel. Work was important, but he could not disregard sleep. It would be a greater loss if they died from an accident on the road. Javier fell asleep not too long after he reclined the passenger seat, but an emergency brake startled him awake a while later.

So

Brazen He is

When he woke up, he saw two cars stopping in front of his car and a few thugs coming out of said cars.

The timid chauffeur was quite scared. “Mister, I didn’t run into you guys. Why are you blocking our way?”

Javier was amused. Why were they blocking their way? It must either be Jayden or Kaiden who had sent these thugs.

He was right. When Javier beat them up easily and interrogated them for the culprit behind this, it was Jayden, just as he expected. He waved for his chauffeur and continued on his way to the hotel.

Was he not going to tackle Jayden? He was in no hurry! Sleep came first. How would he clean up the trash without having a sound sleep?

Javier slept from 3:00 p.m. until 8:00 p.m. before he got up, stretched himself, washed up, and went out to eat something. It was only then he looked for Jayden.

The latter was currently flirting with a new hire lady in the company. It was undeniable that the young woman was charming. She was pretty, in good shape, and bashful. Fresh graduates like her were fun to toy with, and Jayden was ecstatic about it, impatient to have his ways with the girl. It was at that moment the door to the karaoke booth opened. “You’re here to serve the fruit platter, right? Leave it on the table and get out.” Jayden thought that it was a server, so he did not even spare the newcomer a glance, merely keeping his attention on the young lady only to see fear in the latter’s eyes. Jayden snapped his head around upon realizing that something was not right. Simultaneously, a bottle greeted his head with a crash. It made him bleed and clouded his vision, causing him not to be able to see things clearly.

It was fortunate that the person switched on the light next, so Jayden could see who he was. When Jayden did see who it was, he was furious. "Javier Kersey, you f*cking," Before Jayden could finish his sentence, Javier kicked him and pulled him by his legs to throw him violently like he was a sack of potatoes, hurling him toward the wall in continuous thuds.

Jayden grew dizzy from the throws, almost passing out.

Javier only stopped when he felt like Jayden could no longer take it, freeing his hold and letting the latter crash against the large screen television in the karaoke booth. The television exploded with a bang from the impact, the shattered plastic stabbing Jayden's face.

This piece of trash was honestly lucky, though, saved from being killed by electrocution.

The loud noises attracted the server's attention, and he hurried in to check on them. Once he entered the booth, Javier pulled a fat stack of cash out of his hips and threw it on the server's face. He pulled out three more wads of cash and repeated his action. "Is that enough compensation? Get out if it is."

Of course, that was enough. The television was huge, but it was a random brand and did not cost much at all. The server left with the money and a dry chuckle, not at all minding that the money was thrown in his face.

After the server left, Javier hooked a finger at Jayden, who sat stunned in a corner.

"Are you unhappy about it? Come hit me then. I won't use my legs and a hand against you. Consider me a loser if I even move a step!" That was how brazen he was for being capable-he was fearless!

– How Many Days Have You Just Been Here For?

The Ace at the Apex by Nine Linked Rings Chapter 664 ReadOnline

Chapter 664 How Many Days Have You Just Been Here For? Javier was a little unreasonably rude and tyrannical recently, almost evil, but he could not help it. The pressure he was under to "level up" was too much, and he needed to vent.

The old fox had once told him that he ought to vent suitably when he should, or there would only be a greater evil accumulated from the power and authority he held.

Javier's current capability made it easy for him to instigate a war. That was why he had to vent his frustration and keep himself sane.

It was just that luck was not on Jayden's side. When Javier brazenly wanted to beat him up with one hand, Jayden charged at Javier repeatedly and recklessly. Later, though, he stopped lunging for Javier and hid in a corner obediently.

His eyes were swollen from the punches, and he would not be able to see things clearly if he were hit another time!

By the time things came to an end, Javier had left the karaoke room directly and seemed to be done with Jayden. Despite that, as Jayden drove away from the same place, gnashing his teeth in grudge, he was run over by a concrete mixer truck, and the cement poured over him.

When the police came that night, the concrete had hardened, and he could not be retrieved. They were unable to do anything, so they summoned a crusher machine the next day to break open the concrete. The hand of the person handling the machine slipped, and the corpse was actually crushed...

Jayden died. The cause? A car accident. At least that was what the police investigation said.

The truck driver was an honest man. He paid a fine and went behind bars as required since he admitted guilt. It was just that Jayden was found drunk driving and would be 100% responsible for what happened to him, so the truck driver turned out fine.

Jayden was gone just like that, like a fart, maybe lesser than that, as farts left behind their stench.

Javier, who had taken care of Jayden, drove back through the night to East China Construction. He was a busy man and had to bid for the new piece of land! He was too lazy to do it personally, so he sent Dahlia for it.

After the auction ended that day, Dahlia was gleeful when she went to Javier's office to report it.

"You have no idea how stunned they were when we bid it for 15 million dollars!"

It was only a petty auction, so Javier had no idea what Dahlia was so excited about. Thinking about it, though, he could understand her. After all, not everyone could be like him and see money as nothing

When Dahlia was done reporting the matter, Javier suddenly asked her, "Does your daughter want to go on another trip?"

The question made Dahlia blush immediately. How could she not understand the implied

I 004 now many ways Have You Just Been Here. For?

meaning of the question? She shook her head. "No, absolutely not!" Javier looked like he understood before he asked again, "What about you then? Do you want a taste of freedom?"

The question was indirect at its best, but Dahlia could still read between the lines and vehemently expressed that she did not want it.

