Chapter 1391 Look Out Nathan

Frida also secretly heaved a sigh of relief as soon as she saw Nathan.

Similarly, upon Nathan’s arrival, Marcus and his co-workers all felt as though a heavy weight had been lifted off their shoulders.

Although they weren’t aware of Nathan’s actual identity, they knew he was one of Cross Group’s employees. They had faith in Nathan because they had witnessed how he used to teach the thugs a lesson back in the day.

Nathan nodded and assured Penny everything would be fine. He signaled her he would take control of the situation.

In the meantime, Victor and the bunch of bandits had their eyes on Nathan as well.

They had gotten their hands on Cross Group’s employees because they had another hidden agenda——their ultimate target was Nathan.

The moment Victor saw Nathan, he signaled his underlings discreetly and beckoned them to get themselves ready for battle.

Victor then yelled deliberately, “Hey, who the hell are you?”

In return, Nathan replied nonchalantly, “I’m her husband. It seems like you’re the one who’s intimidating my wife, huh? I’ll give you a chance to get down on your knees and apologize for what you have done. Apart from that, you have to pay a hundred billion to compensate my wife for her psychological loss. If you’re willing to adhere to my demands, I’ll let you die peacefully.”

What!

Victor and the bunch of bandits were rendered speechless by Nathan’s pompous words.

As usual, Penny, Frida, and Marcus were taken aback by Nathan's remarks as well. They exchanged glances as they tried to figure out what Nathan was up to.

Before long, everyone returned to their senses because they realized Nathan was merely returning the favor. After all, Victor had previously demanded a ten-billion compensation from Penny.

However, Nathan went all out and asked for a hundred billion of compensation in return.

Judging by Nathan's warning, even if Victor were to transfer him the requested sum, Nathan would still kill him at the end of the day. He would merely get to die peacefully from adhering to Nathan's instructions.

Unbelievable! He's such an arrogant fool!

Victor glared at Nathan incredulously because he couldn't believe his ears. "How dare you threaten me, you insolent fool! You're the first in the North who has the guts to make such a harsh remark against me!”

Similarly, Victor’s underlings stared at Nathan in an intimidating manner. They were all looking murderous by now.

Nevertheless, Nathan behaved as though he couldn’t be bothered at all. He simply replied, “Really? I actually think the opposite! In the North, bandits like you mean nothing at all to me!”

Victor’s eyes glinted wrathfully as soon as he heard Nathan’s words; he was determined to kill Nathan to vent his anger.

In the end, the overly infuriated man burst into laughter and warned Nathan, “Ha! You’re the one who’s courting death! Please don’t blame me for what’s in store for you next! Let’s get him, boys!”

Immediately, the vicious-looking bandit took the lead once again. He reached for his dagger and sprinted over to Nathan’s side with a few bandits around him.

“To hell you go, you impudent fool!” He drove his dagger at Nathan's heart as he spoke.

"Look out, Nathan!" Penny shrieked with all her might.

Lifting his hands swiftly, Nathan managed to easily restrain the vicious-looking bandit by the wrist, rendering him immobile.

The vicious-looking man was only a few centimeters away from his target's heart, but he could no longer bring himself forward, no matter how hard he tried.

"You!" He was horrified because he couldn't move away from Nathan, no matter how hard he tried.

Nathan snorted contemptuously and gradually tightened his grip until he broke his opponent's arm.

Arghhhh! The vicious-looking bandit groaned in pain hysterically. Before the man could retaliate against Nathan, Nathan had already snatched the former's dagger and returned him the favor.

Chapter 1391 Look Out Nathan

Nathan thrust the dagger into the man's left cheek and only stopped when the tip of the blade emerged from his right cheek.

Suddenly, the vicious-looking bandit resembled a cannibalistic tribesman.

To wrap things up, Nathan raised his leg, sending the man flying with his powerful kick.

The rest of the bandits were taken out by the Elite Eight swiftly before they could get near Nathan.

It was obvious that Victor didn't expect Nathan's subordinates to be such a capable bunch. In fact, the bandits weren't a match for the Elite Eight at all.

Thus, Victor made up his mind and instructed his men in a low and serious tone, "He's a formidable foe! We'll use the guns!"

Immediately, Victor's gang reached for their guns and took aim at Nathan and his subordinates.

Thankfully, Colin, who was always observant, noticed what the bandits were up to and got ahead of them.

The veteran marksman reached for his gun immediately. He hesitated no more and fired several consecutive shots instantly. It wasn't even necessary for him to take aim at his targets.

Bam! Bam! Bam! Bam!

The bandits by Victor's side were taken down instantaneously because Colin managed to put a bullet through each of their heads.

