

The Ace at the Apex by Nine Linked Rings Chapter 601 ReadOnline

Chapter 601 Coincidence or Not Javier had some thoughts about the explosion that had happened during the filming process. "Why would you call me about something like this? Go look for Bombhead. I wasn't the one who set up the explosives."

Javier was dispirited when he heard Lloyd's answer.

"Bombhead has gone over there to play Rummy."

Heck, three people had died from the explosion. Just the right amount of players for a game of Rummy!

Lloyd then gave a detailed explanation and said he had already found a professional to investigate.

The explosives were not the kind that the film crew would normally use. Instead, it had been the kind of black gunpowder used in military explosives, which was extremely powerful. The filming staff were professionals and had been quite a distance away from the explosion when it had occurred. If it weren't for their professionalism, there would have been more casualties.

"Bombhead wouldn't have been able to get that black gunpowder. Even if he had, he wouldn't have dared to do it. Killing would not benefit him. He might even have lost his own life. I suspect that someone did it on purpose. "I've already looked into it, and it had nothing to do with me or the crew. I suspect that the explosion had something to do with the secret organization over there." Javier finally understood when he heard Lloyd's explanation. However, he was still a little puzzled. If it really was the secret organization, why would they make it so obvious?

After he hung up the phone, he thought about it for a while. Eventually, he made the decision to go. But before he did that, he kept Herschel and GTR there. "If this was actually orchestrated by the Raiders, I think it was just a distraction. They deliberately made it obvious so that it would attract my attention. It would also in turn attract the attention of everyone watching their organization, and they would do something to us." "Right now, the limelight is entirely on the HIV vaccine." When Javier mentioned this, Herschel immediately understood. "Don't worry about it, Boss. When you weren't around, I stayed in the R&D center the entire time and personally guided our men as they guarded the place."

Javier had never had any doubts about Herschel's loyalty and credibility.

He patted Herschel's shoulder and said, "Thank you for your hard work."

by

Coincidence or Not

Herschel smiled and did not say anything.

It was evident from his smile that in his opinion, he was just doing his duty. After handing everything over to Herschel, Javier took Running Man back to Medb overnight by plane.

There, they met Lloyd, who updated them on the latest news.

“We found out that there’s a new guy in charge of Bombhead’s affairs. He only started working a few days ago and he’s Bombhead’s relative. However, he’s dead. He drowned after drinking. It was just like the accident that deterred the screening process last time.” Lloyd’s news made Javier feel even more strongly that the root of the matter was not actually there, but elsewhere.

It was probably just as he had predicted. The Raiders were messing around to distract him.

Everything was so obvious. Javier would surely add more manpower to run an investigation there and would pay less attention to other areas. Before his investigation could produce any findings, the Raiders would probably get their hands on the HIV vaccine formula.

When that happened, Javier would be like a puppy on a leash. Not only would he have to work tirelessly, but he would not get any benefits out of it either. “What a great player, huh. Well, since you want to play this game, I’ll play with you until the end.”

When Javier took out his cell phone to make a call, Lloyd said in a daze, “What kind of game was I playing?” Lloyd answered pretty quickly, but Javier waved at him and said, “I wasn’t talking about you.” He paid no attention to Lloyd. Instead, he called Herschel and ordered him to keep his guard up. Then, he gave Sam a call. Sam had always been in charge of his local security company business, so he would certainly take on this “business”.

After Javier called, he immediately arranged for someone to go where Herschel was. He followed Javier’s instructions, claiming that it was their company’s team-building event so that it would not make anyone suspicious.

After all the necessary arrangements were made, Javier stayed in Medb.

He could not leave because if he did, it would not show how serious and concerned he was about this matter.

In the next few days, he looked like he was busy all day long while he was in Medb. Every day, a large group of his men would be waiting to track the Raiders down. But in reality, it was all just for show.

It was not until three days later, when Javier was sleeping at night, that he received a call from Herschel

p

or e or Not

“Boss, your prediction was right. A crazy fight is taking place outside right now! But don’t worry about it. I’ve already sent some men to block their escape route. I’m sure none of them will escape.”

Javier gave him some instructions before he sat up and lit a cigarette.

After pondering it, he called Doug, who was in charge of Reivaj Hospital. He asked him to contact the relevant local departments so that they would hold off the police force and prevent them from coming too soon. After all, it would be a tough fight, and the Raiders would certainly not be able to defeat them.

