While Frida was an incredibly able fighter, Tyler was just better.

He was one of the Ten Princes of Hell from Gehenna and was ranked in the top fifty mercenaries on this side of the world.

Leaning back slightly, he easily avoided Frida's kick. Using this opportunity, his right hand shot out toward her chest with his fingers curled slightly like claws.

He yelled smugly, "Take this! My patented Dragon Claws!"

His men cheered lecherously as they let out wolf-whistles while Penny and the rest were furious at his despicable actions.

Shocked and enraged, Frida hurriedly dodged the attack.

In the end, Tyler's hand only managed to grab hold of her suit jacket. With a loud ripping sound, he tore the jacket from her body.

Dressed in a white shirt, long black pants and leather boots with her long hair tied up in a ponytail, Frida looked particularly valiant without her suit jacket.

She was both stunned and infuriated that her jacket had been torn away.

Stunned that he was a lot more powerful than she thought and infuriated at his shameless move.

He shot her a wicked smirk, jeering, "Hehehe, quite the agile one, aren't you? Let's see if you can avoid it again!"

With that, he lunged toward her like a fearsome tiger.

Giving a war cry, she dashed forward to meet him. What followed was a flurry of punches and kicks as they battled each other furiously.

Unfortunately for Frida, she was just no match for Tyler.

In no time at all, she found herself unable to hold him off. Helplessness, rage and panic rose in her.

I'm doomed! Am I really going to be insulted by this bastard in front of everybody else?

With three punches, Tyler broke through her defense. His fingers reached for her chest again and he snickered perversely. "Where are you going this time, hmm?"

Terror shone in her eyes as she paled.

At that moment, Nathan stealthily flicked a coin in Tyler's direction. It flew forward silently, its speed so fast that nobody even saw it moving.

Before Tyler's hand could touch Frida's chest, the coin impacted him.

Smack!

Blood sprayed out and the bones in his hand shattered.

"AHHH!" he wailed in pain.

Everybody was confused about what just happened. Tyler obviously had the upper hand, yet now he was suddenly screaming and his hand was injured.

The people on Frida's side had delighted expressions on their faces. They all thought she had used some secret technique to retaliate.

Only Frida was aware that there was some other strong person nearby who had rescued her.

She was deeply grateful to whoever it was that had helped her from the shadows. Taking advantage of the opportunity presented to her, she did not hesitate in dashing towards the injured Tyler.

Whoosh!

Her booted foot came up to kick him in the head.

Wham!

He flew backwards for several meters before slamming to the ground heavily. He was unconscious even before he landed.

“Mr. Haden! Mr. Haden!”

His men cried out in horror as they scurried over to pick him up from the floor.

Frida warned coldly, “Get lost right this instant! Tell Orcus to stop causing trouble for Ms. Smith or else he’ll be next!”

They fled the scene with their tails between their legs, carrying the unconscious Tyler.

Penny and the rest crowded Frida as they applauded and cheered, complimenting her skills.

Flushing red, she swept her gaze around, trying to find the person that had helped her earlier. Yet no matter how hard she tried, there was just no way to tell who it was.

The direction the coin had come flying from seemed to be from Nathan’s vicinity.

Chapter 1212 Secret Powerhouse

Penny complimented Frida for her combat ability, feeling happy that she had managed to hire such a capable bodyguard.

After that, she shoed everyone back to work while she herself went back to her office.

Seeing as she was supposed to protect Penny, Frida was actually quite free whenever her charge was working in the office.

She sat down in one of the chairs in the corridor outside the president's office and took out a coin. Flipping it back and forth, she scrutinized it closely.

This coin was the only piece of evidence she had found earlier. Whoever her savior was had used it to cripple Tyler's hand and turned the tides in her favor.

She could not help wondering who this person was. Just who was so strong that a coin had become a weapon to cripple one of the Ten Princes of Hell?

She was already considered one of the best among the Women's Special Forces, yet she had still been no match for Tyler.

But this mysterious person had easily gotten past his defenses and injured him. That went to show how terrifying they were.

No! I have to find out who my savior was and repay them!

If it had not been for them, she would have been humiliated on the spot by Tyler's dirty move. Her pride would have been wounded and she would never be able to look anyone in the eyes again.