Victor couldn't believe it—Nathan's subordinates were insanely strong. They were a bunch of capable fighters, and Colin, especially, was a master marksman.

He couldn't help but doubt Nathan's identity because the latter didn't seem like an ordinary businessman at all. His face grew increasingly pale the more he wondered about Nathan's background.

Chapter 1392 Do Not Burn Your Bridges

The bandits were used to putting on an intimidating front before ordinary folks, but they were easily unnerved by those superior to them.

Victor's underlings fled after they witnessed Colin and the Elite Eight showcasing their capabilities.

Victor was actually about to flee as well, but Colin had been keeping an eye on him so he couldn't possibly run away from the sharp-shooter.

He turned around and looked at Nathan with a horrifying look. Victor tried to talk his way out and told Nathan, "Hey, you shouldn't burn your bridges, or else things will get to the point of no return for us. I'm sure you don't want that either, right?"

Nathan, who was initially quite a distance away, somehow showed up in front of Victor the moment he finished his sentence.

Before Victor could grasp the situation, Nathan had already slapped him in the face.

Slap!

Victor's lips bled as he was sent flying by Nathan's powerful slap. In the end, he fell to the ground with a few broken teeth.

"Seriously? Do you think I have to establish any sort of relationship with bandits like you?" Nathan asked rhetorically in a callous tone.

Nathan wasn't kidding: there were only a selected few with whom he would consider worthy of establishing a relationship. These people included Zach Hill, the General of the South; Lucas Ziegler, the General of the West; and Elijah Lowe, the General of the East.

Nathan found Victor's words hilariously appalling because Victor was suggesting that Nathan should become friends with an inferior bandit like himself.

In actual fact, Victor was not a weakling, but even he did not realize he would not be able to withstand a slap from Nathan.

He looked at Nathan in fear and asked with a stutter, “W-Who the hell are you?”

“I’m sure someone has sent you to come after me, right? Didn’t he tell you my actual identity?” Nathan looked at Victor and asked indifferently.

Victor’s expression changed drastically all of a sudden. He was baffled, and finally realized he seemed to have been made use of by others.

At the same time, Nathan detected a strong murderous intent coming from behind him as he tried to interrogate Victor to figure out who had sent him.

Nathan’s rich experience on the battlefield gave him a strong hunch that something dangerous was coming his way at that very moment. As a result, he, who had been standing still, suddenly moved a step to the side.

A gunshot could be heard as soon as Nathan shifted his position. In fact, the bullet whizzed by Nathan's side as he was on the move.

The bullet that was going after Nathan sent Victor to hell instead, because Nathan managed to evade the shot in the nick of time. Therefore, Victor fell victim to the sniper while Nathan got away unscathed.

The sniper hiding in the dark found it absurd. Damn it! Why the hell did he move all of a sudden? I had my eyes on him all this time!

The sniper was about to aim at Nathan once again when Colin got ahead of him and fired a shot in the sniper's direction before he could achieve his goal.

It turned out Colin had taken note of the presence of a sniper the moment Nathan evaded the attack.

Immediately, he found the sniper through the reflection of his scope. He reached for his gun and took aim at the sniper. The moment he secured his target, he fired a shot without hesitation.

Bang!

Colin's shot sent the sniper's scope shattering into pieces. The bullet did not stop there; it instead traveled all the way through the sniper's head, dragging him to hell.

Colin then instructed the Elite Eight, "There are hitmen hiding in the dark. I want four of you to follow me to take them out immediately. The other four of you, protect the general!"

Colin gave his order as such because four members of the Elite Eight were extremely skilled in being offensive, whereas the other four excelled in defense.

Bang! Bang! Bang!

Once again, several shots were fired. They were obviously coming after Nathan.

Thankfully, Nathan had readied himself for the upcoming ambush and got away in time, evading every shot fired at him.

On the other hand, having successfully pinpointed the hitmen's exact location, Colin rushed over to the hitmen along with four of the Elite Eight.

Although Nathan, Penny, and the staff from Cross Group couldn't see what was going on, they heard muffled sounds of shots being fired and several people groaning.

Within minutes, four of the Elite Eight returned. They had taken down the hitmen.

Nathan asked in a serious tone because Colin was nowhere to be seen, "Where's Colin?"

Quatre, one of the four, replied, "Sir, he

Nathan frowned the moment upon hearing Quatre’s report.

Penny, pale with concern, rushed over to her husband’s side and asked, “Nathan, what should we do next?”

Similarly, Marcus and his fellow co-workers were anxious as well. They looked at Nathan in anticipation of a solution.

These people were merely there for a company trip; never would they expect to be caught up in such a messy situation with so many casualties.