Javier thought about it and, from the Raiders’ point of view, the only one who might end up being their savior was the police.

It was the police’s principle to dispatch police officers whenever needed. But if the police went tonight, they would give the Raiders an opportunity to escape. Therefore, as far as this matter was concerned, Javier asked Doug to stop the police from coming, at least for a short period of time. It did not matter how he did it.

he did it.

After hanging up on Doug, Javier carefully pondered this and wondered if there were any other loopholes.

Anna, who was next to him, woke up. She was well-mannered, so she did not say anything. She just stared at Javier quietly. She finally asked when Javier smiled at her, “What happened?” Javier told her that nothing had happened. “Everything’s under control. Don’t worry!” Evidently, everything was under Javier’s control indeed. He had been planning tonight’s events for a long time.

Ten minutes later, Herschel called.

“Boss, none of them managed to escape. We have all of them in our pocket. By the time it happened, I had already notified the communication service provider to monitor all communications in the area. I believe they’ll sort out any relevant news very soon.”

Herschel could never disappoint Javier. Even though Herschel was not a good planner, he was an executor who could fully implement what the leader asked of him. Javier had no doubt about that.

In fact, Herschel had lived up to his expectations. When Javier returned to the R&D center the next day, Herschel had already sorted out all the information he had obtained.

“Boss, I figured it out, just like you ordered. There are three points worth noting. The first point is where those people were stationed. According to them, they’re all from the Soroy Family, which means that they’re subordinates of the patriarch, Antonov Soroy. They’re currently on a mountain in the country.

“The second point worth noting involves monitoring the phone of the person in charge. The location also pointed to the mountain.

“The third point worth noting is...” After hesitating for a while, Herschel finally said, “The third point worth noting concerns Suzanne. GTR followed her last night and ended up losing her. However, he didn’t show his face.” GTR was supposed to be the best at tracking people down. But GTR had lost Suzanne while following her last night, and it just so happened that something had transpired last night. Was it a coincidence, or had it been planned?

The Ace at the Apex by Nine Linked Rings Chapter 602 ReadOnline

Chapter 602 Harmless Exit Javier left the Raiders’ stronghold to Herschel. He believed that Herschel could deal with it perfectly well.

He went to see Suzanne instead, wishing to find out exactly who she was. When Javier found Suzanne, she was not in the laboratory, which rarely ever happened. Instead, she was heading to the mall to buy some things. “What a rare occasion for our fair lady to be going shopping instead of working.”

.

.

Suzanne glanced at Javier. "Of course. How else would I spend the money I earn? Would money look better if I kept it at home and spread it on the ground?" Javier replied solemnly, "That's not going to work. You can consider spending it on me. Maybe you could be my sugar mommy or something. I can warm both your bed and your heart. I can work hard day or night. Would you like to try me out first?" Suzanne glared at Javier angrily and did not reply. She could not say that she had gotten used to Javier being a jerk, but she had enough experience dealing with him.

He would mess around every time they met, so she had almost gotten used to it.

Likewise, at that very moment, while Javier's hand was kneading her back, she did not really feel anything and she did not do anything to stop him either. However, the most important reason was that if she tried to stop Javier, he might want more. Thus, she quickly changed the subject. "Would you like to go shopping with me and get some clothes? My taste in clothing isn't that great." Javier replied, "But you look pretty good to me. Your clothes are beautiful and sexy..." They chatted and got in the car together before heading to the mall. On the way, Javier asked Suzanne casually, "Where did you go last night? I came to see you but I couldn't find you." Suzanne replied, "I went out for a run after dinner. I've recently gained a few pounds, so I have to lose some weight."

She seemed serious when she said it. It appeared as if she had actually gone out for a walk. But Javier had his reasons to believe that GTR would be able to tell if she was running or deliberately getting away from him. Therefore, Javier told Suzanne a story. A short story.

"There was once an undercover agent who died."

Suzanne was quiet for a few seconds before she asked, "And then what?"

Javier replied, "That's it. That's the end of the story."

Suzanne was speechless. "What sort of story is this? It has a beginning and an end, but nothing in between. Well, let me tell you a story instead!" Javier was intrigued. "Sure. Tell me. I'm listening. Let me hear your story."

Suzanne cleared her throat and said, "There used to be a man who was the son of a wealthy family. One day, he..."

After Suzanne said that, she went silent.

Javier waited for a while and, finally, Suzanne continued speaking.