Javier suddenly changed the topic. "You'll be the boss here after I get transferred to HQ." Dahlia froze. She had heard similar statements before this, but she just assumed that Javier was blustering. It came as a surprise that what he said now came true. "Hold on! Are you really getting transferred to HQ? Oh my God! How many days have you just been here for!?"

Generally, it should be around ten days. It was less than half a month anyway.

In spite of it, Javier thought that now was not the time to talk about this, so Dahlia was flipped and pinned under Javier in the next second. Just when the tangle of bodies was about to start, someone walked in at the critical juncture.

It was Dahlia's secretary, Nelly Keys. Taking in Javier and Dahlia's position, Nelly, who had just gotten married, was stupefied.

STIDO

The Ace at the Apex by Nine Linked Rings Chapter 665 ReadOnline

Chapter 665 What Should I Do? Nelly was Dahlia's secretary. Her husband had gone to the sea with the commercial fishing boat not too long after they got married. She was a pretty lady with quite a good figure. Otherwise, her husband, a chief officer, would not have been together with her.

Despite that, pretty women always had more temptations. Nelly, who had tried her best not to hook up with men aside from her husband, had been feeling lonely recently, especially at night. Yesterday, for example, she had secretly bought female s*x toys from the Internet. Although the delivery had yet to arrive, she was already anticipating it.

It came as a shock for her to run into such an intimate scene in the office this afternoon, so she froze on the spot.

Dahlia was incredibly embarrassed upon seeing Nelly freeze at the door and struggled to get up to avoid such an embarrassing scandal getting out, but Nelly had reacted faster. Before Dahlia could do anything, she had closed the door and left promptly. Nelly was flustered after she left, not knowing what to do. Of all things she could have done, she should not have just barged in like that! She had just wanted to inform her about the good news she heard regarding the internal company personnel changes. It was completely out of her expectation to encounter that sight. It was embarrassing! And she had seen the general manager's body too...

While Nelly was flustered, Dahlia was also upset, dying in awkwardness. She could not help whining at Javier, "I told you not to do it in the office! Never do it in the office, and you had to

"

She stopped abruptly, not because Javier had stopped her from continuing but because she felt something she should not... After everything ended, Dahlia punched Javier. "It's all your fault!" Javier asked, "Why is it my fault? You enjoyed it just now, and you sounded eager too." Dahlia was wallowing in embarrassment. How could he just talk about it so openly? How could he do that? She quickly switched the topic. "What do we do about Nelly? How am I supposed to keep being the vice general manager if she tells on us!?" "General manager, not vice anymore," Javier corrected her. of all times, he was concerned about this. Dahlia was exasperated. Javier told her after that, "It's not a problem. I'll take care of it."

"How?"

"Kill her to shut her mouth!"

Dahlia felt that Javier's personality must either be oval, irregularly shaped, or triangular... The possibilities were endless, but there was no serious bone in him. Why else was he so f*cking flippant!?

"Wait for me when you finish work. I'll go take care of Nelly for you first."

Short 665 What Should I Do?

Javier pulled Dahlia's soft and supple body into his arms for a hug and gave her lips a loud peck before he left.

TTT

Looking at the man who infuriated her yet brought her immense pleasure, Dahlia honestly did not know what to say. She wished Javier's talent in business could be used in other aspects. In other words, she hoped Javier could settle the issue as soon as possible. Javier was not worried, however, as he leisurely went to Nelly and called her to the smoking area in the corridor. There was no one there. Javier smoked while Nelly stood beside him, looking awkward. "Was it a good view?" Javier's sudden question stunned Nelly as she was confused about what he meant. It was when Javier coyly smirked that she blushed. "I d-didn't see anything." Javier chuckled. "Why are you blushing if you didn't see anything? Since you didn't see anything, how would you know what I'm asking about?" Nelly was dying of embarrassment, wanting nothing more than to hide in a hole, when she heard Javier. Fortunately, Javier did not linger on the topic and switched it. "I heard that your husband is with the ship crew. It must be quite hard, huh?" Nelly nodded. "It is. He's out in the sea for seven to eight months a year, sometimes spending the holidays in the sea too." Nelly was going to say more, but Javier stopped her. "You misunderstood me. I mean, it must be quite hard for you to hold back your urges alone at home?"

Nelly, who had looked less pink, flushed redder instantly as if her secret was exposed. She stuttered speechlessly while Javier smoked in nonchalance. "There's nothing to be embarrassed about. We're all adults. It's normal. It wouldn't be if you had no urge instead."

After that, he asked Nelly, "Say, you're so pretty and hot. There must be quite a number of men after you. I commend your effort. You could actually withstand the temptations and stay loyal to your husband."

"I especially admire people like you. "There's just one thing. What you did today wasn't that nice. Dahlia's the vice general manager, but you came in without knocking and saw her doing that with me. This is a serious breach of privacy. You actually breached your superior's privacy?" When Javier brought this up, Nelly panicked. "Sorry, I'm sorry! I didn't do it on purpose!"

Javier waved to stop her from explaining.

"It's useless for you to apologize to me. It's Dahlia you have to apologize to. But you've already done it. An apology isn't going to do much! Think about it. Dahlia's going to see you every day each time she looks up and remembers that you've breached her privacy."

"Do you think your life here will be as easy in the future? Even if she doesn't hold a grudge net 665 What Should I do?

against you, do you think you two can still interact like nothing happened? Won't you feel a sense of guilt like you've done something wrong when you see her?" Nelly was anxious from Javier's onslaught of questioning. "T-Then what should I do? What should I do?"

Javier snubbed the cigarette in his hand and approached Nelly. Before the latter could react, he wrapped his arm around her slim waist and pushed his mouth close to her s*xy cherry lips. "It's simple. Just submit yourself to me too."