As usual, Nathan reassured Penny. “It will be fine. For the time being, I’ll have you rendezvous with Dad and Mom. All of you have to leave the resort immediately. Head over to the hotel in the city. I’ll take care of everything here.”

Penny knew her husband was the General of the North; therefore, she was certain that Nathan would be able to take care of everything as he had assured her. In the end, she nodded and replied, "Okay!"

"I want all of you to protect Penny at all costs!" Nathan instructed the four members of the Elite Eight specialized in defense.

Hence, Penny, her employees, and Frida were all safely escorted away.

Once Penny and her group had left, Nathan needed someone to deal with the miserable scene. He called Patrick Henderson, the person in charge of Bossania City's military districts, and instructed him to rush over to the scene with his troops immediately.

Within half an hour, Patrick showed up with his troops and took over the scene. They covered up the incidents and told the villagers they were there to defeat the bandits.

Finally, Colin returned to them. He came back in a Maybach and brought a person out of the car the moment he returned to Nathan's side.

Although the man had been beaten to a pulp, Nathan could recognize him. He was none other than Sky Reilly, one of the Leeroy family strategists.

Colin, who had engaged in an intense fight, looked disheveled. He saluted Nathan and reported, "Sir, I have returned with a suspect. It took me some time because I had to pursue him for quite a distance, and he had five bodyguards with him."

"Hm. It won't be necessary for you to put your life at stake to go after someone anymore if such a situation arises in the future," Nathan tapped on Colin's shoulder and asserted.

Nathan looked at Sky. Actually, he had figured out what was going on the moment he saw Sky.

He asked with an odd grin on his face, "Mr. Reilly, do you have anything to share?"

Sky had an awful expression on his face. Actually, Lucifer Leeroy was the mastermind. In order to ensure everything would go according to plan, Sky had been dispatched along with a few snipers to support Victor.

However, things took a drastic turn in the end. They couldn't take Nathan out, but their entire squad had been taken out by their target instead.

Naturally, Sky couldn't betray the Leeroy family and tell Nathan they were the ones behind it. Thus, he gritted his teeth and decided to bite the bullet.

Taking the blame on behalf of the Leeroys, Sky yelled, "I don't think I have anything to share with you. Indeed, I have sent Victor, the bandits, and the snipers to go after you. Since I have been captured, kill me if you want.”

“Oh? Mr. Reilly, I don’t think I have ever offended you personally, right? I’m pretty sure there’s someone else behind you because it doesn’t make any sense for you to hold a grudge against me,” Nathan replied, grinning.

“It’s because of Orlando Hicks! He’s my best friend. Since you have killed my best friend, I have to avenge him!” Sky rebuked Nathan’s hypothesis.

“Sky, who the hell do you think you are? Do you really think you will be able to take the blame on Lucifer’s behalf? Are you aware of the possible consequence awaiting you for attempting to assassinate the general?” Colin warned Sky.

“This has nothing to do with Mr. Leeroy! Kill me if that’s what you want!” Sky held his head high as he replied.

Soon, Nathan, the Elite Eight, and Sky got into two separate Jeeps.

Sky was certain he would be killed. Actually, he had intended to sacrifice himself the moment he was arrested because he felt it would be a great honor to contribute to the Leeroy family’s great scheme.

Nevertheless, he couldn’t bear to leave his family behind.

Once he thought about them, tears streamed down his cheeks. However, he would have to forsake his family for his ambitions.

Nathan's lips curled upwards once he noticed the look Sky had on his face.

They had been sitting in the cars for quite some time as though they were heading to a certain somewhere. Finally, their rides came to a halt.

As soon as their rides stopped, Sky shuddered, feeling a sense of despair deep down. He became afraid of death at the thought that he was one step away from hell.

Sky opened his eyes slowly and asked, "Have we reached the place of execution? Is it time for me to be die?"

Nathan, who was by Sky's side, replied with a smile politely, "Mr. Reilly, why don't you turn around and have a look outside the window?"

Although Sky couldn't fathom what Nathan was up to, he turned around and looked outside as instructed.

They were not on an isolated mountain, nor did they come to an execution ground. Instead, they had parked in front of Sky's house.

Initially, Sky was shocked. A few seconds later, he turned around and looked at Nathan wrathfully, "General, what exactly are you up to? Why have you brought me here? Do you mean you will involve my family if I refuse to cooperate with you?"

"Huh? Sky, am I such a brutal person in your mind?" Nathan asked rhetorically.

"Aren't you going to threaten me with the wellbeing of my family?" Sky was confused by Nathan's question.

"Seriously? I'm not Lucifer, okay? I will never resort to such a low method!" Nathan replied nonchalantly.

Finally, Sky recalled Nathan's identity as well as his personality. He felt a sense of relief because he was certain Nathan would never use his family to threaten him.