Suddenly, she spotted the surveillance camera in the corridor. An idea popped into her head and she headed for the security control room.

Greeting the security guards there, she requested the surveillance footage of her earlier fight with Tyler.

While the head of security did not know why she wanted that, he knew that she was President Smith's new bodyguard. Thus, he did not ask too many questions as he showed her the requested footage.

Unfortunately, there were too many people there at the time. Even after looking through the footage several times, she was still unable to discover who had helped her.

The truth was Nathan's movements had been so minuscule and the speed of the coin so fast that normal surveillance cameras were unable to capture it.

On her fifth review of the tape, she abruptly noticed a strongly-built figure in one corner of the frame. It was a middle-aged man dressed in janitor's clothing.

He raised his hand and shook it out like he was shaking out a cramp. Yet somehow it almost looked like he was throwing something!

Frida's eyes lit up.

Could it be that this well-built but not very handsome person was the secret powerhouse she was looking for?

The more she looked at the man, the more she felt like he was only acting ordinary on the outside. He must be hiding his abilities!

She turned to ask the head of security, "Who's this man?"

Glancing at who she was talking about, his reply was scornful, "That's Danny Golt. He may look like an honest man but he's actually quite cunning. Always slacking off, he is. He's only been here less than three months but already he's been suspected of theft. Somebody's watch went missing, you see. Unfortunately, we never found any evidence so we couldn't fire him."

Frida frowned slightly. There must be more than meets the eyes with him.

Due to her misunderstanding that Danny was her savior, she instinctively felt inclined to have a good impression of him. She mentally made a note to find him and thank him for his help.

Soon, it was evening and time to get off work.

Frida accompanied Penny to the lobby of Cross Group. She was about to tell her charge to wait for her while she went to get the car when Nathan appeared in his Hongqi.

The car window rolled down and Nathan's smiling face appeared. "Honey, let's go home. Ms. Hampton, you're dismissed."

To be honest, Frida did not have a good impression of Nathan at all. She had heard about how he had gotten drunk and forced himself on Penny, causing her to have a child out of wedlock. She had also personally witnessed how he refused to

From the bottom of her heart, she was scornful of this man.

At that moment, she could not help cursing him in her head when she saw him driving a Hongqi. A Hongqi should only be driven by the leaders of the nation. Anybody who wants one has to undergo a political review before they can buy it. Yet now, a useless jerk like you gets to drive one! What an insult!

She shot Nathan a disdainful glance before turning to Penny. "President Smith..."

Penny spoke up, "Frida, Nathan's right. I'm only going to go home right now so you don't have to follow me anymore. You're free to do as you please."

"Yes, President Smith!"

With that, Nathan and Penny drove off.

On the way back home, Penny commented offhandedly, “Nathan, why do I get the feeling like Frida is prejudiced against you? She doesn’t really seem to like you.”

“Really?” he asked with a chuckle.

She nodded. “Yeah.”

He smiled and shrugged. “She probably believes all those rumors about how I’m leeching off of you at home and condemns me for it.”

Not sure whether to laugh or cry, she suggested, “Maybe I should explain things to her.”

“Why do we have to explain ourselves to other people? It’s none of their business that goes on between me and you. It’s not like we can explain every time someone misunderstands us. That’s just unnecessary.”

Penny had to agree with him. The water would only get murkier if they tried to explain themselves. Sometimes, it was Besides, what did it matter what anyone else thought? It was enough that she knew her husband was an outstanding and amazing man.

That night.

After dinner, Penny said she wanted to go shopping.

Although Nathan was not a big fan of shopping, he still dutifully went with her.

They arrived at Brands Street, a street lined with luxury brand boutiques.

She urged him, "C'mon, let's go have a look at the Armani store up ahead. I want to buy you two sets of suits."

A grimace crossed his face and he protested. "But I don't want to buy any clothing!"

Chapter 1214 You Have Been Cheated By Him

Frida was holding a suit up against the rotund body of Danny. Smiling, she said, “I think you’ll look great in an Armani suit.”

Anyone with eyes could tell that she had a thing for him.

Like any other female, she had always dreamed about meeting her Prince Charming. She had never expected to actually run into him in real life though.