"Forget it. It's not a good story, so I'm not going to continue. It's boring. Are you going to the mall with me?"

Javier smiled. "Of course I am. Why else would I come along? Did you think I came to listen to your story?" Suzanne nodded. "I really thought you were here to hear the story!"

"I really do want to hear it."

"But as I said, it's not a good story. I won't go on..." They were close to revealing their secrets. Neither of them was trying to hide anything now. But it was commendable that they meant it when they said they would stop talking about it. They went on to talk about clothing instead. From time to time, Javier would bring up the topic of sexy lingerie, and he would even encourage Suzanne to buy and wear some. She would reveal parts that should be seen, and he would get the chance to appreciate it. If he could, he would also love to show his appreciation with his mouth and body.

When Javier said that, Suzanne felt very shy.

The main reason was that she had actually felt Javier's mouth before. It had taken her to heaven and even made her regret being human.

Therefore, getting sexy lingerie was completely out of the question. She certainly would not take it upon herself to cause herself trouble!

After spending most of the day at the mall, they went to the dining area on the third floor of the mall during lunchtime and simply got something to eat. While eating, Suzanne told Javier, "You're buying me lunch today."

Javier protested. "Why would I? I came shopping with you, and you didn't get me lunch. Do you want me to buy you lunch instead? It doesn't make sense."

Suzanne smiled and teased him. "You're the boss and you're richer."

"So what if I'm rich? I can't be your sugar daddy even if I have money. Why don't you be my sugar baby now so we'll do the deed?" Suzanne was embarrassed when Javier spoke so blatantly. She glared at Javier angrily, feeling speechless. She then picked up her purse and told him that she was going to the bathroom. Javier nodded. "Wipe it clean, or it'd be embarrassing to get your panties wet again." Suzanne gestured as though she was going to hit him, but she did not end up doing anything. She left with a flushed face instead.

After she left, Javier lowered his head and continued eating.

After a few minutes of eating, he wiped his mouth with a paper towel, paid the bill, and left. Javier immediately drove away when he arrived at the mall parking lot. About ten minutes later, he got a phone call from Running Man. "I'm sorry, Boss. I'm useless. I lost her..."

Javier had known that Suzanne was going to leave, as there was no way she would stay after he had exposed her. But Javier had never expected her to leave without taking anything with her, including the HIV vaccine she had developed with the team. Therefore, Javier could not force her to stay or do anything to her. If Suzanne was part of the Raiders, then there was no need for them to steal the vaccine. The formula was in Suzanne's head. However, if she was not, why was she acting mysteriously and impersonating somebody else? She had also not caused any harm. So, what kind of organization did she belong to?

Javier thought about it but could not figure it out.

However, given how harmless Suzanne was, Javier did not plan to do anything else.

Since they had lost her, so be it. He believed that things would happen if they were meant to be. After Javier hung up on the Running Man, he called Doug. "From this day onward, the scientific research center will be handed over to you. Pick a suitable candidate and guide them so they can do their job. If someone asks about Suzanne, tell them that she's gone overseas to attend the medical awards and further her studies. She will stay there for a while." Doug showed understanding but still asked about Suzanne's whereabouts. "Don't ask questions you shouldn't. Just do your job." On the other end of the line, Doug quickly nodded and agreed. He also promised to take care of the scientific research center.

After throwing his phone on the passenger seat, Javier clenched the steering wheel with both hands as though he was trying to rip it out.

In fact, he was in a terrible mood right now. He had yet to find out more about the Raiders and Suzanne. He also did not know what the old man was plotting. He felt like a new kid who had just gone back to elementary school. He did not have a single clue, even though he was looking at the textbook

But the more he thought about it, the more he realized that he was worse than an elementary school kid. At least, those kids had a teacher to guide them, while he did not.

602 Harmacs Ext

As he was sulking, his phone rang. He took a glance at it and saw Angelina's name displayed on the screen.

The moment the call was connected, Angelina's anxious voice was heard. "Javier, save me! Hurry up and send someone over to save me!!!"

The Ace at the Apex by Nine Linked Rings Chapter 603 ReadOnline

Chapter 603 The Raiders' Modus Operandi Javier was finding it hard to believe that Angelina was in trouble. However, what was even more unbelievable was that it was not just Angelina who was in trouble, but all the Soroys.

Angelina sounded stressed as she said, "Our family's headquarters is being attacked by Antonov, and this is exactly the reason our defensive capabilities are limited..."