Nonetheless, he couldn't figure out what

Nathan was up to. In the end, he asked,
“General, why have you brought me here...”

“What?” Sky was utterly shocked.

Usually, he would have to atone for his sins with death since he had offended the General of the North. In fact, the next generations of Sky’s family would be adversely impacted as well. They could never become civil servants in the future, let alone hold important positions in government.

Therefore, Sky couldn’t figure out the reason Nathan decided to let him off the hook and set him free after what he had done.

“You are but a pawn; it won’t do me any good to take you out. However, I have decided to let you off the hook because I have something else in mind, and hopefully you’ll come to your senses soon.

I hope you'll join me in defeating Lucifer. I need someone to testify against him for what he has done," Nathan reassured the confused man as he gave the suggestion.

All of a sudden, Sky fell silent. Although he was grateful Nathan had shown him mercy, he couldn't possibly turn his back against Lucifer, to whom he had sworn loyalty.

Since Sky couldn't make up his mind, Nathan beckoned and instructed, "You may leave now. I'll be staying in Bossania for another few days. If you change your mind, feel free to reach out to me. I'll always welcome you."

Sky spoke no more. He stepped out of the Jeep and returned home.

Colin and the Elite Eight didn't get in his way, either.

Before departing, Nathan wound down the window of the car and bade farewell to the man. "Thank you, Mr. Reilly."

Thank you? Why on earth is he thanking me?

Finally, Colin and the rest of his party drove off.

Two Mercedes-Benz showed up in front of Sky's house before he could get inside. A few men in black rushed out of the car. The person leading the men in black had an extremely domineering demeanor due to the black birthmark covering half of his face.

He was none other than Winston, the captain to the King of the North's personal bodyguards.

"Winston? Why are you here?" Sky was shocked.

"Why has Nathan sent you home when you have attempted to assassinate him? Didn't you get caught red-handed by his subordinates?" Winston asked with a poker face.

He was certain Winston wouldn't believe it if he were to tell him Nathan had decided to be merciful for once and let him off the hook.

Once he made up his mind and was about to explain himself, Winston got ahead of him and asked callously once more, "Apart from bringing you home, he expressed his gratitude before leaving. Why did he do that?"

Sky had an odd expression on his face—he finally figured out why Nathan had set him free.

"Listen to me, Winston! It's nothing close to what you have in mind!" Winston tried to explain himself immediately.

It seemed like it was too late for Sky to explain himself. Winston replied indifferently, "Don't bother explaining yourself to me. You should explain

The moment Sky heard Winston’s reply, his heart sank to the bottom of his stomach.

In the meantime, Nathan and the rest of his party were on their way to the hotel Penny had checked into.

Throughout the way, Colin asked as he couldn’t hold back his curiosity anymore, “Sir, why did you let Sky go when he has offended you?”

Nathan replied confidently with a smile, “It’s over for him. I’m sure he will reach out to us soon. He’ll definitely become our witness and testify against Lucifer. We shall acquire the evidence of Lucifer’s evil deeds through him.”

Meanwhile, in the Leeroy family mansion.

Lucifer was helping himself to a cup of tea as Sky reported the timeline of the whole incident. He had an odd expression on his face, as though he had an entirely different version of the events in his mind.

Similarly, his underling—the Merciless Duo, the Seven Champions, the Twelve Apostles—all had undecipherable looks as they listened to Sky's report.

Sky summarized the entire timeline and told Lucifer as he looked at him anxiously. "Sire, our plan to assassinate Nathan failed because we underestimated the capability of his subordinates. They are far more capable than we have perceived them to be. Victor and the bunch of bandits couldn't defeat Nathan. The snipers I brought along have been taken out by his subordinates as well."

"But he had set you free, huh?" Lucifer asked rhetorically.

Sky tried his best to persuade Lucifer, "Yes! That's exactly what Nathan is up to! He's trying to stir things up between us because he wants us to turn our backs against one another, Sire! Nathan will achieve his goal if everyone thinks I have betrayed you. In short, he was trying to force me into submission because he was certain you would doubt my loyalty."

Lucifer's eyes glinted with a barely noticeable murderous intent. He got up from his seat and made his way over to Sky's side.

In fact, I think of you more as a close acquaintance of mine than a subordinate. We won't allow Nathan to achieve what he has in mind, never!"

"Thank you so much, Sire! Thank you for having faith in me!" Sky became emotional and expressed his gratitude.

"You must have had a long day. I guess it's time for you to return home and get some rest. Eventually, I'll think of something and deal with Nathan," Lucifer nodded and reassured Sky once more.

He made eye contact with Winston as he delivered his instructions. Naturally, Winston knew Lucifer wanted Sky dead, meaning he was to take out Sky as he sent the latter back to his home.