Granted, with his plain looks and portly body, the man before her now was a far cry from the man of her dreams. But still, she was not a woman who judged a book by its cover!

That was why she was infinitely patient and gentle when she talked to him.

As for Danny, while he may look like an honest man, there was a perpetual sly gleam hidden deep in his eyes.

Today after work, Friday had found him and kept pressing him about whether he was the man who had secretly helped her earlier.

At first, he had ignored her as he thought she was just making fun of him. However, as she continued to pester him, he had finally said yes to get her to shut up.

To his surprise, she became very warm and friendly towards him after that.

Now, she had even brought him to buy a branded suit worth tens of thousands!

He made a show of protesting, “Ms. Hampton, this suit is too expensive! I can’t afford that...”

Immediately, she replied, “Despite your exceptional skills, you’ve always kept a low profile. Today, you saved me from suffering a humiliating defeat. That’s why I brought you here to buy you several sets of clothing. Clothes make the man. You deserve better! I plan on buying you a Mercedes Benz later too!”

“Ms. Hampton, I didn’t help you earlier today because I wanted any form of repayment. Assuming that's my reason for saving you is basically spitting in my face!" Despite his words, he was actually inwardly delighted.

She hurriedly explained herself, "Of course I know you're not that kind of person! Otherwise, you wouldn't have kept quiet about your heroic deed. It was only because I discovered it was you that you admitted to it. How about this, think of it as me loaning you the clothing and the car. You can pay me back when you have the money, okay?"

A triumphant glint flashed through Danny's eyes.

He purposely injected wonder and appreciation into his voice, "Ms. Hampton, you're too good to me. It might take me a lifetime to even pay you back!"

Blushing, Frida took out a credit card and handed it to the shop assistant. "I wish to buy these sets of clothing."

Danny greedily drank in the sight of her alluringly flushed face. What a great day it is to be me! Getting both money and a woman? Hell yeah!

Just then, Nathan appeared beside them.

He easily plucked the card from Frida's hand before the shop assistant could take it.

Lips twitching upward into a smile, he looked at the stunned Frida and Danny. "Frida, what a coincidence! Why are you buying clothing for him? Don't tell me he's fooled you into splurging on him?"

Everyone present stared at Nathan with confused looks on their faces.

Frida had not expected to see Nathan and Penny here.

She greeted the woman distractedly before fixing Nathan with a glare. "Mr. Cross, I'm currently off-duty. Who I buy stuff for or whether I've been cheated is none of your concern!"

When Nathan overheard Frida's conversation with Danny, he already guessed that the cunning man was trying to cheat her.

In truth, Nathan was the one who arranged for Frida to be Penny's bodyguard. That was why he could not just stand by and watch as she was taken for a fool.

There was no way he could just ignore the fact that Danny was impersonating him as her savior either.

Sending Frida a smile, Nathan answered, "I couldn't help but overhear you two talking. You said this fatty over here intervened and rescued you during the fight? Heh. Don't be so stupid. He can't even walk a hundred meters without panting. As if he would have the ability to save you!"

Infuriated, Frida shouted, "Don't you judge a book by its cover! Danny may look ordinary but he's anything but! He has hidden powers you can't even imagine!"

Nathan chuckled. “You mean how he looks very earnest but is actually as cunning as they come?”

Danny had been shocked to bump into Nathan and Penny here. After all, he was the chief adviser of Cross Group while she was the president and chairman.

One sentence from either of them and he would be fired just like that!

However, he calmed down a few moments later.

He was but a mere janitor at Cross Group, with a pitiful salary.

If he were able to obtain Frida’s trust, get her to buy him branded clothing or cars - maybe even sleep with him, that would be more than enough for him.

What did it matter if he offended Nathan and Penny or lost his job if the tradeoff was a beautiful woman who was willing to give him everything? Such thoughts bolstered his courage.

Before Danny could respond, Frida was already talking, “But of course! He threw out a coin and crippled Tyler in one move. Isn’t that amazing?”

Penny was astounded when she heard her bodyguard’s words. “No wonder! I was wondering how you managed to suddenly turn the tide of the battle in your favor when it seemed like Tyler had the upper hand. So it was thanks to Danny that you won!”