Javier could understand the logic behind this problem. They were all in the same family at the end of the day, so many people could not bring themselves to go up against their enemy. This was especially true now that they knew Antonov was the attacker, which gave them an actual reason not to attack. This was why Angelina was panicking and why Javier understood what the problem was. After Angelina hung up the phone call, she went on to seek the other family's help, while Javier immediately contacted Mackenzie and had the latter bring his men to Thelma Mountains, where the Soroys were located. Meanwhile, Javier himself booked the next immediate flight, planning on rushing over there as soon as possible.

He did not do this just to save Angelina and help her retain her authority within the Soroys, but also to apprehend Antonov. 'Since Antonov has been confirmed to be a part of the Raiders, he's definitely one of the higher -ups there. 'If I take him down, I'm sure he will help us understand the Raiders and how we can deal with them subsequently.'

It was exactly because of this that Angelina would seek the help of other families, and why they would surely rush over to her aid.

The next morning, Javier's plane landed at an airport in Terran Plains.

After half an hour, Mackenzie, who had rushed over there on the Kerseys' plane, arrived at the airport.

To get there as soon as possible, Mackenzie had used the family's plane to transport all 500 fully-armed mercenaries to the destination. It was obvious that they were all fearless, battle-hardened veterans based on their bloodthirsty looks. In combination with their equipment, they were definitely a force to be reckoned with.

After that, more than 10 trucks transported the entire squad to Thelma Mountains at a great speed.

This was a place with actual mountains everywhere that encompassed a very vast area.

The squad had to travel for more than 120 miles in order to enter the heart of the mountains, where the Soroyes were based. The family had probably taken a fancy to how wide the mountainous area was, as it had become their natural barricade.

he

Modus operandi

This was, in fact, exactly what the family liked about the area, as Angelina was able to detect Antonov's movements the moment he entered the mountains.

This was also why she had sufficient time to ask for reinforcements instead of being eliminated by the enemy.

As Javier and his men were rushing over to the venue, Renly and the men of the Whites appeared, followed by Connor Andrews, who was also known as the ruthless and cruel Babyslayer.

The others were not rushing there to save Angelina's authority, but to have a chance to get to Antonov first.

Thus, hundreds of trucks were rushing into the mountains, turning into reinforcements sent by the other families along the way.

Mackenzie took a look at the military satellites and realized that the Thelma Mountains were now surrounded by reinforcements. Their intentions were very clear: They wanted to cut off all of Antonov's possible escape routes. In fact, this was exactly what happened...The moment the reinforcements rushed into the heart of the battle, Antonov and his team were stuck in a pincer attack, which stopped them from both fighting against their enemies and retreating, turning this into a truly helpless situation.

Thanks to everyone's help, Angelina was able to calm down and begin rounding up her family. She could clearly identify who was sitting aside and watching the fight ensue and who wanted to defect to Antonov's side.

Now that this immediate crisis has been averted, it was only natural that she took that chance to deal with all these people.

While Angelina was dealing with traitors and useless imbeciles, Javier was dealing with Antonov and his team. Everything proceeded without a hitch. Antonov and his team suffered a crushing defeat thanks to the huge alliance, and he was now being forced to back up into a very small area, where he could be swallowed whole at any moment. Right at that moment, the Babyslayer furiously raised his rifle and emptied his magazine in the air.

He managed to get everyone's attention, as no one could understand why he would behave so manically after receiving a phone call.

Then, without saying a single word, he took his entire squad with him and retreated.

It was only half an hour later that Javier and Renly both found out what had happened...

The Andrews' former lair had been invaded by the Raiders, causing the current family leader of the Connors, who was the Babyslayer's father, to pass away very gruesomely. Thomas Andrews' head was no longer attached to his body.

It was only at that moment that Javier seemed to understand what had happened and looked at

by great

Rodrigos' Modus Operandi

Renly, who instantly understood and said, "He's worried that the two of us will join hands and take him down. After all, now that Thomas is dead, either one of us could very easily take over his forces. This is exactly why he chose to retreat silently." This was, in fact, very true, and the Babyslayer had indeed made the right call. If he had not retreated, Javier and Renly would have definitely taken over his forces as well. At the end of the day, the Kerseys and the Whites were families who refused to get involved in drugs, while the Andrews thrived on them. Considering that the Babyslayer was such an infamous man with a huge family business, his defeat would surely bring a lot of benefits!