“Thank you,” Sky expressed his gratitude.

Soon, they went into the car together and made their way back to Sky’s house.

One of Winston’s subordinates was the driver, while Winston and another subordinate sat by Sky’s side.

Sky had fallen asleep a few minutes after getting into the car and snored as the group made their way toward his place. The lethargic man seemed to have no idea what would befall him soon.

Bang!

All of a sudden, Winston heard a shot being fired in close proximity. Before he could realize what was going on, he had been shot in the head.

Winston collapsed; he died with his eyes wide open.

His subordinates were shocked that their supervisor was taken out by surprise.

As one of Lucifer's strategists, Sky was an extremely intelligent man. And given he had been by Lucifer's side for years, he knew well what Lucifer was up to.

Usually, Lucifer would throw a tantrum whenever someone failed a mission he had assigned the person. If he had thrown a tantrum in front of Sky, things would have come to an end.

However, if Lucifer behaved the exact opposite way and treated those who had failed their mission in a courteous manner, it meant that he had something else in store for them.

Thus, Sky knew Lucifer would kill him the moment they left the Leeroy family mansion.

He decided to be vulnerable in front of Winston by pretending to be asleep. However, he had hidden a miniature pistol with him all along.

Once Sky killed Winston, he did not hesitate to take aim at the other two men in the car and killed them both before they could figure out what was going on.

As the driver was killed, the car went out of control and ran into the flower bed by the road.

It took Sky quite some time, but he managed to move the corpses out of the car and buried them within the flower bed.

Once he dealt with them, he rushed home immediately. Finally, he brought his wife and children to Bossania City's military district. Most importantly, he had a name list with him which detailed the information of those who had participated in the murder of Wyatt Windsor.

Sky had made up his mind to yield himself to Nathan's authority. Currently, Nathan was on his way to Bossania City's military district to meet Patrick, the person

Meanwhile, Penny, Kylie, and Frida were anxiously waiting for Nathan's return at the lobby of the Hilton, the most famous hotel in Bossania City.

Most of the hotel's guests took notice of the trio as they went in and out of the hotel.

Although they have different demeanors, the three ladies were equally gorgeous in appearance.

Penny was the most stunning one amongst the three. She had the perfect figure to complement her flawless facial features. Men would easily fall for her given her appearance.

Suddenly, a few men made their way into the hotel. They were equally tall and seemed as though they were part of the military.

On second look, they seemed more like a bunch of delinquents because they lacked the righteous and determined demeanor of a soldier.

The person leading the party was surprised the moment he detected Penny's presence. His eyes gleamed as he greeted playfully, "Hey! You're Penny, right?"

Penny was dumbfounded. It took her quite some time to recognize the man in front of her. "You're Randy?"

The playful man was Randy Fallon, who used to be Penny's neighbor back in the day. The two families had been on good terms, and Penny had always been polite with Randy.

Randy noticed Penny was in designer's clothing from head to toe, complete with high heels and a luxury watch.

It has been a decade since we last met. I can't believe she has turned into such a gorgeous woman! It seems like she's pretty rich as well. Could she be some company CEO?

Randy was proud of himself as well the moment he saw the adoration Penny had on her face. He thought perhaps he could achieve what he had in mind all along.

Nevertheless, he put on a calm front and replied, “It’s nothing. After all, I’m just a colonel.”

The moment she finished her sentence, she was reminded of her husband because Nathan had reached the rank of a general before he even turned thirty.

She had a bright grin thinking of her husband; she was so proud of him that she couldn't hide her emotions.

Similarly, Kylie and Frida who were by Penny's side had the exact same idea in their minds.

Nathan isn't thirty yet, but he's already the General of the North and the God of War. He's such an exceptional man!

The expressions the ladies had on their faces caused Randy to misperceive Penny, Kylie, and Frida. He thought they were adoring him and were impressed by his achievement.

Therefore, he pretended to be disappointed and told them, “My hard work throughout the years finally paid off because the general acknowledges me and places great emphasis on me. Although I’m a thirty-year-old colonel of the North Army, I’m still single. To be honest, I’m quite embarrassed because of that.”

“Does that mean you have yet to get married, Randy?” Penny was shocked.

In return, Randy nodded and told Penny, “Yes. That’s because I have a crush on a woman. She’s the only one I have in my mind, and I can’t possibly accept any other woman besides her.”

Curious, Penny asked, “Who is it? Why haven’t you confessed your feelings to her?”

Consequently, Penny, Kylie, Frida were rendered speechless by the man’s reply.