A bit embarrassed, Frida nodded and admitted, “Yeah. That’s why I’m very grateful to him. He doesn’t look like much but he’s actually quite powerful. Really!”

Danny instinctively puffed his chest out in pride as a triumphant look crossed his “Well, I think that he’s a liar!” Nathan said with a twitch of his lips.

However, Nathan was already continuing, “I have an idea. How about me and Mr. Golt here have a little spar? If he wins, that means I wrongly accused him and I will personally make it up to him. However, if he cannot even defeat me then it means that he’s a liar.”

“Nathan Cross, you’re going too far!” Frida spat.

Penny glanced between the two men thoughtfully. No matter how she looked at it, she didn’t think Danny was some expert hiding his abilities. It was not exactly surprising that Nathan would suspect him of trying to trick Frida. Also, it was always better safe than sorry.

Thus, she said to the other woman, “Frida,

No matter how disrespectful she was to Nathan, Frida was still quite courteous to Penny.

At last, she nodded her head. "Fine. Danny, you should go ahead and spar with Nathan. I know you have some hidden abilities you don't want anyone to know, but you don't have to hold back here. Teach him a lesson for ever doubting you!"

Chapter 1216 You Have Two Options

Danny was dumbfounded at this turn of events. He had not expected he would have to actually fight someone.

Then again, he had learned a bit of mixed martial arts a long time ago and he was also a lot heavier than Nathan. With these two factors in mind, it would be child's play for him to beat up a pretty boy like Nathan.

Right?

So it was that he did not hesitate in agreeing, "Heh. Don't say I didn't warn you!"

The Armani boutique staff had not thought that the situation would escalate to a fight. She hurriedly told them to take it outside.

The group of four made their way outside the store and onto the street.

Nathan had a mocking smile on his lips as he gave Danny an inviting gesture. "Bring it on!"

Spreading his arms wide, he lunged toward Nathan while swinging his fist.

To a layman like Penny, nothing seemed out of the ordinary. However, for someone skilled in fighting like Frida, she was completely dumbstruck at what she saw.

Not only was Danny's lower body unsteady and his body posture loose, but the fist also he swung out was limp and weak. There were a million mistakes that she could see. In fact, he was no better than a street thug!

She was visibly upset as an uneasy feeling rose in her.

Have I really been played for a fool? No, that can't be. Danny must just be acting weak to catch Nathan off guard.

However, her last shred of hope was destroyed by Nathan merely seconds later.

He easily avoided Danny's fist and raised his own, giving his pudgy face a light punch.

"Why did you lie to me?" she demanded.

Danny slunk off as quickly as he could, leaving behind a dejected Frida.

She had honestly not expected Danny would be a fake. Then who and where was the mysterious person who had helped her?

Penny, who saw how disappointed Frida was, hastily tried to console the woman.

After that, she whispered to Nathan, “Look at what you’ve done! You ruined things for her. Let’s hurry up and leave.”

At the head of the group were two men, one with two crossing scars on his face while the other had shaved his head bald.

They were two of Gehenna's Ten Princes of Hell. The one with the scars was Garza Jennings while the baldheaded man was Teneb Siel.

The menacing-looking men they had brought with them swiftly surrounded Nathan, Penny and Frida.

Garza spoke up coldly, "You guys the ones who beat up Tyler and refused to see Master Orcus?"

Frida had no idea how they were going to get out of this alive.

Just then, Nathan uttered in a hard tone, "Gehenna again? You guys really are like cockroaches."

He handed the car keys to Frida, instructing, "Frida, drive Penny home first. I can handle things here."

He smiled at her and stated, “It’s okay. You guys can go first. I’ll be back after I’m done dealing with them. Don’t you trust me, Honey?”

This was not the first time Penny had seen her husband in action. Indeed, he was quite strong as he had been serving in the army for so many years. His combat skills had to be of a certain level to have survived for so long.

Finally, she nodded. “Alright then. Frida and I shall wait for you at the parking lot.”

“Okay!”

With that, Frida ushered Penny away.

Garza and Teneb moved to stop them but Nathan’s bulky figure stepped in their way.