However, it was obvious that not much could be done at that point, as the Babyslayer had a half-an-hour head start, which was ample time for him to become unreachable. Since it was pointless to chase after him, Javier and Renly decided to deal with Antonov first.

The problem now was that neither of them could capture Antonov, a man who was literally supposed to be a fish in a barrel. So, what did happen?

Javier did not understand the reason behind this failure until he cleared all the men Antonov had brought with him.

It turned out that Antonov had been able to leave through a hidden passage, one that was only known to the family leaders of the Soroyes.

Obviously, Angelina was not aware of this hidden passage, as she was not the family leader yet, and this was exactly why Antonov had been able to escape with a few of his personal confidants.

Antonov was nowhere to be found by the time the alliance entered the hidden passage. 'Antonov might have predicted all this ever since he decided to attack the Soroyes, and this has turned out to be yet another one of the Raiders' tricks...Misdirection.

"They managed to execute their plan splendidly this time. We all know that Angelina and Antonov are at odds with one another, so it was only reasonable that Antonov would bring his men to attack Angelina. They also knew that Angelina would definitely come to us for help when she realized she was in danger. "Therefore, the Raiders took advantage of this opportunity to send in another team of people to attack the Andrews."

Javier exchanged a glance with Renly. "They're pretty tactful, it seems!"

Renly smiled bitterly. "That they are. They literally just played us like monkeys. Most importantly, they came up with results that I personally don't hate. The Andrews have surely suffered a severe blow due to this crisis, which has pushed them back by a mile.

"If I'm not mistaken, they're probably on par with the Hachisons now. They'll never stand a chance against one of our families again." Javier nodded his head. That's a very accurate analysis. 'However, this isn't what I actually want.

603 The Ruders' Modus Operand.

The Andrews have always been only slightly weaker in comparison to both our families, yet they were deleted very easily. 'So what if the Raiders target the Kerseys or the Whites?' Javier was growing more and more anxious over the Raiders and was very frustrated at the fact that he still had not managed to get any information on them. He even felt as though he was boxing with shadows, and so did Renly.

Hence, Javier pondered it for a moment before he suddenly told Renly, "Our families should wage war against one another!"

The Ace at the Apex by Nine Linked Rings Chapter 604 ReadOnline

Chapter 604 What Are You Doing Here?! Renly was completely dumbfounded when he heard Javier's suggestion, and it took him about 10 seconds before he finally regained his senses. "Are you crazy?!" It would be earth-shattering news if the Whites were to go into war against the Kerseys.

Not even Earth itself would be capable of withstanding the aftermath should the two families go all out.

However, Javier merely waved his hand. "I'm not crazy. I'm just being a little ambitious with my ideas. If our families go to war, the Raiders will surely choose one of our sides to attack. To them, this would be the easiest way to wipe us out. The method with the highest success rate, in fact.”

Renly now understood that Javier was trying to set a trap to lure the Raiders out of hiding before cutting off their heads. He then pondered it a little deeper and agreed that Javier’s idea was rather ambitious.

“The problem is that there’s no way our families would go into war in our current situation. It just wouldn’t make sense, so I doubt they would fall for it.”

Javier nodded his head when he heard Renly’s question. “You’re right. Those people aren’t fools after all.

“But we’ll be fine once we come up with a reasonable excuse. Me tarnishing your sister’s reputation for example. You’d have a reason to wage war against me then.”

Renly instantly started fuming. “Are you kidding me? There’s not a chance in hell I’m going to let you do that!

Javier was left speechless. “We’re only going to make them think that’s the reason you’re attacking my family. Do you seriously think I’m actually going to do it?” Renly firmly shook his head. “No way, absolutely not! I won’t allow it even if it’s fake!” Renly was very determined not to allow his sister to be tarnished, even if it was only her reputation being tarnished. Thus, Javier’s suggestion would be nothing but a waste of time if the Whites were unwilling to go along with his plans. Javier had his men leave the Soroyes after everything went smoothly over the next few days. The Lasker Award was right within his reach now, and Javier did not even have the time to return to his country at that point. Before he left, he met up with Angelina in private. However, neither of them said anything flirtatious. Instead, they only exchanged words that sincerely came from Javier’s heart. “Call me if you ever come across any trouble. I’ll help you get through it all in a heartbeat.”