Meanwhile, Randy grabbed the opportunity and confessed to her, “Penny, I have always had a crush on you ever since we’re young, but I have been keeping it to myself because I don’t think I deserved you back in the day. In the past few years, I have worked my way through the ranks and became a senior officer. In fact, I’m now Captain of the General of the North’s personal bodyguards. I’m quite an influential figure amongst those in the North Army. Penny, will you marry me? I’ll make you the happiest woman in the world.”

Penny waved her hands immediately and rejected Randy’s proposal. “N-No... It’s impossible: I’m married to someone else whom I love wholeheartedly. Actually, we have a five-year-old daughter as well. You should keep your affection for another girl, Randy. I’m sure you deserve a better woman!”

What? Penny is married to someone else?

Randy was dumbfounded as he thought to himself.

He was about to say something else when the cold voice of a man came from behind him. "Penny, who is this?"

Everyone turned around and saw Nathan walking into the hotel with Colin and the rest of his party by his side.

Chapter 1397 Are You The Husband Of Penny

Immediately, Penny introduced the men to one another, “Nathan, this is Randy Fallon, my neighbor back in the day. Randy, this is my husband, Nathan Cross.”

Randy sized up Nathan the moment the latter approached him, and stared at Nathan with a hostile look on his face.

He teased with a skin-deep smile, “Hey, you’re Penny’s husband?”

“Yes. That’s me,” Nathan replied nonchalantly.

Randy asked once more as he circled Nathan, “Mr. Cross, what sort of business are you involved in?”

If he’s not a businessman, then he must be an ordinary employee working for others!

Immediately, Randy scoffed, “Does that mean you’re an ordinary employee? Do you really think you deserve Penny? Look at the differences between you and Penny. She's dressed in all sorts of designer's items, yet you're only in streetwear! You know what? You should stop wasting Penny's time and divorce her immediately!"

"Really? If that's the case, who else deserves to be her husband?" Nathan asked sarcastically.

"Me! I'm the colonel of the North Army, Captain of the General of the North's personal bodyguard. In short, I'm the one best suited for Penny," Randy pointed at himself and asserted proudly.

"Really? You're the captain of the General of the North's personal bodyguard? Why am I not aware of such a thing?" Nathan chuckled the moment he heard Randy's words.

Randy's eyes widened in disbelief. He was taken aback by Nathan's reply and infuriated at the same time. He was about to rebuke Nathan's statement because no one could possibly deny him of the identity he claimed.

However, Colin got ahead of him and broke the silence in a callous tone. "You're the captain of the General of the North's personal bodyguards? If that's the case, who the hell am I?"

Once again, Randy was confused by Colin's words. He found Colin absurd and unreasonable, and he couldn't possibly be bothered by Colin's identity.

In return, Nathan smirked slyly as if he was up to no good in his mind.

Similarly, Colin was upset and cast a stern gaze at Randy.

Naturally, Penny, Kylie, and Frida, who were aware of Nathan's actual identity as the General of the North, couldn't fathom the situation, either.

Penny was at a loss for words. The General of the North was right in front of Randy, while the captain of his personal bodyguards was right here as well, but Randy behaved as though he wasn't aware of both of their identities.

Nathan looked at Randy and repeated himself, “It seems like you really have no idea who I am, huh?”

Randy yelled in return, “Why does it sound like I’m supposed to be aware of the identity of a peasant like you? I’m sorry, but I really have no idea who the hell you are! I’m warning you for the last time! You’d better file for divorce with Penny as soon as possible because I’m the only one who deserves her! If you refuse to give in to my instructions, I have a hundred ways to deal with you!”

Halfway through his speech, Randy sneered and continued on, “With that being said, I don’t think you want to know what sort of methods I have in store for you. I’m afraid you’re gonna pee your pants the moment you find out.”

As soon as he finished threatening Nathan, he turned around and looked at Penny affectionately, “Penny, please come with me! I’m a colonel, and the general holds me in high regard. I’m sure I’ll soon climb up the ranks. By the time I become a general, you'll be the only one who gets to stand by my side!"

Penny was about to say something when Nathan got ahead of her and replied scornfully, "Oh? The wife of a general? Are you serious? Is that like a big deal?"

"Ha! It seems like you're not only a peasant, but you're a fool as well, huh? Celebrities and women in high society are nothing in front of the wives of those in power, such as the wife of a general! These other women have to try their best to flatter the wives of those in power!" Randy explained himself as he cast a contemptuous gaze at Nathan.

"Oh... Actually, Penny is already the wife of a general... Apart from that, she doesn't have a thing for you and definitely won't fall for your petty lies, you liar," Nathan replied nonchalantly.

She's already the wife of a general? He must be lying!

However, he tried his best to calm himself down and put on a strong front. He looked at Nathan with a smirk on his face.