The words had barely left his lips when he dashed toward Nathan, his speed turning him into a blur.

The rest of his men could feel their blood rushing through their veins in excitement as they cheered him on.

Whoosh!

When Garza was close to Nathan, his leg flashed out to kick the other man’s head.

Nathan casually took a step back, nimbly avoiding the attack.

Garza's leg continued unimpeded until it impacted a nearby lamp post.

Clang!

Screams and shouts of terror sounded from the passers-by.

Like some sort of phantom, Garza once more neared Nathan and swept his leg out again, this time aiming for the other man's legs.

Another two steps backwards and Nathan dodged his sweep.

All along his sweep, the bricks on the floor shattered into dust alarmingly.

The battle continued in the same vein, with Garza relentlessly attacking while Nathan effortlessly avoided all of them.

You guys are pretty mediocre.”

Mediocre?

Garza, Teneb, their men, even the surrounding spectators were all stunned to hear his words.

One kick from Garza could topple a lamp pole and another kick would shatter all the bricks on the floor. Someone with that kind of ability was only considered mediocre by Nathan?

More than a dozen of them fell to the ground, howling in pain as the fragments embedded them in their skin.

At the same moment, Garza and Teneb sped toward him like two cannonballs.

They were hoping to defeat him by working together!

Like a bolt of lightning, Nathan's fist rammed into Garza's chest.

Chapter 1218 Kill Him

sound.

There was no way those men from Gehenna would let Nathan go alive. Unless he was a secret master and defeated them both?

How could that be possible? Even she could not win against those men!

She levelled an appraising glance at him. This man was becoming more of an enigma by the day.

Another thought occurred to her. If he really were a skillful fighter, could it be that he was the one who had helped her in her fight with Tyler?

The more she mulled over that idea, the more her suspicion grew.

“Are you okay, hubby?” Penny asked concernedly as she rushed towards Nathan.

“Nathan, I thought it was hard to escape?” Frida Hampton asked in surprise as she also approached him.

The man glared at her. “Why? Do you wish I never escaped?”

Frida’s face flushed at his question. “That’s not what I meant. I’m just curious about how you managed to get away,” She quickly explained.

Upon hearing that, Penny stared at him, also wondering just how he got rid of those men from Gehenna.

“I reasoned with them and convinced them with virtue,” Nathan responded with a smile.

“Impossible. Those people have an incredibly high EQ. They’re feared in Brimmopolis, never mind a small city like Channing. I find it hard to believe that they'd listen to you."

"That's why I beat them until they became honest with me," Nathan uttered.

What?

Penny and Frida exchanged a look with each other when they heard this.

The former didn't know how strong Garza Jennings and Teneb Siel were. Because of that, though she was surprised, she wasn't that shocked.

Frida, on the other hand, was blown away for a completely different reason.

She was quite knowledgeable about Gehenna and knew that the members of Ten Princes of Hell were better than one another.

Tyler Haden, who was ranked last in Ten Princes of Hell, had beaten her from every direction. During that time, she was unable to block his attacks at all.

Yet Nathan actually took down the highly-ranked Garza Jennings and Teneb Siel? Impossible!

But he wouldn't be here if that didn't happen. I find it really hard to believe, though.

She looked at Nathan in both surprise and doubt.

Was he the one who helped me take down Tyler in the dark earlier?

She was uneasy when she thought that the man she looked down upon for living off of a woman could be an expert at combat - one that could be her savior.

At the same time, she also decided to figure out this matter. Was he really the one who had saved her?

Meanwhile, in a morgue at the funeral home.

Elijah Pierce was standing there, looking at the corpses of Garza Jennings and Teneb Siel. He wore a black suit with a fur coat, which made his tall and sturdy figure look even more burly, just like Ryker Rue.

Seven figures were standing tall and straight behind him.

Those seven people were the remaining Ten Princes of Hell.

Further behind them, some serious-looking subordinates were standing there row after row.

It was so quiet that they could hear the sound of a needle dropping. The air seemed to be freezing as the atmosphere felt terribly heavy.

After a while, Elijah voiced out, "A week ago, my brother was wasted by other people. Tyler Haden was seriously injured this afternoon. And right now, the corpses of Garza Jennings and Teneb Siel are in front of me. My mood has never been as bad as it is today over the years."