Angelina felt particularly at ease after hearing this, especially since Javier had brought the most men within the shortest amount of time when she had asked for his help this time. Most importantly, Javier was the one who had put in the most effort. Javier’s actions alone were enough to prove to Angelina she had chosen the right man. However, she felt neither angry nor regretful because she was not able to claim him as her own and could not become his queen.

“Go on, my King. Go soar as high up in the sky as you wish. You can come back to me anytime you feel tired...”

Javier got on a flight heading straight for Sammius after bidding Angelina, Renly, and the rest farewell.

The Lasker Award Ceremony was being hosted in Sammius and was an event that many people had their eyes on, as it was a pathway to a chance of winning the Nobel Prize. Because of this, the reception of the organizers was more professional than usual

When Javier arrived in Sammius at 5pm. local time, a specialized staff member went over to welcome him.

After all, Javier was the winner of the Public Service Award, so it was only natural that the organizers would pay him special attention,

Javier was led to a car by the professional staff member and was then taken to Hilton International Hotel, where that year's Lasker Award Ceremony was being held Upon arriving at the hotel, Javier hurriedly freshened up, got changed, and rushed off to the Venue.

He was not in a hurry because he wanted to receive the award but because he wanted to meet his father, who had promised they would reunite there!

Unfortunately, Javier still could not find Kaiser anywhere despite strolling around the hall from 6 p.m. all the way to Sp.m. Besides, many others had set their sights on him.

"Hello, Mr. Kersey! I finally got a chance to meet you. You might not know this, but your world -changing vaccine is being widely purchased in my country right now..."

"Pay him no mind, Mr, Kersey. This man is nothing but a crook. My name is Cunard, and I come from the United Business Alliance, which is located in the empire where the sun never sets..."

"Do you two shameless fools not know how far Mr. Kersey had to travel just to come here tonight? He needs to rest! Mr. Kersey, here's my business card. I've always wanted to be involved in the vaccine business, so I'd like to partner up with Reivaj Group for..." Countless people kept on trying to curry favor with Javier so that they could get their hands on the AIDS vaccine that he had developed,

However, even if he wanted to work with them, that was definitely not the right timing to do such a thing

Instead, Javier was solely focused on finding Kaiser, so he had zero interest in dealing with those people at that moment.

After finally managing to shake them off, Javier once again tried to look for Kaiser, but to no avail

at Are You Doing Here

'Did Dad forget our agreement? 'Come on, it isn't right for a father to break a promise he made to his son, right?

Javier could not help thinking further in this direction since he could not find Kaiser.

The award presentation ceremony began and went on for an hour, yet Kaiser was still nowhere to be found, even when it was time for the Public Service Award to be presented.

Javier walked up to the stage to receive his award and was respectfully greeted by the host, who then asked him to give a speech.

Javier was now being watched by everyone present. Due to the fact he was the first Chinese to receive this award, Javier did not want to embarrass his countrymen. Therefore, he suppressed his thoughts and gave a very short and serious speech that earned him a huge round of applause from the audience.

The host invited Javier for a short interview after his speech, but it was at that very moment that Javier suddenly saw a familiar person below the stage... It was not Kaiser, though. It was Suzanne! Javier was very shocked when he saw her. He had already found it very suspicious when Suzanne had suddenly left without saying anything, and she was now present at the award ceremony despite not being invited...

'What's she planning?'

Javier could not help relating Suzanne's mysterious behavior to the Raiders.

Hence, right after he was done chatting with the host, he hurriedly came up with an excuse and left the stage to hurry over to Suzanne. Meanwhile, Suzanne had obviously noticed Javier. With a smile, she stood up and headed to the rear exit next to her.

Javier swiftly followed her and soon left the hotel. Then, he coincidentally saw her entering a vintage Rolls Royce.

Surprisingly, Suzanne seemed to be waiting for Javier on purpose, as the car had not driven away even though its engine was running and the door was open. In fact, Suzanne had opened the back passenger door but ended up sitting in the front. 'Does this mean that someone's sitting behind? Someone with a higher ranking than Suzanne?

Javier was now standing right next to the car and was instantly stunned when he took a look inside...

"Dad?! What are you doing here?!"

There was no mistaking the man inside the car. He was Kaiser Kersey. That familiar face and kind smile of his were unique. However, Javier still could not understand the relationship between the woman who had just entered the car and the man who was sitting inside.

Filled with surprise and curiosity, Kaiser patted the seat next to him and said, "Come in Let's have a chat."