What the hell? I'm merely telling others I'm the captain of the General of the North's personal bodyguards, but you have the guts to tell others you're the general? What kind of joke is this?

In the end, Randy burst into laughter and mocked, "Are you drunk, Mr. Cross? If you're the general, doesn't that make me the king?"

Similarly, the people behind Randy looked at Nathan and insulted him.

"Hahaha! Where the hell does this scoundrel come from? How dare he proclaims himself as the general in front of our captain? He must have no idea that our captain is the General's most trusted aide!"

Randy sneered, “You really think of yourself as the General, don’t you? Who are you trying to kid?”

Nathan instructed Colin, “Call Patrick. He’s in charge of Bossania City’s military district. Tell him to come and meet me in ten minutes.”

After that, Nathan turned to Randy. “I am only giving you ten minutes. If you do not admit that you are a liar and voluntarily turn yourself in to the police within these ten minutes, I will hand you over to the military and you will be punished severely.”

Randy grinned and asked, “Are you trying to intimidate me? I’d like to see how you are going to summon the military.”

He was adamant and did not believe that Nathan was a general.

Moreover, as far as he knew, it was quite a distance from the Hilton to the military base of Bossania. No one would be able to reach them in ten minutes even if they were to speed.

Hence, Nathan's request for Patrick of Bossania City's military district to arrive in ten minutes was definitely impossible. It seemed to Randy that Nathan was just being ridiculous.

Time was almost up.

Randy glanced at his watch and sneered, "It's been nine minutes, and I don't see a single shadow from the troops..."

Before he could finish, a loud rumbling sound could be heard from the sky right outside of the hotel.

To the shock of everyone, more than a dozen helicopters appeared in the sky like nighthawks hovering over the area.

A rope was thrown out of the first military aircraft. A burly man dressed in colonel uniform then rappelled down the helicopter and landed firmly on the ground.

He was Patrick Henderson, the man in charge of Bossania's military district.

Patrick roared, "Attention! Salute!"

Everyone in uniform came to stiff attention and gave crisp a salute to Nathan. "General!"

General!

Everyone else around stirred in astonishment and anticipation.

Although Penny, Kylie, and Frida knew Nathan was the general, they still couldn't help but gape at the awe-inspiring spectacle.

Meanwhile, Randy and his fellows were pale with fright.

Randy looked at Nathan in horror. He had thought Nathan was a liar, just like himself.

He was so startled that his blood pressure shot through the roof.

The guys who stood behind Randy were in an even worse state. They trembled with fear and stood shakily. One by one, they fell to their knees, and someone even peed in his pants!

He really is the General of the North!

Instantly, they deeply regretted being rude towards Nathan.

Nathan glanced at Randy, then turned to Patrick and said, "Patrick, you came just at the right time. This man swindled under the guise of a soldier and is giving us military a bad reputation. After listening to Nathan, Patrick looked sternly at Randy.

The heavily armed members of the special forces around them also became combative.

Patrick started by introducing Colin, “This is Colonel Colin Dunne, captain of the General’s National Guards.”

Randy turned pale and looked at Colin in horror. Colin is really the captain of the National Guards!

Patrick continued by introducing Nathan, “This is our North Army’s commander-in-chief, General of the North, also known as the God of War, Nathan Cross!”

Thump!

I've committed."

Nathan replied coldly, "Serves you right! Not only you were deceitful, how dare you hit on my wife and threaten me. Furthermore, you tried to cheat under the guise of a soldier and as Captain of the National Guards. For this, you have given the military name a bad rap, which is abominable."

Randy and his men were still shaking in fear as they all begged for mercy.

Nathan instructed Patrick, "Send these men to the military prison. Let them spend the remainder of their lives repenting in prison."

Patrick answered, "Yes!"

Randy and the others had lost all hope; this meant life imprisonment for them.

Soon, Randy and his group were arrested.

The remaining people in the hotel lobby were ushered out as well.

The only ones left in the hotel lobby were Nathan, Colin, Penny, Kylie, Frida, and Patrick and his men.

Patrick said respectfully to Nathan, "General, as a matter of fact, I was getting ready to come and see you just before you called."

Nathan was surprised, "Oh? What's the matter?"

Patrick reported to him, "Lucifer's mastermind, Sky, broke into our base. He said he wants to surrender himself to you and is willing to serve as an informant."

Nathan and Colin looked at each other with delight.

Colin smiled and said, "General, we thought we might have to wait two days before Sky would come and surrender himself. We did not expect him to show up so soon.”

Nathan’s lips curled into a smile and said, “Looks like Lucifer is more ruthless than we thought; otherwise, why would Sky be so quick to surrender?”

The women excused themselves and returned to their rooms. They were joined by Benson Smith, Leah, and Queenie.