The Seven Princes of Hell, as well as their subordinates, bowed their heads wordlessly.

Everyone could see how bad of a mood their Master Orcus was in right now. They didn't dare get to his bad side.

Elijah turned to look at them. "Get ready for dinner!" He blandly ordered.

Everyone froze when they heard that. After a minute, Blacky regained his senses as he fished out his phone to call the hotel. "Ask the chefs to prepare something for the Gehenna. We're going to dine there..."

Thump!

Before he could even finish speaking, Elijah kicked him harshly, and he stumbled across the room.

"The Princes of Hell have just lost three members, yet you guys are actually waiting for mealtime? Are you stupid!" He roared ferociously.

"Prepare for a battle! Wear mourning attire and bring the coffin. We'll seek revenge from Nathan!"

"Affirmative!" The Seven Princes of Hell and their subordinates replied in unison.

Chapter 1220 The Gehenna

The wind was strong, and the night sky was empty.

There was an obvious indication of rain. In the wake of this, the lone passers-by increased their footsteps, and the shops closed ahead of the scheduled time.

A funeral team suddenly appeared on Riverside Street. They were all wearing black clothes, playing a dirge, and spreading white papers as they headed to Riverside while carrying a coffin.

Ad interim, in Nathan Cross's house in Riverside.

Penny had just arranged a room for Frida since she would be staying with them.

The latter would become Penny's bodyguard from now on. Due to this job, it was more convenient for her to live with them. It would be easier to follow and protect the woman.

At first, Benson and Leah thought it was a bit troublesome for their daughter to have a bodyguard. But Penny was now a chairman cum president of a large group, unlike before.

They should always be on their guard to prevent any accidents. Because of this, having a bodyguard was necessary for her. Upon this realization, they didn't voice out any opinions regarding this matter.

Besides, the house Nathan had bought was a two-and-a-half-floor villa. They had eight rooms, so it wouldn't be crowded when Kylie and Frida moved in.

Nathan had just finished teaching his daughter with her homework when his phone rang out of the blue. He walked to the outside balcony to answer the call.

"Master, I have bad news!" Colin Dunne's deep voice sounded.

Nathan frowned. "What's the matter?"

"Master Orcus of the Gehenna is leading the Seven Princes of Hell along with more than two hundred elite subordinates to your house! They're all wearing black attire, playing a dirge and carrying a coffin! Judging by their appearance, I think Orcus is trying to seek revenge from you."

Nathan squinted his eyes and coldly said, "Are you kidding me? I've warned the Princes of Hell before. Instead of stepping down, they're making things worse? Well, in that case, I shall destroy them! Go get prepared! I'm coming out right away lest they come into the neighborhood and disturb my family!"

"Right away!" Colin replied firmly.

Nathan ended the call and told his family he was going out before putting on a coat. After that, he left the house.

Little did he know that his voice was a bit too loud. Frida, who was in the living room, vaguely heard part of his conversation.

She heard him talk about something about the Gehenna before he left.

Maybe he's going out to meet someone from the Gehenna!

With that, she unhesitatingly informed Penny that she was going out to buy something. Once she was outside, she secretly followed Nathan.

She was trying to confirm if he was a peerless master. In addition to that, she was also trying to figure out if he was the one who had saved her in the dark.

If he's going out to meet with Gehenna's people, maybe I can find my answers. She grew even more excited upon that thought.

She carefully followed him using the investigation and tracking skills she had learned in the actual combat zones when she was in the army.

Unbeknown to her, however, Nathan was already aware of her presence in the dark as soon as he left the house.

His brows furrowed, but he ignored her. His main focus was to handle the bastards from Gehenna. He didn't have time to deal with her nonsense.

If she wants to come along, then so be it!

When he arrived at Riverside's gate, Colin and the Elite Eight were already there waiting for him.

"Master!" They greeted in unison, to which Nathan replied with a nod.

The dirge echoed through the street from a distance.

Shortly after, a group of people dressed in black came into view. They were spreading white papers while carrying a coffin. The scene seemed even more terrifying at night.

The Gehenna had arrived!