Nathan arranged for Elite Eight to stay at the hotel to protect his family before heading toward Bossania’s military base with Colin, Patrick, and the troops.

The group was unaware that, at that point in time and in the dark of the night, a huge group of twenty thousand men had stealthily surrounded Bossania’s military base.

These men were the Leeroy family’s servants, doormen, and thugs.

Lucifer knew Sky had killed Winston and was looking for a safe place to hide, and expected Sky to take his family to Bossania City's military district. Sky would then betray him by surrendering himself to Nathan Cross.

A livid Lucifer immediately gathered the Merciless Duo, the Seven Champions, the Twelve Apostles, three hundred White Warriors, and more than twenty thousand men. He then led them to Bossania's base with murderous intent.

He wanted to kill Sky before the latter could even surrender himself to Nathan.

Breaking into a military base carried a heavy sentence, but the consequences would be far worse if the crime had to do with the president's son. Furthermore, Boris Tucker and others were associated with him. If anything were to happen to him, many big shots would be implicated, too.

Therefore, he must have Sky killed at all costs to prevent the latter from turning into an informant.

There were only two thousand troops at Bossania's base.

In Patrick's absence, his deputy, Lieutenant Colonel Zaiden Collins, was in charge.

Zaiden was surprised when he learned that Lucifer, Deputy Mayor of Bossania City, had surrounded the base with more than twenty thousand soldiers.

Zaiden quickly ordered the base troops to tighten security.

Together with a few of his subordinates, they rushed to the main gate to meet Lucifer.

Lucifer looked impressive surrounded by a large group of his men.

Behind him were more than twenty thousand men armed with combat daggers and swords.

Zaiden took a step forward and asked, "Mayor, what's going on? Why have your men surrounded the base?"

Lucifer said coldly, “I have a servant who has betrayed me. Tell me, is he hiding in there?”

Finally, it dawned on Zaiden that he was here for Sky.

He hesitated and said, “This, this...”

Lucifer asked angrily, “Yes or no?”

Zaiden braced himself and answered, “Yes!”

Lucifer demanded, “Hand him over to me now!”

Zaiden was perplexed. “Sky and his family are indeed at our base. But we have been ordered by Chief to keep them safe until the general gets here. I’m sorry, Sir, but I can’t hand Sky over to you.”

Just then, Maurice, one of the Merciless Duo who had been standing beside Lucifer, shot out like a flash.

Zaiden was clearly suffocating when Maurice lifted him off the ground. His eyes were protruding, his mouth gaping, and his face was flushed.

Upon seeing how their Deputy Commander was handled, Bossania's troops quickly lifted their guns and pointed them at Lucifer and his men.

Lucifer coldly snorted, "I am King of the North! I am deputy mayor of Bossania and my ranking is higher than that of your commander-in-chief. How dare you point your guns at me? Do you all want to die? Do you believe I can destroy all of you?"

Bossania's troops were evidently reminded of Lucifer's identity.

Lucifer Leeroy was from the Leeroy family, and he was known as the King of the North.

He used to be a commanding officer. Now, he held the title of major general. Even someone like Commander-in-chief Patrick ought to salute him.

Moreover, Lucifer was the deputy mayor. It was a serious incident for soldiers to point their guns at a deputy mayor.

At the thought of Lucifer's viciousness, the Bossania's troops lowered their guns.

With a look of satisfaction on his face, Lucifer turned to Maurice. "Don't kill him yet. Give him a chance to hand over Sky."

Maurice loosened his grip and Zaiden fell onto the ground coughing and wheezing. He almost suffocated to death a minute ago.

Lucifer looked at Zaiden with hostility. "I'm going to ask you one more time. Hand Sky over to me."

Is he asking as Deputy Mayor or as Major General?

Zaiden had no choice but to reply, "I'm sorry, but I cannot obey your order."

Zaiden gritted his teeth. "Even if you were to kill me, I still won't hand him over."

Maurice snarled and broke Maurice's right arm with another snap.

Crack! Crack!

Without ceasing, Maurice broke both of Zaiden's legs.

Maurice lifted his foot and stepped on Zaiden's face, his leather shoe pushing Zaiden's head down onto the muddy water. He said menacingly, "Don't test our patience. This is your last chance, hand over the man."

Bossania's troops appeared distressed. They did not dare go against Lucifer given his seniority; they could only observe in helplessness.

Zaiden fixed his gaze on Lucifer and maintained, "Even if you were to kill me, I still wouldn't hand him over."

Lucifer said indifferently, "Maurice, kill him! We'll go in and capture Sky ourselves."

Looking at the direction the cigarette butt came from, Maurice was shocked to see Nathan returning with Colin and Patrick.
